To-night, the drama of "Christie Johnstone," written especially for Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau, will be produced for the first time in San Francisco. This play is founded on Charles Read's novel of the same title by O. W. Taylenre. Mrs. Chanfrau will play the role of Christie Johnstone and sing "You and I" and "Caller Herrin." Her support will include such artistes as George D. Chaplain, Henry Edwards, Miss Helen Tracy, Mrs. C. B. Saunders, J. O. Williamson and Owen Marlowe. A feature will be the great scene of the launching of the life boat, and rescue of the crew of a wrecked vessel. This will be vividly represented by means of elaborate mechanism prepared by John Torrence. New scenery has been painted by George O. Fell, and the greatest care has been expended in placing the play on the stage.

Bella Union.

The very varied and attractive programme presented at this house last night drew an immense house. Cogill and Cooper made another hit in their new song and dance entitled "Happy Jim and Lew," composed by E. Zimmer. Mat Kelly, Harry Sinclair, Tommy Bree and Will Bark caused much amusement in the farce of "Twins of Siam," the new ballet of "The Painter's Illusion," performed by Mons. Schmidt, Mme. Therese, Ed Montague, Minnie Fillmore, Miss Josephine and others was a great success; M'lle Gerretta gained much applause in her statue act, and the lively extravaganza of "The Death of Macbeth" wound up the evening's fun in good style. The same bill will be played to-night.

The Atheneum.

Miss Olande, serio-comic vocalist; Miss Lydia Livingstone, danseuse; Charley Thompson, end man; May Leroy, danseuse and actress, and a host of other popular favorites will appear in the capital programme to be presented to-night. The Atheneum is happy in a good run of business, and had to turn away people both Saturday and Sunday nights.

Pacific Hall.

The complimentary concert tendered to Master J. W. McKenzie, the young California tenor, will take place to-night at Pacific Hall. The names of so many talented artistes appear in the list of those volunteering on this occasion, that an entertainment of a high order of merit will certainly be enjoyed by those who attend. The concert will be under the management of George T. Evans.

German Stadtheatre.

Manager Pritsch most successfully inaugurated a new season of dramatic performances at the California Theatre last night. The house was crowded. Mrs. A. Foellger made a hit in the character of Leopold Duke de Dessary, in the play of "Anna Leise," Mme. Otilie Genee played the role of the heroine charmingly, and the whole performance gave general satisfaction. The concert which followed by the Fabbri opera combination retained the audience to a very late hour and was an artistic success. The applause was hearty and general.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attendance was fully 10,000 at Woodward's Gardens on Sunday, and the performance of the Conklin Circus Troupe, Professor Samwell's trained dogs, etc., gave universal satisfaction. Circus performances every day.

Italian Opera Season.

The public generally regretted that the season of Italian opera by the Fabbri opera troupe at the California Theatre was brought to a close on the commencement of Mrs. Chanfrau's season. They were by no means weary of this troupe. They will be glad to learn that another season of Italian opera will be given at the California Theatre by the Fabbri combination with Signor Baccei, Signora Bianchi and others, commencing on December 16th

Horticultural Hall.

There will be skating this afternoon and evening at this fine rink.

The Arriola Collection.

The collection of works of art contributed for the benefit of the late Fortunato Arriola will be sold by auction this evening at 7:30 at the room of the Art Association on Pine street near Sansome. We hope there will be a large gathering of ladies and gentlemen there. The occasion is un common one and if there is really any love of art in San Francisco it will be shown to-night by a large attendance and liberal bidding.

Presentation.

Madama Otillie Genee, the favorite German comedienne was presented with a beautiful silver basket filled with rare flowers, last night at the California Theatre, while she was performing the character of Anna Liese.

Thomas Maguire.

This veteran manager, to whom the public of California owes so much for the fostering care he bestowed upon the drama when in its infancy in this State returned last night from New York where he has met with good success in the managerial field, having in conjunction with Billy Emerson given that city a new first-class minstrel troupe. Mr. Maguire returns highly pleased with his visit to New York, but glad to get back to the city so long his home and the scene of so many of his triumphs as manager of Maguire's Opera House, Alhambra Theatre, Eureka Theatre, Academy of Music, Jenny Lind Theatre, and other places of amusement whose names are no longer before the public.

J. H. Church.

This gentleman left this morning for Carson City with the following additions to his company, with which he intends to give a season of variety entertainments at the theatre during the coming season of the Legislature: Ella La Rue, Lydia Livingstone, Rosa Vincent, D. W. Nesfield, Billy Smith, E. W. Bennett, George Wallace and Lillie

SILENCE.

In silence mighty things are wrought;
Silently builded, thought on thought,
Truth's temple greets the sky;
And, like a citadel with towers,
The soul with her subservient powers
Is strengthened silently.

Soundless as chariots on the snow
The saplings of the forest grow
To trees of mighty girth;
Each mighty storm in silence burns,
And every day in silence turns
The axle of the earth.

The silent frost with mighty hand
Fetters the rivers of the land
With universal chain;
And, smitten by the silent sun,
The chain is loosed, the rivers run,
The lands are free again.

A Strange Paper.

The News Letter is an incomprehensible paper. It has lost it head altogether. We find Byron Adonis of the News Letter acting as active and efficient agent for Mrs. Fair, and other scribblers for that paper pitching into her like anything. The News Letter published a beautiful "pome" about Mrs. Fair and her small child:

Here I am, Oh mamma darling,
Here I am, Oh mamma mine,
In spite of cruel jailor's snarling,
Here's my mamma's bright Sunshine.

It was something like that, and went in for creating sympathy for the "poor prisoner" "in a dungeon lonely," and all that sort of thing. It was probably written by Byron Adonis. The News Letter isn't at all the sort of paper to abuse Mrs. Fair, for it is in an equally bad line of business with her. It murders reputation, stabs character in the dark, acts the bully where it can, and whines and cringes when a cudgel is brandished over its head. Fred Marriott and Byron Adonis are a nice team. Now the News Letter will discharge Adonis and swear he never wrote a line for the paper. It won't tell the truth it it does so.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. Diogenes in London.

Prentice Mulford is writing some capital letters from London to the Bulletin. He is becoming a true philosopher. His moralizings on the "bed rock stratum" of the London population are full of truth. He says:

> Socially and financially and probably morally, these people are down to the bed rock. But that doesn't seem to trouble them. They were born and always expect to stay there. They have never "fallen." They never were on a moral elevation to fall from. They are innocently irregular and improper, perhaps wicked, like tigers, rattlesnakes and pigs. Talk to them about a clean house! They couldn't stay in one. It would feel unnatural. It would be like putting a pig in a parlor. Of course, the creature would grunt and squeal for his straw and would sadly miss the luxury of a wade knee deep in muck. I do not believe that the Drury Lane and Seven Dials bed-rock stratum of poverty in London suffer half as much as does indigent gentility. Give the bed rock a shilling a day and it can live on it. Two herrings can be had for a penny and a loaf for two pence. There's fuel enough for twenty-four hours. Three and-six per week pays for room rent; that extent may be shared, perhaps by half a dozen. There is no style to be kept up. The whole occupation of existence is coarse animal enjoyment. Their midnight supper of fried fish, at a penny a plate, and a half pint of porter for another penny, tastes as good as grouse and champagne. They have no character to maintain, or rather they have but one character to maintain and that a bad one, which it easy enough for them to do. Fashion does not trouble them. They are not ashamed of rags. Congenial association is plentiful. Night and day the street furnishes something interesting and exciting. No, they are not wretched. They have nothing to be wretched on.

We hold the above to be as sound philosophy as was ever uttered.

Love.

The following is what some of the old authors have to say about love:

Love seldom haunts the breast where learning lies.—Pope.

Hate makes us vehement partisans, but love still more so.—Goethe.

In love we are fools alike.—Gay.

Love is the virtue of woman.—Dudevant.

In love: the deceit generally outstrips the distrust.—Rochefoucald.

Love is an affair of credulity.—Ovid.

Love at two and twenty is a terribly intoxicating draught.—Luffini.

Where love dwells is paradise.—Richter.

Love is precisely to the moral nature what the sun is to the earth.—

Words of love are works of love.—Alger.

When we love we live.—Congreve.

She that is loved is safe.—Jeremy Taylor.

How shall to do to love? Believe. How shall I do to believe? Love.—Leighton.

Love is an egotism of two.—A. de La Salle. I could not love thee, dear, so much, loved I not honor more.—Lovelace.

Wish chastely and love dearly.—Shakspeare.

Love sacrifices all things to bless the thing it loves.—Bulwer Lytton.

A Fine Forehead.

The Boston Courier says:

> Lavender was standing before one of Loring's windows the other day, gazing at the photograph of Joaquin Miller, the poet, when a huge Celtic laborer approached and scrutinized with evident admiration the same picture. Finally he addressed Lavender: "That's a foine man." "What man," timidly inquired Lavender. "The Pote," said the brawny critic, without once taking his eyes from the striking but rather hard and severe features of the laureate of the Sierres. Continuing, he remarked with increased warmth: "He have a foine head av hair. Luk at the forehead of 'im! If the hair was all shaved off that forehead, if wud be as hoigh as the top of a man's hat." Lavender retired.

Not Much of a Whirlpool.

The famous maelstrom, which has been the scene of so many thrilling stories, is in reality a very tame affair and would never recognize itself in the turbulent picture drawn by the romancer's pen. An English tourist, writing of it from Norway, says: "Every year hundreds of our countryman row over it, doubtless even bathe in it; for except at certain periods, and under certain conditions of wind and tide, it is comparatively harmless."

Why Doesn't He?

Henry Ward Beecher thus moralizingly remarks relative to the slanders which the Woodhull has poured upon him:

> If you are walking down the street and a chambermaid empties a slop-pail on your head, what can you do about it but wash yourself and move on?

Well, why doesn't he proceed to wash himself? It is evident to every one that he has had some very dirty water poured on him, and he is walking about trying to seem unconscious of it. We suppose Deacon Pork will try the same course.

Beyond Purgatory.

The late Father O'Leary, who was well known as a wit, had once a polemical contest with the protestant Bishop of Cloyne. The prelate, in a pamphlet, inveighed with great acrimony against the superstitions of Popery, and particularly against the doctrine of purgatory. Father O'Leary, in his reply, slyly observed, "that, much as the Bishop disliked purgatory, he might possibly go farther and fare worse."

True Fame.

In Paris the mothers of two actresses were lately disputing as to the excellence of their respective daughters. "Yes," said the one, "you may say what you like, but my daughter has far more 'chic' than yours; she has already ruined five Counts!" "Ruined!" re-echoed the other with an air of disdain; "why that's nothing at all! My daughter has not only ruined her Counts, but driven them to commit suicide."

Joaquin Miller.

The Fat Contributor's Saturday Night of the 16th says: This gentleman, who has been spending a couple of weeks in our city, left on Wednesday night for New York, and sails to-day for Europe. He is a pleasant, agreeable gentleman, who immediately made friends of those with whom he came in contact. He enjoyed his visit to Cincinnati very much, and was the recipient of numerous friendly attentions in a quiet way.

How Marriages Happen.

"Come in, there's a fire in the parlor," were the whispered words we heard while passing a house on one of our principal streets last evening. It is such little courtesies as these that increase the coal dealer's profits, and tend to make the baker sweat over six-story wedding cakes before the Winter is over.

In Love.

A man, who is an authority on the subject, says that, in small affairs of the affections, "forever" means a fortnight; "forever and ever," three weeks.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

The San Francisco Public.

The public of San Francisco is less homogenous than that of almost any other city of the same size in the world. It is made up of so many distinct nationalities that it takes a great event, something that touches human nature apart from sectional prejudices, to call forth a demonstration of public feeling. When Mrs. Fair proposed to insult the public at large, that public was not found wanting. Turks, Jews, Infidels, Frenchmen, Irishmen, Englishmen, Scotchmen, Germans and all races of men merged their nationalities and faithfully represented the public of an American city. Some of the papers suggested that Mrs. Fair should be let severely alone; that the public of San Francisco should manifest their indignation at her attempted outrage by staying away from Platt's Hall and leaving her to talk to empty benches. We thought this would be unworthy of a great public like San Francisco, and besides we knew they could not do it. We suggested rotten eggs. They were in readiness. The public determined that Mrs. Fair should not carry out her proposed plan with impunity, and they made a demonstration. It was effectual. The California devil-fish, void as she is of nearly every human feeling trembled, quivered like a mass of cold, clammy jelly, cowered in her den in Kearny street, and was afraid to come out. We are proud of the San Francisco public. They were called upon to demonstrate their existence as a power, and they did so. They have done much to clear from this city the stain inflicted on its character by twelve weak men lacking in backbone and brains. The San Francisco public is a good natured lion—hard to rouse—but it will not be trifled with. Now if this odious devil-fish will rid the city of her presence, she has a chance to do so without molestation, but let her beware of again attempting to defy a public which has in it a strength and unity of purpose which she had not calculated on.

Advice Gratis.

The Paris Figaro tells the following story apropos of the penalties of greatness, and how one may occasionally avoid paying them: A distinguished physician in Paris could not show his nose out of doors without being every minute accosted by some one. "Ah! doctor, how glad I am to see you. All this morning I have felt badly. What can it be?" To such an extent was the poor man plagued that he determined at all hazards to rid himself of the torment. A few days since, in a very public place, he heard as usual: "Ah, doctor, how glad," etc. "Good gracious!" he replied, "this is a serious business. I must look at your tongue; put it out, please." And there, in the open street, the man obeyed. The doctor studied it for a short time. "Very good," he said at length, "now shut your eyes." Again the patient obeyed, whereupon the doctor went his way, leaving his tormentor standing in this ridiculous position in the midst of an amused crowd. It was quite as effective (though less polite) as the English physician's stratagem. Once when accosted by one of these swindling patients he coolly said: "Your case is a serious one, and I entreat you to take the best medical advice."

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

What I Am.

This passage, from Train's great London speech, is too good to be lost:

"I am, to-day, the livest man in England (cheers), the only man that can make kings tremble, churches shake, and fraud shiver in his hideous depravity; abolishing American slavery with my army of braves, leveling the Toilleries as the emblem of kings, and the Vendome column as the monument of crime! My frame is surcharged with the coming change—all lands speak through me—all Nature backs me. I live in the roar of the tempest—the roll of the ocean on the rockbound beach—the burning lava of the volcano—the thundering artillery of the earthquake—as well as in the chirp of insects—the moanings of the tide—the rustling of the corn—the songs of birds—the prattle of young children, and the happy laugh of young schoolgirls. I am young—younger than most men of twenty! a constitution of Bessemer steel, and before I am of the age of Chase, Wade or Seward, I have eight fair chances for the White House. And I shall not wait long. I shall live to fourscore and ten, and my name will ring down all the ages. Indebted to nobody, spotless in character and courage, despising the hypocrisy of the Christian, I wrap my Pagan cloak around me as the stormy petrel of the skeptical ocean."

"The Smiths."

John Smith—plain John Smith—is not very high sounding; it does not suggest aristocracy; it is not the name of any hero in die-away novels; and yet is good, strong and honest. Transferred to other languages it seems to climb the ladder of respectability. Thus in Latin it is Johannes Smithus; the Italian smooths it off into Giovanni Smithi; the Spaniards render it Juan Smithus; the Dutchman adopts it as Hans Schmidt; the French flatten it out into Jean Smeet; and the Russian sneezes and barks Jonzoff Smittowski. When John Smith gets into the tea trade at Canton he becomes Jovan Shimmit; if he clambers about Moun the Icelanders say he is Johne Smithson; if he trades among the Tuscaroras he becomes Ton Qa Smittis; in Poland he is known as Ivan Schmititiweiski; should he wander among the Welsh mountains, they talk of Jihon Schmidd; when he goes to Mexico he is booked as Jontli F'Smitti; if, of classic turn, he lingers among Greek ruins, he turns to Ion Smikton; and in Turkey he is utterly disgusted as Yoe Seei.

The Missionary Field.

Our indefatigable, enterprising brethren of the pulpit have pushed their mission into every corner of the world. They may be met as missionaries everywhere, among the Celestials of the East, the Indians of the West, the Esquimaux of the North, and in the State Prisons. The Rev. William Wilson, of Asheville, North Carolina, has just been sent on a nine-years' mission in a Penitentiary field for highway robbery. In this connection we may mention the discharge from the Indiana State Prison of the Rev. Mr. Green, who has just concluded a term of five years for forgery. Previous to his labors in durance he had charge of a flourishing Baptist congregation.

Business Enterprise.

No less than five gunsmithing firms have sent their business cards to Miss Agnes Pork, Oakland, since the newspaper revelations concerning the festive doings of a godly deacon of that town have confounded Israel.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Arcadian Clippings.

A foreigner, hopelessly in love, is more interesting on account of his broken English than on account of his broken heart.

Morbid people are like dislocated pianos—the sounding-boards of their lives are broken, and no after-tuning will cure the jangle of the keys.

Bashful people should always use red ink, because it is like blushes in solution.

There are people so morbidly conscious and introspective that they may be said to be perpetually vivisecting themselves.

Moonlight is merely the beautiful old age of day.

Kind thoughts are the spice islands of the spirit, making a man's character breezy with sweetness.

Pleasant memory in old age is like a bird singing on a withered bough.

Compressing a five-act comedy into three is like squeezing a giant into a dwarf—it grows broader as it grows shorter.

Metropolitan Theatre.

It will be seen by an announcement on our first page that Manager Bert will give a short season of Italian opera at this theatre, commencing to-morrow night with Verdi's grand opera of Attila, with the same cast with which the opera was so successfully rendered last Friday night. The troupe will consist of Signora Lugia Bernardi, prima donna; Signor Pietro Baccei, tenor; Signor Fulvio Rigo, basso; and Signor Sylvio Rossi, baritone. The orchestra will be conducted by Prof. Geo. T. Evans.

In a Bad Way.

The Call on Sunday with great kindness gave up a portion of its space to six verses called "Love Unrequited," written by Elise de H. 'Lise—we hope she won't mind our calling her 'Lise for short—commences her wonderful "pome" thus:

Ah, do not go! I love thee,
How much, I scarce dare tell;
For I must keep the secret,
Though I love thee, oh, so well!
Ah, linger by me, darling,
With thy warm hand clasped in mine;
Though my eyelids strive to shadow
Love's telegraphic sign.

Now we call that rather a pretty way of expressing it. "Though my eyelids strive to shadow Love's telegraphic sign" means that she feels too weak to wink at him. 'Lise is altogether too passive in this matter; she might squeeze darlings' hand, or do something; winking wouldn't be much use even if she could wink, and she says she can't. She says "A woman must dissemble," and therefore she daren't let the fellow see how much she loves him. She thinks that there ought to be a certain amount of delicacy in these matters; she feels bad, but doesn't want the fellow to know it; she's modest and retiring, so she thinks she will give him a hint in a quiet sort of way, by writing a lot of doggrel and sticking it in the Morning Call, daily circulation 28,340, with her name at the bottom of it. Oh, how very thin all that bashful business is. We'll bet two-and-a-half the fellow will be so scared by these lines that he won't ever again dare walk down the street 'Lise lives in.

A bigamy case was tried at Middletown, Conn., recently. One Mr. Koss had been sent to Sing Sing for five years, and his wife, thinking she was de facto free, married again. But Koss now claims his wife, but failed to prove his marriage to her, and finally agreed with her counsel that if she would give him a feather bed he would call it square.

St. Jo. has a man so bow-legged that he has his pants cut by a circular saw.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

CLAIRVOYANT.—Madame Clara Antonia, the Clairvoyant, and Independent Trance Medium, [illegible]

CHARLES MATHEWS.

The Press of this country have very generally copied Charles Mathews' letter in the London Telegraph addressed to "the human race," in which he states it is impossible for him to respond to the numerous applications for assistance which he receives from strangers. Our London namesake thus comments on his manifesto:

Any one who has ever heard of Charles Mathews' little mannerisms off the boards, will readily believe that the "applications" which he here treats with such a jaunty air of condescending humor are addressed to him by "total strangers," as no living creature who knows the man would ever think of wasting ink and paper in asking aid of him. His entire theatrical career has been one uninterrupted course of selfish indifference to the condition of his fellow actors. When in management, some years ago, at the Lyceum Theatre, the subordinate members of his company were sometimes on the actual verge of starvation, whilst others, who were in the nominal receipt of higher salaries, were frequently compelled to solicit aid from their more fortunate colleagues at better conducted theatres. The jerky Mr. Puff of the Gaiety does not mention, in his exquisitely funny protestation to the Daily Telegraph, the names of the fellow-creatures he loves so much; but he no doubt experienced some difficulty in suppressing a guffaw when he recalled to memory those specially ludicrous cases, and with shaking sides, penned his bit of satire to the Telegraph. So far as his own profession is concerned—a profession most remarkable for the disinterested generosity and compassionate sympathy of its members—Mr. Mathews has long been regarded as a very marked and signal exception to this noble rule. It would be difficult to discover the name of any charitable institution, or any suffering actor, for whose benefit Mr. Mathews ever consented to perform gratuitously. On the other hand he has accepted the sum of fifty pounds from the General Theatrical Fund, for his services in aid of that benevolent institution, having previously written a cynical and unfeeling letter to the secretary, informing him that his (Mr. C. Mathews') hours of acting were between such and such a time in the evening (although requested to appear at a morning performance), and that his terms were ten pounds per night. Mr. Mathews is very fond of parading his cynical views of humanity through a too-complacent newspaper press. We think it will be, in future, just as well for this glittering old gentleman to confine his sparkling jeers at humanity and the gentler impulses which render the companionship of mankind desirable, to the words set down for him in characters congenial to his own. He should refrain from inventing for publication jibes levelled at sweet charity, in order to convince the public that he is a devotee to selfishness. The public require no information on the point, and do not care to see the quality of Mr. C. Mathews' mercy strained through the newspapers.

The Maxim Gas Company and the Epizootic.

Mr. Fox showed us yesterday, says the Carson Appeal, long letters of apologies and lamention from the firm in San Francisco which supplies the Gas Company here with gasoline. This combustible stuff cannot be shipped by express on account of the horse disease; the cans they put it in have to be repaired twice before shipping—on account of the horse disease; the stuff is packed in Cleveland, Ohio—so far off—on account of the horse disease; the Secretary and Treasurer of the Carson Company is exhorted to economize his present supply—on account of the horse disease; so that if Mr. Fox fails to keep the town illuminated, attribute the same to horse disease.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The production of the drama of "Christie Johnstone" last night, with Mrs. F. L. Chanfrau in the title role, was an immense success. In this character Mrs. Chanfrau appears to infinitely better advantage than in that of the lugubrious Mme. Multon in "The Elopement." Christie is so bold and strong that her grief commands respect. The character of this bonnie fish-wife was absolutely realized last night. Mrs. Chanfrau looked charmingly handsome and dressed in admirable taste, the judicious arrangement of colors in her costume rendering her a perfect picture. As a lady said, "she looked as if she had stepped out of a chromo." She sang "Caller Herrin" and "You and I" in capital style, fairly bringing down the house. Mrs. Chanfrau's real success in San Francisco must date from her first appearance in "Christie Johnstone." The play is a good one, and was excellently rendered throughout. Mr. George D. Chaplin as Charles Gatty gave a good representation of that model of filial piety; Owen Marlowe did some of his very best acting in the character of Lord Ipsden, giving a representation of the blase young aristocrat, worthy of Chas. Mathews himself. Miss Helen Tracy was effective as Lady Barbara Sinclair; J. C. Williamson caused immense amusement as "Flounders," the "gentleman's gentleman," keeping the audience in a roar while he was on the stage; Mrs. Judah was very good as the stern maternal relative; Mrs. Saunders did some excellent acting as Bessie Carter; Henry Edwards was a capital Sandy Liston; H. Coad carried the part of Flucker Johnstone through with much spirit, and the other parts were well played. The great sensation scene of the life-boat was admirably produced; the boat was seen tossing in the waves in the most natural manner imaginable. This scene fairly brought down the house; it is one of the best ever presented on any stage. "Christie Johnstone" will be played until further notice.

Alhambra.

This theatre was thronged last night when Mr. Emerson made his reappearance after an absence of six months, and many were unable to obtain admission. On his making his appearance on the stage at the commencement of the performance, a storm of applause broke forth, which lasted many minutes The gratified recipient of this splendid welcome, bowed again and again, and was at length permitted to take his seat and the entertainment was proceeded with. In the first part, Mr. Emerson sang "My Love to the War has Gone," was encored again and again, and gave new verses of darkey songs, which were well received. On making his appearance in the afterpiece, "The Siamese Twins," he was received with the same stormy demonstrations, and from the time this act commenced until it closed there was a continual roar of applause and laughter. In this piece he was ably supported by Sam Rickey as Pat Muldoon. Emerson and his great band of minstrels will appear again to-night.

Bella Union.

Cogill and Cooper in song and dance, Madame Therese and Mons. Schmidt in ballet, new acts, new songs, and a brilliant afterpiece, will be the attractions to-night.

The Atheneum.

Miss Claude, Charley Thompson and Miss May Leroy are among the latest engagements at this place of amusement. A capital bill will be presented to-night.

Mercantile Library Hall.

The ladies are holding a festival here in aid of the California State Woman's Hospital. There will be lunch to-day at noon, and in the evening singing, music, acting charades and dancing.

Pacific Hall.

The concert tendered to Master J. W. McKenzie, the young tenor came off last night. The programme was well carried out, and Master McKenzie won much applause in his solos.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attendance was fully 10,000 at Woodward's Gardens on Sunday, and the performance of the Conklin Circus Troupe, Professor Samwell's trained dogs, etc., gave universal satisfaction. Circus performances every day.

Horticultural Hall.

There will be skating this afternoon and evening at this fine rink.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. z

Serve Him Right.

The Eastern papers sneer at California; say there's no justice here. Isn't there? Perhaps the following from one of the daily papers of yesterday will cause them to change their opinion:

Twenty-five years.—Sheriff Dunnam, of Placer county, arrived in this city last night, having in his charge a Chinaman named Chin Bock who is en route for San Quentin to serve out twenty five years' sentence for murder in the second degree. Bock shot and killed a countryman several months ago in Dutch Flat, Placer County.

Laura Fair's case is not to the point. Look at that Chinaman! Murder in the second degree and we just sock it to him. Twenty-five years! It's no use saying Laura Fair ought to have been hanged, of course she ought, but then we don't let off all murderers. There's Chin Bock he's got twenty-five years, for second degree; he only killed a Chinaman. There's justice in California, whatever these Eastern papers may say. We'll just show these yellow-skinned devils they live in a Christian country where they can't commit murder with impunity. They can't play the insanity dodge on us. We know them. Wait till we can find a Chinaman who has committed murder in the first degree and see how quick we'll hang him.

Hazardous.

The "Hazard" Troupe, Frank Hussy and others are going to venture to give dramatic performances in San Jose on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. They run great risks. We give the Mercury notice however that if the people of San Jose don't turn out to see "Hazard" we are not going to howl against them for want of appreciation in this instance. The "Troupe" is rather thin. Frank Hussey is clever, but that is about all. It is a sort of company that can afford to take desperate chances.

Very Hard Lines.

New regulations have been made for the jailors and prisoners in the County Jail. Among them we find the following, which seems very hard:

"All singing, whistling and cat-calling is forbidden."

These poor caged birds may not sing or whistle—may not even call cats. This is cruel. May they not sing Sunday School hymns like "Ten Thousand Miles Away" or "Whack fal lddy?"

Why?

Some editor publishes the following:

The only surviving relative of John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home," is Mrs. Lugner, the wife of a clergyman at Bedford Station, Westchester County, N. Y.

Why need he have done this? Now we are longing for that no-doubt, amiable woman's death, just so as to have it over. That man might have waited a little, and then said "the only surviving relative etc., died etc."

On the Sands at the Cliff House.

The following dialogue occurred a night or two ago on the sands below the Cliff House between two visitors recently arrived from the East.

SHE.—Oh! Charles how grand the ocean is. One is carried away in thought through infinite space. One wishes one were a little bird.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. A LEAF FROM LIFE.

BY F. S. COZZENS.

I lent my love a book one day;
She brought it back; I laid it by;
'Twas little either had to say—
She was so strange, and I so shy.

But yet we loved indifferent things—
The breathing buds, the birds in tune,
And time stood still, and wreathed his wings,
With rosy links from June to June.

For her, what task to dare or do?
What peril tempt? what hardship bear?
But with her, ah! she never knew
My heart, and what was hidden there!

And she, with me so cold and coy,
Seem'd like a maid bereft of sense,
But in a crowd all life and joy—
And full of bashful impudence.

She married. Well—a woman needs
A mate, her love and life to share—
And little cares sprang up like weeds
And played around her elbowed chair.

And years roll'd by—but I, content,
Trimm'd my own lamp and kept it bright,
Till age's touch my hair besprent
With rays and gleams of silver light.

And then, it chanced, I took the book
Which she perused in days gone by;
And as I read such passion shook
My soul, I needs must curse or cry.

For here and there her love was writ
In old, half-faded pencil signs,
As if she yielded—bit by bit—
Her heart in dots and underlines.

Ah, silvered fool! too late you look!
I know it; let me here record
This maxim: Lend no girl a book
Unless you read it afterward.

Could not Play Her.

The Marysville Defender of November 20th records this incident:

We heard a good story last evening which we repeat for the benefit of Wilson's circus which performed here last evening. It seems that a couple who reside in Colusa and are about to be married were consulting with the minister about naming the day and had named an evening close at hand. Suddenly the lady happened think that that was the evening on which the circus would be there. Jumping up she exclaimed: "No ——; you can't play me that way, I can't be married on that evening, for I am going to the circus," And the wedding was deferred for one evening.

"What's the use," said an idle fellow, of a man's working himself to death get a living."

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. u

Beyond Purgatory.

The late Father O'Leary, who was well known as a wit, had once a polemical contest with the protestant Bishop of Cloyne. The prelate, in a pamphlet, inveighed with great acrimony against the superstitions of Popery, and particularly against the doctrine of purgatory. Father O'Leary, in his reply, slyly observed, "that, much as the Bishop disliked purgatory, he might possibly go farther and fare worse."

New Music.

We have received from M. Gray, music publisher, the following new works issued from his establishment: "I'm Waiting, My Darling, for Thee," by Geo. T. Evans, with brilliant variations and finale by Charles Globe, and Delehanty and Hengler's song, "All Among the Roses," words and music by W. H. Delehanty. Both these songs are already popular, and will doubtless have a large sale.

Settled.

The public were told through the newspapers some time ago that Albert S. Evans had lost his life by drowning off the steamer Missouri. Since then a number of "representatives" of the Press of San Francisco (local reporters) have been holding meetings once or twice a week, and have at last succeeded in drafting a series of resolutions. They howl dismally over the departed. We hope they are satisfied now.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.
In addition to being a play of a high order of merit, "Christie Johnstone" contains enough of the sensational element to recommend it to those whose eyes are pleased more easily than their intellects. The scene in which the life boat passes across the stage amid the raging billows has seldom been equalled on the stage. Those who wish to see Mrs. Chanfrau in her best part should visit the California Theatre while "Christie Johnstone" holds the stage; she can scarcely surpass her efforts in this character.

Alhambra.
Another immense audience assembled last night, when Billy Emerson made his second appearance since his return from New York. The performance went off capitally; everything was laughed at and applauded, and Billy Emerson surpassed himself. The acts of "Laughing Gas," "Jack Sheppard" and "The Siamese Twins" are in the programme for to-night. A Thanksgiving matinee will be given to-morrow.

Metropolitan Theatre.
This evening will be the first night of the new opera season at this theatre. "Attila," which was so successfully given last week for the joint benefit of Signori Rossi and Rigo, will be performed with the same cast as on that occasion, which includes Signora Bernardi and Signori Baccei, Rossi and Rigo in its principal roles. On Friday evening "Un Ballo" will be produced. "Aurora Floyd" will be performed to-morrow afternoon and evening.

Bella Union.
J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong made such a hit in "Shord and Dall," that it is retained on the bill for this week; Cogill and Cooper are great in "Happy Jim and Lew;" the new ballet of "The Painter's Illusion" is very attractive, and the fun is fast and furious in the afterpiece entitled "The Death of Mackbeth."

The Athenæum.
Charley Nickerson joined the company at this house last night, and was at once a favorite. The act of "The Arabian Brothers," by him, Tommy Rosa and Charley Thompson, proved quite a hit. A capital bill will be performed to-night.

Woodward's Gardens.
The attendance was fully 10,000 at Woodward's Gardens on Sunday, and the performance of the Conklin Circus Troupe, Professor Samwell's trained dogs, etc., gave universal satisfaction. Circus performances every day. Extra performances on Thanksgiving night and Saturday night.

Mercantile Library Hall.
The ladies are holding a festival here in aid of the California State Woman's Hospital. There will be lunch to-day at noon, and in the evening singing, music, acting charades and dancing. The attendance last evening was very large. A grand Thanksgiving dinner and ball will be given to-morrow.

Horticultural Hall.
There will be skating this afternoon and evening at this fine rink.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

John Woodard's Benefit.
This gentleman, who has been connected with the Metropolitan Theatre, professionally, since its opening under Manager Bert, will take his first benefit on Saturday evening. The Metropolitan company and a host of volunteers have volunteered for the occasion, and a performance of unusual attractiveness will be given. John is an old stager, a hard worker, and a thoroughly good fellow; and withal, the public are indebted to him for many unequalled stage personations of frontier characters, pioneer miners and "Pikes." The names of some of the volunteers appear in another column. May the old veteran have a bumper.

A Good Job.
A man in Covington, Ky., made a bet that he could drink a pint and a half of Cincinnati whisky in twelve hours. He won the bet, and his widow remarked at the funeral next day that it was the first money he had earned by hard work in ten years.

"Lor'-a-massy!" exclaimed the old lady in the witness box, "how should I know anything about a thing I dunno anything about?"

Such Long Hair

Diamond Catarrh Remedy
Is a sure cure for Catarrh or Colds. Ask your druggist for it, or send to Dr. A. F. Evoy, No. 9 Post street. Z

Live Well.
Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

A Pleasant Location.
Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there. The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

Memphis Style.
"I'll kill somebody before I go to supper," was the remark of Mr. Bob Cox as he walked up to the bar of a Memphis saloon and ordered his forty-ninth cocktail, after drinking which he began knocking off the hats of the loafers therein assembled, and flourishing his pistol with threats of shooting. They all took it meekly, and no one afforded Mr. Cox a reasonable excuse for shooting. He was beginning to get hungry, when, fortunately, a young man named Martin attempted to leave the room, and on going out looked over his shoulder to see if anybody was going to shoot him. Mr. Cox thought this was his last chance to avoid a cold supper. "What are you looking at?" he indignantly demanded. "Nothing, Mr. Cox," was the reply, whereupon Mr. Cox immediately shot him through the head and went home to his supper. This should be a warning to all Memphis people not to look back when they start to leave a barroom. Mr. Cox will be tried, but there is little doubt of his acquittal. He was insane from hunger, and killed Martin in self-defense.

Baked Beans.
Charles D. Warner writes in regard to the moral uses of baked beans: Not to have baked beans on Sunday is still, in some parts of New England, a fracture of the twelfth commandment. The bean figures largely in the economy of the old Bay State. It has its moral as well as its official uses. It is is given to the inmates of the States Prison at Charlestown, and is made a moral test of character. In the kitchen there I have seen rows of convicts seated at the long table, sorting over the next day's dinner—throwing away the black and imperfect ones. This is the first step toward awakening in these degraded beings the distinction between good and bad. When they have learned to sort out the bad beans, they have taken one step in the formation of a moral character. So solicitous is this State of the morals of all her children.

The Realistic Drama.
A theatrical manager proposes to produce "Hamlet" with a real brook for Ophelia to drown herself in. This is a good idea; but, to carry it out to its conclusion, he ought to compel Ophelia actually to drown herself. Such a performance would be exceedingly vivid; and, although it would be apt to deprive Ophelia of some of the enjoyment of acting, and to cost the management a good deal for funerals, the public would be strongly impressed—which is the first consideration. There is an additional inducement in the fact that some actresses would represent Ophelia much more gracefully after drowning than before. We have seen Ophelias, who, if they had their deserts, would have been anchored out in the ocean over night the very first time they appeared upon the stage.

Natural Enough.
Read this advertisement, and do not be too much overwhelmed by the magnificence of the princely offer which the advertiser makes:

> WANTED—A Christian young lady, to take the charge of five young children, to whom she will devote the whole of her time, and whom she will have to instruct in English, the rudiments of French, music, drawing, the elements of natural science, and calisthenics. To a person of high Christian character, this will be found a most desirable home. Salary $15 a year and washing. Address ——.

It is not very strange under these circumstances that young American governesses who emigrate to England think the best thing they can do is to jump into the Thames.

Oyster Trade.
The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. STRANGE, BUT TRUE.

BY A FAST YOUNG MAN—NOT ARTHUR.

About a year or two ago,
When I was young and rather green,
I chanced to meet the prettiest girl
My youthful eyes had ever seen.

Of course, you have already guessed
What I am now about to say:
That on the wings of quenchless love
My tender heart soon flew away.

I swore that Nellie's glossy curls
Were blacker than the raven's plume;
I thought the tint upon her cheek
Would shame the rose's velvet bloom.

I raved about her "starry" eyes,
Compared her hands to flakes of snow;
I said her teeth were shining pearls,
And called her mouth a coral bow.

Well, strange as it may seem to you,
Although that girl is just as fair,
With eyes as bright and blue as then,
And clustering curls of midnight hair;

Though every charm that won my heart,
Its pristine freshness still retains,
And though her temper's sweet, I own,
And all her innocence remains;

Yet now my heart doth never beat,
When noting her unconscious grace,
And, with a cold indifferent eye,
I look upon her childlike face.

Her kisses are insipid now,
Her hand I never care to press;
Sometimes I deign to notice her,
And just bestow a slight caress.

I wonder what has changed me so—
'Tis true I lead a fastish life;
But this is how it is you know:
It is because she is—MY WIFE.

—London Figaro.

Some Comfort.
A boy got fooling around his father's horses, until finally one of them put his foot in his face. He was carried in and the doctor sewed up his lips and bandaged his eyes, and poulticed his cheeks, but he puffed up and laid abed a number of days; and when he began to get a little better he called for a looking-glass, and casting his eyes upon it his countenance fell. "Father, do you think I will ever be so pretty again?" "No, my son," the old man replied, "you'll never be so pretty again, but you'll know a darned sight more."

Female "Facts."
According to Haller, women bear hunger longer than men; according to Plutarch, they can resist the effects of wine better; according to Under, they grow older, and never get bald; according to Pliny, they are seldom attacked by lions (on the contrary, they will run after lions); and according to Gunter, they can talk a week.

The Bivalve.
This famous oyster house having been refitted and improved, is now under the management of H. E. Besthorn, assisted by "Henry," so long known in the oyster business. A Great Discovery.
In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

Unprecedented Liberality.

We publish in another column a card of genuine thanks tendered by the passengers of the S. M. Whipple to Captain Bradbury and his officers, for their conduct after a slight accident had occurred to the machinery of the steamer last night, which prevented her from reaching her berth until this morning. The meritorious points of the case are, that instead of profiting and extorting by the accident, as is too frequently the case on other traveling mediums, the accommodations of the steamer's berths and tables were tendered to all passengers, and the utmost liberality was extended to them in providing for their comfort by both the captain and owner, Mr. E. K. Whipple, free of all charges. The Whipple will resume her trips on Friday, and should be sustained by the public.

"The Grizzly."

We have received the prospectus of a new weekly journal with the above title, which is to be published in this city on or about December 5th. It promises to be unobjectionable—a nice tame grizzly that won't do any harm. The prospectus says:

The Grizzly will avoid personal attacks, and never soil his paws with ribaldry; preferring to obtain a character for decency and ability, rather than a reputation which will preclude his introduction into refined circles.

The drama, music, art and literature will receive due attention from The Grizzly. The names of the publishers are not mentioned, but we hear those of Fred Lyster, Tommy Newcomb and other litterateurs in connection with the enterprise.

The Modern Prodigal Son.

By private advices from St. Louis, says the Titusville Press, we learn that a prodigal son thought he would quit eating husk and cornstalk free lunches and go home to his father's mansion in that city. But instead of having veal for dinner and making the young man's brother take a back seat, the old man waited until he could get a tight grip on him, and then gave him such a bouncing he won't "prodigal" again for six weeks. This energetic parent says he rejoices more over one boy that runs away and stays, than the whole family who sponge their living off him at home.

Noble Sportsmen.

The farmers a few miles east of Erie don't go into raptures when the city sportsmen come down there with guns and hounds, prepared to rake the country scientifically, but they just reach down an old clumsy squirrel rifle, with a stock that reaches to the muzzle, and deliberately knock over the hounds at a length of range that is simply astonishing to the modern Nimrods. Some of the old chaps are so prejudiced, that if it be at long range they consider it fully as good sport to lay out a fox hound as it is to kill a fox.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet banquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Poor Oakland.

The Oakland Daily News lifts up its voice in lamentation over the want of taste shown by the papers which have published an account of how an Oakland deacon fell from grace. It thinks their conduct is detestable. It says:

The scandals that are published in sensation style are sometimes the product of the imagination and are occasionally true. The idea of blackmailing is always connected with them. There is no better reason for narrating the scandalous conduct of some citizen than there would be for drawing aside the veil that screens the hundreds of infamous dens in every large city and exposing to the glare of public scrutiny the scenes of moral degradation that are known to exist.

It thinks that it is just as bad in San Francisco papers to publish scandal about an Oakland deacon as it was for a New York paper (Woodhull and Claflin's Weekly) to publish bad stories about a noted Brooklyn preacher. It does seem almost impossible that any man living in Oakland could act in such a shameful, mean, despicable manner as this deacon is reported to have done. If he had lived altogether in Oakland he would have been virtuous. He spent the greater portion of his time in San Francisco, and probably all the evil of which he was guilty was perpetrated here. We sympathize with Oakland, and would much rather San Francisco should shoulder the blame of this matter. We know lots of men who are virtuous in Oakland, where they have homes, and vile in San Francisco. Oakland really isn't disgraced by this. Oakland is a very nice place, though Laura Fair does prowl about there on Sundays, fraternizing with the wolves in the fold.

A Solemn Warning.

A butcher at Orange, Massachusetts, recently found a ladies' number four rubber overshoes in the stomach of a steer. They are believed to have belonged to an old lady who has been missing for about a month. The solemn warning conveyed by this remarkable discovery cannot safely be neglected by old ladies. Those who are in the habit of wandering about among cattle, and are in danger of being eaten, should always wear gum shoes; first, because they will be apt to find it damp when they get upon the inside; and second, then their friends may know where they went to. Revengeful old ladies, who desire to resent the voracity of the steers that eat them, might gratify their thirst for vengeance by taking an umbrella along, and suddenly opening it in the animal's interior. Such a feat would probably surprise any but an ox with a lymphatic temperament.

Pause, Gentle Reader,

And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents.

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouten has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

It is Perfectly Astonishing

ON BOARD STEAMER S. M. WHIPPLE,
Wednesday Morning, November 27, 1872

☞ We, the undersigned, passengers of the S. M. WHIPPLE, desiring to give public expression to our appreciation of the prompt and meritorious action of Captain Bradbury and officers of said vessel after an unlooked for and wholly unavoidable accident to her working machinery had rendered her helpless, hereby return our hearty thanks to him and his officers for their kindness during our detention and their efforts to make us comfortable; believing that no pains were spared in providing means to that effect: and no inconvenience was entailed upon any of us beyond a few hours delay. And, while we deeply deplore the loss to the travelling public and the owners which will be suffered on account of the withdrawal of the WHIPPLE for three or four days, we cannot but be thankful for the accident which brought to surface such courtesy and consideration (qualities in common carriers which the travelling public will hardly recognize, so long have they lain dormant) as was shown by the officers of the S. M. WHIPPLE on the above occasion.

Alhambra.

The rush to this theatre to see the Great Billy Emerson continues unabated, and those who go after eight o'clock stand but a poor chance of obtaining admission. There will be a Thanksgiving matinee to-day when the full programme will be performed. Nothing is so well calculated to put one in a pleasant frame of mind and make one enjoy the Thanksgiving dinner as the entertainment given by Emerson's Minstrels,

California Theatre.

Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau is excellent in many roles, but those who miss seeing her in her great impersonation of "Christie Johnstone" will certainly regret it. The play is a very good one; the sensation scenes of the life boat in the second act, and the rescue of Charlie Gatty in the last act are most effective. Mrs. Chanfrau is delightfully natural and every character in the piece is well played.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The new season of Italian opera at this house was successfully inaugurated last night. Verdi's grand opera of "Atilla" was presented in a most effective manner. Signor Fulvio Rigo appeared to good advantage in the title role; Signor Silvio Rossi acquitted himself well as Ezio; Signora Luigia Bernardi was excellent in the part of Odabella, and was much applauded. Sig. Pietro Baccel, who is one of the most popular tenors who have ever visited this city, acquired new laurels in the role of Foresto, and F. Daephin and Mons. Boscovieri in the respective roles of Uldico and Leone were very good. The orchestra and chorus under the efficient direction of Professor Mulder did well, and the performance was a highly pleasing one. To-morrow night the ever-popular opera of "Un Ballo en Maschera" will be performed. A Thanksgiving matinee will be given to-day, when the favorite sensation drama of "Aurora Floyd" will be performed. The same play will form the entertainment this evening.

Bella Union.

Many will wind up the social enjoyments of Thanksgiving Day by a night at the Bella Union. They will find any amount of fun there. The very varied and attractive programme which appears on our first page promises a pleasing evening's entertainment for those who visit this popular variety theatre.

The Athenæum.

Charley Nickerson, Miss Claude, Charley Thompson, Maggie Brewer and a host of favorite artistes will appear to-night in a great bill. There is something to please all tastes in the entertainment given at this house.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attendance was fully 10,000 at Woodward's Gardens on Sunday, and the performance of the Conklin Circus Troupe, Professor Samwell's trained dogs, etc., gave universal satisfaction. Circus performances every day. Extra performances on Thanksgiving night and Saturday night.

Mercantile Library Ball.

The ladies are holding a festival here in aid of the California State Woman's Hospital. There will be lunch to-day at noon, and in the evening singing, music, acting charades and dancing. The attendance last evening was very large. A grand Thanksgiving dinner and ball will be given to-morrow.

Horticultural Ball.

There will be skating this afternoon and evening at this fine rink.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Holiday Attractions;

Mr. W. T. Porter, of the California Theatre, has been busy for weeks past in painting scenery for the coming Holiday piece at this theatre, which it is reported, will exceed in the splendor of its appointments anything ever produced in this city.

John Woodard's Benefit.

This gentleman, who has been connected with the Metropolitan Theatre, professionally, since its opening under Manager Bert, will take his first benefit on Saturday evening. The Metropolitan company and a host of volunteers have volunteered for the occasion, and a performance of unusual attractiveness will be given. John is an old stager, a hard worker, and a thoroughly good fellow; and withal, the public are indebted to him for many unequalled stage personations of frontier characters, pioneer miners and "Pikes." The names of some of the volunteers appear in another column. May the old veteran have a bumper.

Diamond Catarrh Remedy

Is a sure cure for Catarrh or Colds. Ask your druggist for it, or send to Dr. A. F. Evoy, No. 9 Post street. Z

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

Sewing Machines for Sale or to Rent,

Slips of the Press.

Lord Brougham was fond of relating an amusing instance of mis-reporting, which was no joke to the victim of it. A Bishop, at one of his country visitations, found occasion to complain of the deplorable state of a certain church, the roof of which was anything but waterproof; after rating those concerned for their neglect, his lordship finished by declaring emphatically that he would not visit the damp old church again until it was put in decent order. His horror may be imagined when he discovered himself reported in the local journal as having declared: "I shall not visit this damned old church again." The Bishop lost no time in calling the editor's attention to the mistake; that worthy thereupon setting himself right with his readers by stating that he willingly gave publicity to his lordship's explanation, but he had every confidence in the accuracy of his reporter. The editor of an evening paper could hardly have had similar confidence in his subordinate when the latter caused his journal to record that a prisoner had been sentenced to "imprisonment in the House of Commons!" In this case we fancy the reporter must have been in the same exhilarated condition as his American brother, who ended his account of a city banquet with the frank admission: "It is not distinctly remembered by anybody present who made the last speech."

The Realistic Drama.

A theatrical manager proposes to produce "Hamlet" with a real brook for Ophelia to drown herself in. This is a good idea; but, to carry it out to its conclusion, he ought to compel Ophelia actually to drown herself. Such a performance would be exceedingly vivid; and, although it would be apt to deprive Ophelia of some of the enjoyment of acting, and to cost the management a good deal for funerals, the public would be strongly impressed—which is the first consideration. There is an additional inducement in the fact that some actresses would represent Ophelia much more gracefully after drowning than before. We have seen Ophelias, who, if they had their deserts, would have been anchored out in the ocean over night the very first time they appeared upon the stage.

Practical Man.

Here is the novel way a Wisconsin man seeks to mend his ways. He posted up the following notice: "Having by a long course of dissipation and debauchery so weakened my will as to be utterly powerless to resist the appetite for alcoholic liquors, and not being particularly anxious to "die and be d——d, as yet," I hereby solemnly swear that I will prosecute to the Ultima Thule of the law, any saloon keeper, druggist, or other person who shall give or sell me any spirituous or malt liquors of of any kind whatever."

Natural Enough.

Read this advertisement, and do not be too much overwhelmed by the magnificence of the princely offer which the advertiser makes:

WANTED—A Christian young lady, to take the charge of five young children, to whom she will devote the whole of her time, and whom she will have to instruct in English, the rudiments of French, music, drawing, the elements of natural science, and calisthenics. To a person of high Christian character, this will be found a most desirable home. Salary $15 a year and washing. Address ——.

It is not very strange under these circumstances that young American governesses who emigrate to England think the best thing they can do is to jump into the Thames.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

STRANGE, BUT TRUE.

BY A FAST YOUNG MAN—NOT ARTHUR.

About a year or two ago,
  When I was young and rather green,
I chanced to meet the prettiest girl
  My youthful eyes had ever seen.

Of course, you have already guessed
  What I am now about to say:
That on the wings of quenchless love
  My tender heart soon flew away.

I swore that Nellie's glossy curls
  Were blacker than the raven's plume;
I thought the tint upon her cheek
  Would shame the rose's velvet bloom.

I raved about her "starry" eyes,
  Compared her hands to flakes of snow;
I said her teeth were shining pearls,
  And called her mouth a coral bow.

Well, strange as it may seem to you,
  Although that girl is just as fair,
With eyes as bright and blue as then,
  And clustering curls of midnight hair;

Though every charm that won my heart,
  Its pristine freshness still retains,
And though her temper's sweet, I own,
  And all her innocence remains;

Yet now my heart doth never beat,
  When noting her unconscious grace,
And, with a cold indifferent eye,
  I look upon her childlike face.

Her kisses are insipid now,
  Her hand I never care to press;
Sometimes I deign to notice her,
  And just bestow a slight caress.

I wonder what has changed me so—
  'Tis true I lead a fastish life;
But this is how it is you know:
  It is because she is—MY WIFE.

—London Figaro.

Some Comfort.

A boy got fooling around his father's horses, until finally one of them put his foot in his face. He was carried in and the doctor sewed up his lips and bandaged his eyes, and poulticed his cheeks, but he puffed up and laid abed a number of days; and when he began to get a little better he called for a looking-glass, and casting his eyes upon it his countenance fell. "Father, do you think I will ever be as pretty again?" "No, my son," the old man replied, "you'll never be so pretty again, but you'll know a darned sight more."

Female "Facts."

According to Haller, women bear hunger longer than men; according to Plutarch, they can resist the effects of wine better; according to Under, they grow older, and never get bald; according to Pliny, they are seldom attacked by lions (on the contrary, they will run after lions); and according to Gunter, they can talk a week.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

Unprecedented Liberality.

We publish in another column a card of genuine thanks tendered by the passengers of the S. M. Whipple to Captain Bradbury and his officers, for their conduct after a slight accident had occurred to the machinery of the steamer last night, which prevented her from reaching her berth until this morning. The meritorious points of the case are, that instead of profiting and extorting by the accident, as is too frequently the case on other traveling mediums, the accommodations of the steamer's berths and tables were tendered to all passengers, and the utmost liberality was extended to them in providing for their comfort by both the captain and owner, Mr. E. K. Whipple, free of all charges. The Whipple will resume her trips on Friday, and should be sustained by the public.

"The Grizzly."

We have received the prospectus of a new weekly journal with the above title, which is to be published in this city on or about December 5th. It promises to be unobjectionable—a nice tame grizzly that won't do any harm. The prospectus says:

> The Grizzly will avoid personal attacks, and never soil his paws with ribaldry; preferring to obtain a character for decency and ability, rather than a reputation which will preclude his introduction into refined circles.

The drama, music, art and literature will receive due attention from The Grizzly. The names of the publishers are not mentioned, but we hear those of Fred Lyster, Tommy Newcomb and other litterateurs in connection with the enterprise.

Decidedly Cool.

The coolest woman yet heard from in Connecticut is a negress who fell into the water at Meriden lately. A man rescued her, and after a profusion of thanks she gently requested him to please hand her an apple which she had dropped into the water—and he did it.

The Effect of the Horse Disease.

An Eastern exchange says that a large and powerful but skittish young man attached to a hand cart, ran away on Main street, Bangor, Me., Monday forenoon, to the great terror of a number of ladies on the sidewalk. He was caught, however, before doing any damage.

A Wicked Wish.

Rev. Robert Collyer wishes "every gin mill chained in the bottomless pit of hell." Mr. Collyer does wrong to wish anything which would encourage emigration in that direction.

Miss Tennie Claflin is said by reporters to talk 315 words a minute. That, of course, is a rough estimate, but it's somewhere in that neighborhood.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Poor Oakland.

The Oakland Daily News lifts up its voice in lamentation over the want of taste shown by the papers which have published an account of how an Oakland deacon fell from grace. It thinks their conduct is detestable. It says:

> The scandals that are published in sensation style are sometimes the product of the imagination and are occasionally true. The idea of blackmailing is always connected with them. There is no better reason for narrating the scandalous conduct of some citizen than there would be for drawing aside the veil that screens the hundreds of infamous dens in every large city and exposing to the glare of public scrutiny the scenes of moral degradation that are known to exist.

It thinks that it is just as bad in San Francisco papers to publish scandal about an Oakland deacon as it was for a New York paper (Woodhull and Claflin's Weekly) to publish bad stories about a noted Brooklyn preacher. It does seem almost impossible that any man living in Oakland could act in such a shameful, mean, despicable manner as this deacon is reported to have done. If he had lived altogether in Oakland he would have been virtuous. He spent the greater portion of his time in San Francisco, and probably all the evil of which he was guilty was perpetrated here. We sympathize with Oakland, and would much rather San Francisco should shoulder the blame of this matter. We know lots of men who are virtuous in Oakland, where they have homes, and vile in San Francisco. Oakland really isn't disgraced by this. Oakland is a very nice place, though Laura Fair does prowl about there on Sundays, fraternizing with the wolves in the fold.

Mouthing Words.

At the last Sabbath service which we had the privilege of attending as listeners, says the Congregationalist, the fine quartette choir sang an impressive opening piece. It was this: solo—"Hyah thar fryar fra mi eia, aw blaw aw mia inquiyah." Chorus—"Cah me maw waya," etc. We mention the fact as some other church quartette may like to purchase the music and perform the same. The effect on the worshipper is peculiar.

Encouraging the Gospel.

They will have the gospel preached in peace at Yorkvile, Tenn., if they have to fight for it. A gentleman named Starkey was promptly shot on the spot for disturbing a meeting there.

Singularly enough, a young man of Covington, Ky., who tomahawked his father and mother recently, has been adjudged not insane.

Pause, Gentle Reader,

And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents.

The Female Mind.

McDonald has evidently left the editorial chair of the Oakland Torchlight. In last Saturday's issue we find the following:

> We are under obligations to the San Francisco FIGARO for an excellent long notice of the Torchlight in their issue of yesterday. From an explanation of the matter which seems to trouble them and the San Francisco press generally, concerning which Oakland alone is concerned, we refer them to an article in another column. The effort of an aspiring San Francisco paper to make a nice sensational article out of the thunder it had procured from the Torchlight fell like a wet blanket on the people of Oakland, who knew more of the affair than the obtuse article conveyed. We suggest that these scandal seekers remain on their own side of the Bay, and they will certainly find all the material there that they may need.

Mac never wrote anything so tame and snivelling as that. One "Dora Darmoore" seems to be brandishing the Torchlight at present, and the paper bears the impress of the female mind. "Dora's" contributions are not strong, and unfortunately they are not always grammatical. Neither she nor the Torchlight will set the bay on fire.

A Diabolical Scheme.

A veterinary surgeon who lives in Buffalo, N. Y., tried to "founder" his mother-in-law by dancing a polka with her until she got warmed up, and then giving her all the iced lemonade she could drink.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

TAXES. TAXES.

1872-73.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT A CERTIFIED copy of the Assessment Book of the taxable proper of the City and County of San Francisco,

Real Estate and Personal Property

For the fiscal year 1872-73, has this day been received; that the State, City and County Taxes for said fiscal year are now due and payable at the office of the undersigned (Room No. 1, City Hall); and that the laws in regard to their collection will be strictly enforced.

Taxes will become DELINQUENT on the FIRST MONDAY IN JANUARY, 1873, and unless paid prior thereto, five per cent., will be added to the amount thereof.

A. AUSTIN,
Tax Collector of the City and County of San Francisco.
oc29-td

TO TAXPAYERS.

Taxes Due October 28th,

Delinquent Jan. 6th, 1872.

THE USUAL DELAY, CONFUSION AND annoyance experienced by Taxpayers will be much increased this year, as both PERSONAL and REAL PROPERTY has to be paid upon at the same time.

This being the case, the undersigned would most respectfully suggest that Taxpayers furnish this office with a schedule of their property at an early day. Where there have been no changes, the Tax Bills of any previous year are the most convenient and correct memoranda.

A. AUSTIN,
Tax Collector.

The Faber Talking Machine.

A musical and scientific entertainment was given, last evening, in the chapel of the College of New York, for the benefit of Prof. Faber, the inventor of the talking machine. The audience was large and the exercises creditable. Prof. Compton's lecture in explanation of the machine was comprehensive and interesting. He showed by experiment and otherwise how sound was the result of vibration in the atmosphere; how a rod, plate bell, string, reed or column of air might be the means of producing these vibrations; how quantity, quality, and pitch were in various ways affected; and how these different means might be united. He then showed how these principles operated in the human voice, and explained in a general way how the machine had been adapted to its work. The working of the machine was of the greatest interest. It lacked perfect distinctness, and spoke slowly, with a monotonous way, but still was a marvel of ingenuity. It spoke English, German and French and concluded much as follows: "Thank you, ladies and gentlemen; I hope you will be satisfied with me—little talking machine, Good-by; adieu."—N. Y. Tribune.

The Baby Boy.

Gail Hamilton writes pleasantly about baby boys in breeches:

"Harry Midgett, come here and be reconstructed. What did you see at the circus yesterday?"

"A 'leffalent and a baby 'leffalent."

"And where is Kathrina gone?"

"Gone to Frank-an-cisco!"—pulling out for freedom.

"Stop. Tell me what is the Japanese Ambassador's name?"

"I-hack-u-ra!"—tugging mightily away.

"How much do you love me? Then you shall go."

"Tin dollars."

"That's all?"

"And a gold locket."

Bless the baby, with or without his troublesome disguises; which, after all, rather emphasize than disguise his boyhood.

A Stinging Rebuke.

They tell a story about an old man who put the saddle hind-part foremost upon his horse while in a condition of dizziness superinduced by fire-water. Just as he was about to mount, a German friend came up and told him to hold on a minute, because the saddle was on wrong and wanted refixing. The horseman gazed for a moment at the intruder, as if in deep thought, and then said:

"You let that saddle alone! How in thunder do you know whichway I'm going?"

And the kind gentleman from Germany passed on.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

Uncertainties of Authorship.

A New York correspondent of the St. Louis Globe, in speaking of the rise and fall of literary celebrities in public favor, says:

Mark Twain (Samuel L. Clemons) was brought to the surface by his "Jumping Frog," and universally advertised by his extremely ludicrous "Innocents Abroad," As the funny man on the Galaxy he was pronounced such a failure that he retired from this department in confusion and panic. His "Roughing It" is wholly inferior to his other book, though it has sold largely. The public are wearying of him a little, and he must arouse himself if he cares for his laurels.

Bret Harte conquered attention by his trifle, "The Heathen Chinee," and his tales in the Overland. Cities and publications bid for him, and Boston and the Atlantic carried him off. Since then he has been stifled almost. We have had no clever thing from him, according to the critics, who consider his greatness at an end.

John Hay came home from Europe, wrote "Little Breeches" and "Jim Bludsoe," and was made the theme of countless paragraphs. His admirable book, "Castilian Days," gave him reputation among the cultivated, but they are the few. He is doing fine and strong work on the Tribune, but he is slipping out of the public eye.

Even Joaquin Miller, the Poet of the Sierras, has almost had his day. His songs are pronounced monotonous, and his genius a manufactured article.

We await, at this moment, another coming man—somebody to put up and pull down. He will be along anon. The question is: Do our humorists and literary lights decline, or do we get tired of saying kind things of them? Do we declare them exhausted because they are such, or because we are merely fickle?

A Severe Case of 'Em.

A Western paper, the Lafayette Dispatch, announces that it has caged an animal in a cellar of that city, which, judging from the description, must be an escaped animal from the singular menagerie spoken of in Revelations. Here is the Dispatch's description: "This animal is said to be about two feet long, with a stout, stubby tail, ferocious looking teeth and mouth, and as many legs, apparently, as a centipede. The animal is covered with a sort of dark fur or hair, spotted with white, and is altogether of so fearful a presence that the cellar has absolutely been abandoned in consequence of it." Has anybody seen that animal? It is feared not, and great sympathy is felt for the Dispatch man. Poor fellow! It will affect people that way, and especially the forty-rod kind sold in Lafayette.

Pause, Gentle Reader,

It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Woman's Fidelity.

We always like to record instances of woman's love and devotion. Here is an affecting case: A man of Matteawan some years ago went West, leaving behind him a young and blooming wife. He returned unexpectedly, recently, and went at once to his old home. He found his wife cooking dinner for somebody else, with a couple of children playing on the floor who didn't belong to the house when he bossed it. "Sairy Jane, here I am again." "Well, Sam, the best thing you can do is to go back again. I've married another fellow." "Sairy Jane, can you have proved so false? Oh, fickle, fickle woman!" "You just get out, and stop calling me names. I like my new husband best, and I don't want you loafing around here and making a fuss." "Sairy Jane, you'll be sorry for this. I came back to you with my heart full of love and my pockets full of money. Will you refuse to return to the heart which is thine always and forever?" "How much money have you got?" "Seventy-five thousand dollars." "Dear Sammy, count me in. I'm yours while the money lasts!" and she threw herself impulsively into her Sammy's arms. This is a very touching instance of a true wife's devotion. The second husband has been heard to say that he isn't going into a decline because of Sammy's return.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

Mrs. P. S. Chenfran has made a great hit in the character of Christie Johnstone. All should see this capital play with its great nautical scenes before it is withdrawn. It will be played to-night, at the matinee to-morrow and to-morrow night for the last time.

Alhambra.

At the matinee yesterday and again last night this theatre was thronged, and all present were delighted with the freshness and originality of the performances of Billy Emerson. The usual Saturday matinee will be given to-morrow, when the full bill which has delighted thousands during the week will be performed.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The weather has set in so decidedly bad that the management have postponed the opera announced for to-night, and substituted Old Block's play of "California" instead. Next Friday night "Roberto il Diavolo" will be presented, the intervening time being devoted to its proper production. To-morrow night John Woodard takes a benefit, when a big bill will be given and a host of volunteers will appear.

German Stadttheatre.

On Sunday the second German dramatic performance of the season, under the management of Chas. Fritsch will be given at the California Theatre. On this occasion, Julius Ascher, the favorite comedian, from the German Theatre of Breslau, will make his first appearance and will perform in three plays—"Jeremias Grille," "Vermischtes" and "Hayman Levi." In the course of the entertainment Mr. Ascher will sing a number of new songs.

Bella Union.

Madame Therese and Mons. Schmidt in the pretty ballet of "The Painter's Illusion;" Cogill and Cooper in their new song and dance, "Happy Jim and Lew;" Johnny Tuers in his original Ethiopian eccentricities; others in varied specialties, and the whole company in "The Death of Macbeth" will afford a lively evening's amusement to those who visit this theatre to-night.

The Athenæum.

Charley Nickerson, the popular Ethiopian comedian, is a great favorite at this house; Miss Claude appears nightly in serio-comic songs; many amusing acts are presented and the entertainment as a whole is a most attractive one. An entire change of performance will be given to-night.

California Olympic Club.

This very popular club will on Monday evening next give one of their charming entertainments at their hall at the corner of New Montgomery and Howard streets. They will be assisted by the following artists, who have kindly volunteered: Miss Annie McKenzie, Signor Baccei, Signor Rossi, Mr. Charles. W. Dungan, Brothers Carlo (William, George and Frederick) in their famous "Triple Parterre." Wm. Carlo in the renowned "Zempillaerostation," who will also introduce the Infant Wonder, Leotard Carle, but 3 years old. Tickets can be procured from members, at the principal stores in the city and at the Hall.

Woodward's Gardens.

The attendance was fully 10,000 at Woodward's Gardens on Sunday, and the performance of the Conklin Circus Troupe, Professor Samwell's trained dogs, etc., gave universal satisfaction. Circus performances every day. Extra performances on Saturday afternoons and Sundays.

City Gardens.

Holland Brothers and others will give their usual circus performance at these Gardens in the Pavilion on Saturday afternoon and Sunday. The new side galleries have been completed, and there will be accommodations for all.

Horticultural Hall.

There will be skating this afternoon and evening at this fine rink.

Anatomical Museum.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

John Woodard's Benefit.

This gentleman, who has been connected with the Metropolitan Theatre, professionally, since its opening under Manager Bert, will take his first benefit on Saturday evening. The Metropolitan company and a host of volunteers have volunteered for the occasion, and a performance of unusual attractiveness will be given. John is an old stager, a hard worker, and a thoroughly good fellow; and withal, the public are indebted to him for many unequalled stage personations of frontier characters, pioneer miners and "Pikes." The full programme appears in another column. May the old veteran have a bumper.

Hayes' Pavilion Burned.

This fine building was totally destroyed by fire early this morning. It was once a popular place of resort.

Lina Edwin's Theatre Burned.

The telegraph announces the destruction by fire of this New York theatre yesterday morning. It had just been leased by Kelly and Leon, who were probably heavy losers by the fire.

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's Wolte House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

THE HINDOO SCEPTIC.

I think till I weary with thinking,
Said the sad-eyed Hindoo king,
And I see but shadows around me—
Illusion in everything.

How knowest thou aught of God,
Of His favor or His wrath?
Can the little fish tell what the lion thinks,
Or map out the eagle's path?

Can the finite the infinite search?
Did the blind discover the stars?
Is the thought that I think a thought,
Or a throb of the brain in its bars?

For aught that my eye can discern,
Your God is what you think good,
Yourself flashed back from the glass,
When the light pours on it in flood.

You preach to me to be just;
And this is His realm you say,
And the the good are dying of hunger,
And the bad gorge every day.

You say that He loveth mercy,
And the famine is not yet gone;
That He hateth the shedder of blood,
And He slayeth us every one.

You say that my soul shall live,
That the spirit can never die—
If He were content when I was not,
Why not when I have passed by?

You say I must have a meaning
So must dung, and its meaning is flowers.
What if our souls are but nurture
For lives that are greater than ours.

When the fish swims out of the water,
When the bird soars out of the blue,
Man's thought may transcend man's knowledge.
And your God be no reflex of you.

Celery as a Nervine.

A correspondent of the Practical Farmer says that it has known many men, and women too, who, from various causes, have become so much effected with nervousness that when they stretched out their hands they shook like aspen leaves on windy days; and a daily moderate use of the blanched foot stalks of the celery leaves as a salad, they became as strong and steady as other people. I have known others so very nervous that the least annoyance put them in a state of agitation, who were in almost constant perplexity and fear and who were effectually cured by a daily moderate use of blanched celery as a salad at meal-times. I have known others cured by using celery for palpitation of the heart.

A subscriber renewing his subscription to the Religious Telegraph, casually remarks: "The tobacco crop is large in our region. As soon as it is out of the way, so that the people can attend meetings, we expect to give our time to the Lord."

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. Lipman has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—The stirring drama of "Christie Johnstone," with Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau in the title role, has drawn crowded houses throughout the week. It will be played at the matinee to-day, and again this evening. On Monday, another play by Mr. Taylenre, entitled "The Wife's Ordeal," will be produced. Mrs. Chanfrau's repertoire is extensive, and she has an excellently well chosen selection of plays. As there will be no repetition of any play after it has been withdrawn, those who wish to see this charming actress through her round of characters, must seize upon the opportunity as it presents itself.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—The reappearance of Billy Emerson at this theatre has created a veritable furore. Night after night the house has been crowded, and hundreds have been turned away, there being no room for them. The bill presented is an excellent one, as may be seen by referring to our first page. Billy Emerson's new songs and jokes are received nightly with roars of laughter. The full programme will be performed at the matinee to-day. As no less than five lines of cars convey passengers to within a stone's throw of the Alhambra Theatre, a rainy night should have no effect on the attendance.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—An immense bill will be given to-night for the benefit of the deserving stage manager, Mr. John Woodard, and a large number of professionals have volunteered for the occasion. The performance will commence with "The Soldier's Bride," with John Woodard in his favorite character of Bernard, after which the Carlo Brothers and M'lles Carlo and Gracie; balacca trapeze by the Iron Boy; W. S. Lawton and others in gymnastic feats; Maggie Moore in songs and dances; C. Edmonds will recite "The Light Brigade," J. C. Williamson will recite the "Charge of the Dutch Brigade," and Mamie Wells will give "The Little Wee Dorg." The entertainment will conclude with the thrilling "Niagara Leap," by Curtis and Pellom. An immense bill like this, taking into consideration the popularity of the beneficiary, will insure a big house to-night. To-morrow night "Under the Gaslight" will be performed.

GERMAN STADT THEATRE—NEW ARTISTS.—On Sunday the second German dramatic performance of the season, under the management of Chas. Fritsch, will be given at the California Theatre. On this occasion, Julius Ascher, the favorite comedian, from the German Theatre of Breslau, will make his first appearance and will perform in three plays—"Jeremias Grille," "Vermiechtes" and "Heyman Levi." In the course of the entertainment Mr. Ascher will sing a number of new songs.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—The management announce for to-night the first appearance of the London comique, Charles Varner; the local sketch entitled "1849 and 1872; or, the Rip Van Winkle of the Pacific Coast," and a very varied programme of songs, dances, acts and ballet which is given in full on our first page.

THE ATHENEUM.—A great Saturday night bill has been prepared at this cosy little theatre. Four end men and a double company of stars will delight the audience with song, dance, joke and anecdote. Miss Claude is a great favorite, and Charley Nickerson is the most original of Ethiopian comedians.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS—IMMENSE RUSH.—The attendance was fully 10,000 at Woodward's Gardens on Sunday, and the performance of the Conklin Circus Troupe, Professor Samwell's trained dogs, etc., gave universal satisfaction. Circus performances every day. Extra performances on Saturday afternoons and Sundays.

CITY GARDENS—CIRCUS COMBINATION.—Holland Brothers and others will give their usual circus performance at these Gardens in the Pavilion on Saturday afternoon and Sunday. The new side galleries have been completed, and there will be accommodations for all.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

MERCANTILE LIBRARY HALL.—This evening will be the last of the pleasant Ladies' Levee now being held at this Hall. The Kensington Choral Club have volunteered for the "Old Folks' Concert." Charades and comic tableaux will also be given. Lunch from 12 to 3 to-day. Spend fifty cents in the evening most pleasantly, and support a worthy charity.

THE CALIFORNIA OLYMPIC CLUB.—This very popular club will on Monday evening next give one of their charming entertainments at their hall at the corner of New Montgomery and Howard streets. They will be assisted by the following artists, who have kindly volunteered: Miss Annie McKenzie, Signor Bacosi, Signor Rossi, Mr. Charles W. Dungan, Brothers Carlo (William, George and Frederick) in their famous "Triple Parterre." Wm. Carlo in the renowned "Zampillaerostation," who will also introduce the Infant Wonder, Leotard Carlo, but 3 years old. Tickets can be procured from members, at the principal stores in the city and at the Hall.

CLIFF HOUSE.—A dash out to the Cliff House between the showers is very pleasant. In Captain Foster's comfortable hostelry one can listen with indifference to the storm without.

THE PROTECTIVE ORDER OF SEALS.—This association formed of members of the minstrel profession and others, for benevolent and social purposes, will meet in Charter Oak Hall, Market street, near Fourth, on Tuesday afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

THE WORRELL SISTERS.—These very popular actresses will arrive during next week, under engagement to the Alhambra Theatre. Miss Lillia Hall arrived last night. As the Alhambra is thronged every night, no other attractions than the great Billy Emerson and his troupe of minstrels will be required next week. The Worrell Sisters will probably open on Monday, the 9th inst., in "Ixion," reconstructed and localized for the occasion.

JIMMY MURPHY.—Dennis Murphy, known in the minstrel profession as Jimmy Murphy, a very clever jig dancer, died yesterday. Whisky did it. Jimmy was 28 years of age.

HAYES PARK.—This building which was destroyed by fire yesterday morning, was a well built and admirably arranged structure, three stories in height. The main saloon or concert hall was on the ground floor, and was 120 feet by 80, exclusive of a large stage with a gallery, 320 feet long, running around the upper portion. A large refreshment room, together with an immense reception parlor, dressing rooms, billiard saloon, etc., were in the building. Attached to the pavilion was a garden of ten acres, which was not injured by the fire. It covers the whole block between Hayes, Laguna, Grove and Lincoln streets. The entire cost of the building of and fitting up the resort exceeded ninety thousand dollars. It was built about ten years ago by Thomas and Michael Hayes and was for many years a popular Sunday resort. Here it was the Buislays made their first balloon ascensions, drawing crowds numbering thousands. In November, 1863, Angelo Chiarini, of the Martinetti Troupe, while making an ascent on a tight rope to the roof of the Pavilion, fell, receiving injuries from which he died within a few weeks. During the past few years Hayes Park had lost its prestige as a pleasure garden, and the Pavilion was only used occasionally for a German festival or military ball.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

STOCKTON.—Frank Hussey, Miss Blanche Clifton and others played "Hazard" to a poor house on Monday. The play was repeated on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

PETALUMA.—An amateur concert was given at the theatre on Friday last, for the benefit of Miss Sofa Tate; the participants were Misses Sofa Tate, Ida Barnes, Lizzie Smith, Eva Tibbets, Belle Pairbeete, Ella Longee, Hattie Tibbets, and Messrs. Plewelling, Rasard and Edminister, all acting under the direction of Mrs. H. L. Weston. The New York and San Francisco Circus and Hippodrome will perform next Tuesday.

GRASS VALLEY.—The Union says: "The beautiful Oratorio, entitled Queen Esther, will be given in Grass Valley, by resident musicians of Nevada City and Grass Valley, sometime about the 13th of December. The Oratorio has been in rehearsal for some time, and those who have attended rehearsals say that a splendid musical treat is coming. The singing will be for the benefit of the Episcopal Church."

OAKLAND.—An operatic concert for the benefit of Madame Blaechi is to be given at Brayton Hall on December 7th.

VIRGINIA CITY.—The Virginia Amateur Minstrels, Harry Deno, Billy Veily and others gave an entertainment last Saturday night, which was well attended and generally enjoyed.

VALLEJO.—Wilson's Circus on the 27th.

NAPA.—Wilson's Combination Circus performed here on the 28th.

HEALDSBURGH.—John Wilson's San Francisco Circus is billed to perform here to-night.

SALEM, O.—Charles Vivian, Marie Gongain, and others gave an entertainment on the 22d.

PORTLAND, O.—Miss Edith O'Gorman gave her last lecture on the 25th at Masonic Hall. The Waldron dramatic company were playing heavy pieces, such as "Jack Cade," with farces as after-pieces.

SALT LAKE.—F. M. Bates and the stock company are playing melodramas.

CARSON.—J. H. Church's Minstrel and Variety combination are playing at the theatre, to good business.

SAN JOSE.—Frank Hussey's combination opened at the Opera House, Thanksgiving night to "a good audience." It being a holiday night San Jose might have turned out for the occasion but a San Jose "good audience" has a suspicious flavor about it.

SACRAMENTO.—The company from the Alhambra of this city, headed by Baker and Farron opened at the Metropolitan Theatre on Monday night, and have been doing good business ever since. "Chris and Lena" has caught the Sacramentans, and is the town talk.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York the Italian opera company at the Academy of Music was to have given on the 11th a repetition of "La Nozza di Figaro," but as Mme. Lucca was afflicted with a severe cold, the bill was changed to "Crispino e la Comare," with Miss Kellogg as the heroine. The boxes were quite full, and the auditorium at large had a two-thirds complement. Miss Kellogg was in excellent voice, and, together with Ronconi, was well applauded and encored. A morning paper published an ecstatic account the next morning of Lucca in "Le Nozze di Figaro" the previous evening, and, on learning its blunder, coolly the next day gave the following: "One of our contemporaries kindly furnished a very prettily written critique of Lucca's Cherubino, as sung on Monday night. It was very well done, the only difficulty being that Lucca was sick at home, her pretty throat was done up in red flannel, and she couldn't sing a note." On the 13th, instead of Madame Lucca in Faust, as intended, Miss Kellogg sang in "La Traviata"...... At Booth's Theatre the Boucicaults were succeeded by "Romeo and Juliet," supported by J. E. Wheelock as Romeo and J. W. Wallack as Mercutio. The Tribune, in a column article on the performance, says: "Miss Neilson's Juliet is a young, beautiful, passionate Italian girl, impetuous in all things, proud but gentle, fiery but tender, capricious but true—to whom mere existence is an ardent joy, and to whom first love comes like a revelation from heaven. We know not what steel-like intellectual coldness may underlie all this. As the ideal was depicted so we must accept it—and it was depicted, both as to spirit and form, with all the warmth and all the delicacy required by Shakespeare's original. The actress possesses natural advantages for the part—a fitness to it, that is, as to general appearance and temperament—which we have not seen excelled of late years. Feminine softness pervades the whole personality that was expressed through the medium of her art. She does not, in other words, appear to be the kind of woman that wishes to go to Congress or to drive an omnibus. Her fitness for Juliet, we are free to add, was seen to be supplemented and re-enforced by artistic faculty and taste. Although Miss Neilson is young in years, she is ripe in professional experience. Her personal appearance is thus described: "She is slender in figure, but not attenuated; her head is small; her features are regular; her eyes are dark and luminous; her hair is brown; her mouth is full and sensitive; her voice is very sweet; and the carriage of her head and person denote a bright intelligence and pure refinement that are very gratifying to the sense of that beauty, uniting moral, mental and physical clearness and worth.'' ..... At the Fifth Avenue "The Merry Wives of Windsor" was being played......At the Grand Opera House, "Le Roi Carotte"......Olympic Theatre, "Aladdin No. 1," Miss Lydia Thompson, Harry Beckett, Willie Edouin and others ..... Union Square Theatre, "Agnes" .....Wallack's Theatre, "Our American Cousin," E. A. Sothern ......Tony Pastor's, Miss Annie Hindle in character songs......Niblo's Garden was to open on the 25th......Of James M. Ward in "Buffalo Bill" at Wood's Museum, the Mercury says: "Ward is a young man who, like many others, felt that he could never attain competence in a stock company, and therefore tried starring in a sensation play. His head was level. He appears to succeed." Another baleful star in the shape of Johnny Thompson, the lively friend, succeeded Ward on the 18th......Ricardo was the latest addition to the San Francisco Minstrels' Company......Miss Annie Adams made her reappearance at the Theatre Comique on the 11th.

Maggie Mitchell was announced to appear in Cincinnati, Ohio, on the 18th, for two weeks.

John Hooley's eldest son commenced at Hooley's Opera House, Brooklyn, recently, appearing in the olio part, and creating a favorable impression.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Albaugh are doing well throughout the West. They appear in J. J. McCloskey's drama of "Poverty Flat."

Frank Mayo, New Orleans, 23th, two weeks.

Johnny Allen, Little Mack and Alice Harrison, St. Joseph, Mo., 13th, one week; Omaha, Neb., 25th, one week.

Mr. and Mrs. Boucicault, Globe, Boston, 18th.

McKee Rankin's "Rip Van Winkle" Troupe, Lockport, N. Y., 27th and 28th.

Charles Howard, Globe, Chicago, Dec. 4th.

Agnes Sutherland is cruising with Cool Burgess's Troupe in Canada small towns.

The celebrated and highly-attractive Mejiltons advertise the speedy production of a new and extraordinary nondescript eccentricity, in which the entire family will join. In addition to the three well known members now here, the Misses Carrie and Scottie Mejilton will leave England in December to join their sister and brothers. Miss Marie has proved so immense attraction. A natural desire will exist to see her sisters.

The last New York Clipper has the following concerning a California favorite shortly to make his reappearance here:

John T. Raymond, who may be classed amongst the best comedians upon the American stage at the present time, has, by care and attention to business, raised himself to an exalted position in the opinion of the critics of Boston, Mass., in which city he has acted during the past two seasons, at the Globe Theatre. Having obtained a few months' leave of absence, he has arranged for a brief series of star engagements, and during a portion of that time will act at the California Theatre, San Francisco, Cal., where, for several seasons, he held the position of leading comedian, and met with high favor both from the press and public. He will commence his tour with an engagement at the Varieties Theatre, New Orleans, La. Mr. Raymond is a thorough artist, possessing great facial expression, a keen appreciation of wit, a fund of humor, and certain magnetic powers which apparently permeate his audiences, placing them at once in sympathy with himself. He is neither addicted to "mugging" nor grimacing, but is content with presenting a natural embodiment of his own quaint conception of the character represented, and the best deserved compliment which we can pay him is, that the art by which he accomplishes his effects is almost entirely concealed.

Sheridan and Mack are at Fox's American Theatre, Philadelphia.

Philadelphia is a bad show town, if we may judge from the following, which we clip from an Eastern exchange:

E. L. Davenport's appearance at the Chestnut-street Theatre, Philadelphia, last week, was productive of very good results, still there is a chance of improvement—not in the gentleman's acting, but in the appreciation of the public for dramatic performances. The only establishment in that dead and alive town that has done anything worth speaking of is the Walnut, and had it not been for Mr. E. A. Sothern it would have shared the same fate as others. The Arch is doing but little, with no chance of improvement, which speaks badly for the second city in the Union.

Miss Charlotte Thompson commenced an engagement at the Academy of Music, Chicago, on the 18th, appearing in "One Wife."

Mr. O. R. Gardiner, of the Academy of Music, Chicago, has leased the Opera House, Milwaukie, for a term of five years.

It is said that Mr. Augustin Daly has leased the Trimble Opera House, Albany, and will open it early in December.

Mr. Oliver Doud Byron commenced an engagement at the Griswold Opera House, Troy, on the 18th.

H. J. Byron's drama, "Haunted Houses," is in preparation at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia.

Mr E. L. Davenport is playing the legitimate at his own theatre in Philadelphia.

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

Mr. Henry Irving, who has recently risen so rapidly to dramatic eminence in England, will probably accompany Miss Bateman to this country.

Gounod is shortly to produce a new three-act Italian opera in Paris, and will also superintend the production of "Romeo et Juliette," at the Opera Comique.

Miss Nelly Power, of the Vaudeville Theatre, London, lately saved the life of a drowning girl at South End. "More power to her elbow."

Signor Tito Mattei has written an opera entitled "Maria di Gand," which is to be produced in Paris at the beginning of the next season.

The Menestrel announces that Signor Arditi has been engaged to accompany Adelina Patti during her tour through the United States.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas-light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cozy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

A Once Famous Actress Gone.

Lady Beecher, once the celebrated tragic actress Miss O'Neil, died October 28th. Eliza O'Neil was the eldest daughter of John O'Neil, manager of a company of comedians who visited the small towns of Ireland. Her mother's maiden name was Featherstone. As a child, her services were called into requisition early, and her powers were first tried at Drogheda, playing the Duke of York to her father's Richard III. Engaged by Talbot, the lessee of the Northern Circuit, consisting of Belfast, Newry, and Londonderry, her fame rapidly extended. Eventually, John Kemble's offer of an engagement for three years at a salary of £15, £16 and £17 per week, was accepted, and Miss O'Neil came to Covent Garden, where she made a brilliant debut on the 16th of October, 1814, appearing as Juliet. Of a medium height, fair complexion, and features of a Grecian mould, she possessed great personal charms; her voice was soft, flexible and melodious. Conway was the Romeo of the night; Jones, Mercutio; and Mrs. Davenport, the Nurse. On the 13th of October her Belvidera further established her reputation, and the house was crowded every night she appeared. Her last performance in London was as Mrs. Haller in "The Stranger," on the 13th of July, 1819. She shortly afterwards fulfilled a few provincial engagements, and then retired from the stage on her marriage with Mr. William Wrixon Beecher, then M. P., for Mallow, December 18th, 1818. On the death of his uncle in 1831 Mr. Beecher succeeded to a very ancient baronetcy, and his wife became Lady Wrixon Beecher. Lady Beecher who had been for some years a widow, was the mother of the present baronet and a numerous family. A happy life came to a peaceful end.

Pause, Gentle Reader,

And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy: and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capitol Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

To-night Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau will enter on the third week of her highly successful engagement at this theatre. On this occasion will be produced for the first time on any stage a new society play entitled "A Wife's Ordeal." This is from the pen of C. W. Tayleure, whose other productions, "The Elopement" and "Christie Johnstone," received such marked expressions of favor from the San Francisco public. The cast of the drama with Mrs. Chanfrau as Leonie de Sarville appears on our first page.

Alhambra.

Billy Emerson will to-night enter on the second week of his engagement at this house, and as a matter of course there will be no standing room after eight o'clock. An entirely new bill will be presented. Billy Emerson will appear in the first part, in song and dance, and in the act of "Obeying Orders." J. G. Russell, Bob Hart, Charles Sutton, Sam Rickey, and all the other bright stars of this famous combination, will take part in the brilliant programme which appears on our first page.

Metropolitan Theatre.

John Woodard had a capital house on the occasion of his benefit on Saturday night and the programme was very well performed. Miss Maggie Moore fairly brought down the house in a song and dance, and J. C. Williamson made a great hit in his new and original parody entitled "The Charge of the Light Brigade." This evening the very popular sensation drama of "Under the Gaslight," which was so satisfactorily performed last night, will be repeated. Miss Minnie Wells will shortly make her appearance in "The Lion of Nubia."

German Stadttheatre.

The California Theatre was thronged last night on the occasion of the German performance under the management of Charles Fritsch, when Julius Ascher, a comedian from the German Grand Theatre of Breslau, made his first appearance. Mr Ascher was highly successful, keeping the audience in a roar of laughter while he was on the stage. He was ably supported by Mme. Ottilie Genea and others.

Bella Union.

The local sketch entitled "1849 and '72," which was produced on Saturday night caused great amusement. J. H. Larkin as Wip Rinkle, who slept all through the flush times of California, and woke again after the railroad had been completed, did some capital acting, and was well supported by Harry Sinclair, Mat Kelly, R. G. Marsh, Minnie Fillmore, and others. This was preceded by a good first part and amusing interlude. Charles Vernon, who made his first appearance on this occasion, made a good impression in comic and serio comic songs. The ballet of "The Painter's Illusion" is retained on the the bills, and altogether the programme is a very lively and attractive one.

The Atheneum.

Charley Nickerson, Charley Thompson, Johnny Kelly, Tommy Rosa, and a host of others will appear to-night in a very varied programme. Miss Olanda will appear in songs and and dances; Miss Zoe in ballads; Maggie Brewer in fancy dances, and others in various specialties.

California Olympic Club.

This very deserving organization will give one of their popular entertainments this evening at their their new hall, corner of New Montgomery and Howard streets. The club was organized in November, 1871, and it already consists of nearly 800 paying members, forty of whom are life members. The success of the club is owing to the good management and experience of its officers, and to the splendid style in which the gymnasium and other apartments are fitted up. The reading and chess rooms are furnished in the most elegant manner, and everything conducive to the comforts of the members, provided for them. The members will be assisted in their entertainment by the following artists, who have kindly volunteered: Miss Annie McKenzie, Signor Baccei, Signor Rossi, Mr. Charles. W. Dungan, Brothers Carlo (William, George and Frederick) in their famous "Triple Parterre." Wm. Carlo in the renowned "Zampillaerostation," who will also introduce the Infant Wonder, Leotard Carlo, but 3 years old. Tickets can be procured from members, at the principal stores in the city and at the Hall.

Woodward's Gardens.

Every Sunday thousands of people visit these gardens, and the attractions during the week draw immense crowds. New pictures have been added to the Art Gallery, and shortly a magnificent fountain will be erected in the amphitheatre in the menagerie department.

City Gardens.

Holland Brothers and others will give their usual circus performance at these Gardens in the Pavilion on Saturday afternoon and Sunday. The new side galleries have been completed, and there will be accommodations for all.

Anatomical Museum.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

The Worrell Sisters.

These charming burlesque actresses arrived in this city on Friday evening, and will, with Miss Lillie Hall, commence an engagement at the Alhambra Theatre on Monday next. "Ixion" will be the first burlesque and it will be reconstructed and localized for the occasion.

A Distinction.

Two persons were in a railway carriage, one of whom wore a badge. The other said:

"Will you permit me to light a cigar?"

The man with the badge replied:

"No, sir, I will not on any account."

Scarcely had he uttered these words than drawing a cigar from his pocket, he proceeded to light it. The other cried indignantly—

"You won't allow me to smoke and you smoke yourself."

"Pardon me," said the man with the badge, "I don't forbid you to smoke, but as to giving you permission to do so, that is impossible, for I am one of the inspectors on the line."

Rose Leclercq.

At latest dates Rose Leclercq had been playing for the past few weeks at the Princess', London, with Phelps and Creswick in "Othello," and "Macbeth," and Nov. 2d was to be her last appearance on the London stage for some time. She was shortly to appear in the provinces. Miss Leclercq was born in Liverpool, the third daughter of parents who for many years enjoyed high distinction in the theatrical profession. Her father, the late Charles Leclercq, was a Belgian, and the son of Pierre Leclercq, who was born in Chainay, in Hainault, and who served for a long time in the Spanish army as officer in the Flemish Company of King Charles the Third's Body Guard. The French Revolution of the eighteenth century drove Pierre Leclercq, his wife and their infant son Charles to London. There are still many professionals and playgoers who speak admiringly of the acting and dancing of Charles Leclercq and his accomplished wife. He died in 1861 and his wife has long since retired from the stage. While her sister Carlotta was acting under the late Chas. Keane's management at the Princess', Mr. and Mrs. Kean had several times noticed that Rose was unusually bright and intelligent for her age, and on the occasion of the performance of "The Tempest," at Windsor Castle, before the Queen, the Prince Consort and the Royal Family, the small part of Ceres was assigned to her. Mr. Kean was Prospero; Mr. Ryder, Caliban; Carlotte Leclercq, Ariel; and Kate Terry, also a child, Iris. The evident nervousness under which the youthful representative of Ceres labored, and the pretty manner in which she spoke the lines set down for her, did not fail to excite for her the interest of the Queen, who asked many questions about her and expressed herself much gratified by the little girl's performance. From this time Rose occasionally appeared at the Princess', but the parts entrusted to her were small and unimportant, and it was not until the production of John Brougham's "Playing with Fire," that she had an opportunity of showing whether she possessed much ability. Since then she has become popular.

Doctor Boudin, in a paper read before the Paris Academy of Medicine, calculates that the maintenance of the dogs existing in Europe costs more than fourteen thousand pounds sterling per day, or more than fourteen millions and a half annually.

It has been discovered that the laundresses of Paris are more given to suicide than any other class, and in 88 cases out of 100 they drown themselves. They stick to water.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. Lipman has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preperation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

Who have been suffering from various complaints for years, are obtaining relief from Dr. Alkin, at 137 Montgomery street. Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the 'Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated. •

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. z

Pause, Gentle Reader,

And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents.

An Uncharitable Paper.

Tha Yreka Journal is a cold cynical journal. Most of the interior papers are geniel and kind. Thoy gush over presents of strawberries presented to them by ladies, and huge eggs laid on their aditorial tables, and write elaborate critiques on mammoth squashes. The Yreke Journal is not a paper of this kind. Here is one of its uncharitable sayings:

Mrs. Fair threatened to prosecute the proprietors or lessees of Platt's Hall for refusing it to her for a lecture, they saying they did not know it was engaged for Mrs. Feir. Mrs. Fair claims she sold hundreds of tickets, and thereby has sold hundreds of people, who will never see their money again.

The Journal actually thinks Mrs. Fair would be guilty of keeping that money! Then again the Journel isn't religions; it sneers at the church thus:

"Which are the more efficacious for the spirit in purgatory, masses or preyers?" was the question put by Father Mangone, of Virginia City, to the Irish spirit McDonough. "Messes," was the answer. This convinced the good Father that the spirit was reliable, for the priests get well paid to say masses, but prayers are not profitable.

The Yreka Journal ought not to say such things as these. The San Francisco papers would not, for fear of losing subscribers.

New Song.

The dramatic critic of the Call accuses Billy Emerson of singing a comic song entitled "The Emersonians." Billy himself seems to be in blissful ignorance of any such song ever having been sung—by himself or any one else. Does the Call critic remember any of the words?

A Dark Mystery.

A women in black, closely veiled, goes up and down the streets of Vincennes, Indiana, o' nights, armed with pistol and knife, hunting for "a man." Nobody goes near her to molest her for fear he may be the man she is hunting.

A Graphic Description.

Judge Wetberel, a prominent character in De Forrest's new story in the Galaxy for December, is compared by his sprightly niece to an umbrel'a, there being little of him beside a frame and a black covering.

Clerical Comfort.

Dr. Chapin thinks that such calamities as that of Boston "advance the individual man to higher grandeur." We presume it is difficult for beggared Bostonians to see the "grandeur" of it.

Wit.

The New York Times has discovered that "wit is not an agricultural product." We presume it is a hot-house plant, hard to cultivate out of its native land.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Nice Old Custom.

In a place in Scotland called Coupar Angus they have a pleasant habit of announcing intended marriages by sending the town crier through the streets, armed with a bell, to call out the name and the time, with a request to any one who has objections to spit them out. Imagine a modest young man by the name of Zuinglius Potterkins having laid his heart at the feet of the fair Aldebella Smallerin, and having that heart accepted. He then goes to the town crier blushing and trembling, and announces the time of the marriage, and the town crier is called in to receive his instructions. Suppose Zuinglius followed him in his rounds and heard him cry at the top of his voice: "Hear ye! hear ye! Zugles Botherins to Arybeller Swallerkin (he'd be sure to have the names wrong), in the kirk, on Sunday. Any one knowing any reason why the marriage shouldn't take place, let it now be known." Zuinglius would probably hear excellent reasons why he shouldn't marry. Wouldn't the women meet at doorsteps and tell each other how he was throwing himself away on the silly chit of a girl? And maybe the men wouldn't speak of that blested fool Zugles being about to get married—a man that can't support himself taking upon him the responsibility of a family? Not at all. They would speak of him in such kindly terms that he would feel perfectly satisfied to retire to the silence of the tomb. If we were living in Coupar Angus we'd put a stop to the practice of town criers doing the marriage announcements. On Fifth street there is a German gentleman who rejoices in the sweet and romantic name of Heinrich Zimmerstingfleischmaker. We'd have him go over there and get married. When the town crier came to bowl out that name he'd either crack his jaw or burst a blood vessel. Either would be sufficient to put an end to the town crier's labor in this peculiar line.

Corrupting Nature of Politics.

The Danbury News says: Mr. Charles Agnew, of Slawson, was supposed to be a model citizen in every respect, but upon being nominated for assessor, it transpired that he was in the habit of beating his wife, had killed one of his children by exposure and neglect, had stolen live geese feathers from the dying pillows of the poor, poisoned an uncle to secure his property, and picked the pocket of the clergyman who married him. When Mr. Slawson was nominated he made a neat little speech thanking his dear friends for the honor conferred upon him.

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

California Theatre.

Mr. Taylaure's new play, entitled "A Wife's Ordeal," produced at this theatre last night, was evidently taken from the same play from which Miss Charlotte Thompson derived her piece entitled "One Wife," the production of which caused such a sensation in New York from the undisguised literalness of the translation and its transference of the scene to the United States. Mr. Taylaure in his adaptation, has toned down the glaring immorality of the original, and makes the play convey a moral which will suit the audiences of the new world. The plot is simple: Leone de Surville (Mrs. F. S. Chanfran) discovers her husband, Adolphe, (John Wilson) in an intrigue with her bosom friend Mathilde de Boise, (Miss Helen Tracy) wife of Gustave Boise, (Henry Edwards) who has every confidence in her discretion and scorns being jealous. Adolphe de Surville is infatuated with Mathilde de Boise; he deceives his wife no to the last moment; she still loves him and saves him from falling by the hand of the injured husband. Mathilde de Boise has more lovers than one, Auguste de Morel (W. A. Mestayer) is one of them. At the end of the play Adolphe de Surville witnesses a moonlight interview between Mathilde and Auguste, is convinced that he has been a fool, falls at the knees of the wife whom he has just before told that he has ceased to love her and asks her forgiveness. She seems glad to get him back at any price, so we suppose the audience should be satisfied. Mrs. F. S. Chanfran read and acted the part of Leone de Surville most effectively. Miss Annie Graham had not much of a part in Mme. Therese Brevost, but filled it in a pleasing, lady-like manner; Miss Helen Tracy did some good acting as Mathilde de Boise; John Wilson did not appear very lovable in the character of Adolphe de Surville, but shone in the "cruel" scenes; Mrs. Judah as Mme. de Persigny was admirable, and made many points; Eben Plympton as Gabriel the valet, made the most of the part avoiding over-acting. Mrs. Saunders, Miss Nellie Cummins, J. C. Williamson and others, filled in the parts of this society play in good style. "A Wife's Ordeal" will be presented until further notice and will doubtless draw.

Metropolitan Theatre.

"Under the Gaslight," was repeated at this theatre last night and was capitally performed. A better impersonation of Laura Courtland than that given by Miss Sallie Hinckley has seldom if ever been witnessed. W. Ellmere was effective as Ray Trafford, Charles Edmonds good as Snorky, and John Woodard excellent as Byke. The Railroad scene was admirably worked up, and the performance gave general satisfaction. Mr. Barry does a capital bit of acting as Counsellor Splinter. This play will be performed again this evening.

Alhambra.

The new programme produced at this house last night proved an immense success. Billy Emerson surpassed himself on the end in the first part and in song and dance in the interlude. The act of "Obeying Orders," by Billy Emerson, Bob Hart and Charles Sutton, caused much amusement and the sketch of "The Taxidermist," in which Sam Rickey, Bob Hart and others appeared concluded one of the bills of the season. The performances of Giovani Campodonico still form a feature of the entertainment at this house and excite wonder and admiration.

Bella Union.

Charles Verner, the London comique, is a favorite in serio-comic songs: J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong are great in Dutch acts; the ballet of "The Painter's Illusion" is very pretty and attractive; Cogill and Cooper gain much applause in song and dance, and the extravaganza of "1849 and 72," in which the whole company appear, winds up the evening's entertainment in good style. On Friday evening J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong, two of the most popular members of the Bella Union company, will be the recipients of a complimentary benefit, for which a host of volunteers will appear.

The Atheneum.

"The Double-bedded Room," "Sublime and Ridiculous," "Old Times Rocks," and "Music Lesson," are some of the amusing acts to be performed to-night by Charley Nickerson, Charley Thompson, Johnny Kelly, Tommy Ross and others. A fine melange of songs and dances is also given.

Woodward's Gardens.

Every Sunday thousands of people visit these gardens, and the attractions during the week draw immense crowds. New pictures have been added to the Art Gallery, and shortly a magnificent fountain will be erected in the ampitheatre in the menagerie department.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Platt's Hall.

To-night a festival in aid of Grace Church will commence; it will continue four evenings. Mrs. Jarley's Waxworks will be a feature in the entertainment. To-morrow evening there will be singing by Miss Sonntag, Signor Baccei and Signor Bigo, and recitations by J. C. Williamson, W. A. Mestayer and Henry Edwards.

Horticultural Hall.

There will be skating assemblages held at this hall every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons and evenings. The rink is in perfect order, and is 100 by 175 feet in dimensions.

California Olympic Club.

There was a brilliant assemblage at the Hall of the California Olympic Club last night. The entertainment was a great success; the musical portion by Miss McKenzie, Signor Baccei, and others, was very good, and the members of the club and the professionals who volunteered gave a series of remarkably clever gymnastic performances.

Ralph Phelps.

Ralph Phelps, husband of Fanny Morgan Phelps, the actress, and himself known as a theatrical manager in Oregon and in the interior of this State, lost his life by an accident on board the steamer Ajax on the 14th of last month, on his way to Honolulu where his wife was awaiting him to accompany him to Australia. Mr. Phelps was struck by a strap block which sprang from its fastenings and struck him on the head, fracturing his scull. Ralph was a brother of A. B. Phelps, well-known in the profession.

From Australia.

The steamer Ajax which arrived yesterday from Australia, brought Signor Orlandini, the baritone, and J. H. Le Roy, an actor, husband of Madame Duret, who is at present in this city.

Guiseppe Chiarini.

This famous circus manager will leave for Australia via New Zealand on the steamer Dakota on Thursday. After showing in New Zealand, Signor Chiarini will proceed with his company to Australia, where he intends remaining for some eighteen months. It is the opinion among professional people here that Manager Chiarini will literally coin money in the island continent, as no such company as he is taking with him ever visited the country before. As an upright, able and liberal manager, Sig. Chiarini has the best wishes of all who ever had dealings with him for his future success. He takes the following members of the profession with him, most of them under engagements for eighteen months: Sig. G. Agrati, business manager; Joseph Rowe, the old California circus pioneer; Miss E. Ruiz, Miss Relee Cuba, Miss Amelia Bridges, Miss Caterina Momene, Miss Jennie Kemble, Mrs. Fanny Carlo; Messrs. W. O. Carlo, O. Carlo, F. Carlo, Adolph Gonzalez, E. Rowland, H. Dorr, J. Worland, J. Fellom, Wm. Phillips, Jose Romans, N Marinhero, Giovanna Stella, Fred White, Dan Stevenson, J. Black; Masters Leotard Harry Cadona J. Emerson, La Petite Emilie, thirty-two horses and ponies, monkeys, and a trained guanaco.

Reflections.

Honesty—An excellent joke.

Money—The god of the country.

Wealth—The most respectable quality of a man.

Water—A clear fluid once used as a drink.

Esquire—Everybody, yet nobody, equal to Colonel.

Tongue—A little horse that is continually running away.

Modesty—A beautiful flower that flourishes in secret places.

Jury—Twelve prisoners in a box, to try one more at the bar.

Editor—A poor wretch who empties his brains to fill his stomach.

Doctor—A man who kills you to-day to save you from dying to-morrow.

State's evidence—A wretch who is pardoned for being baser than his comrades.

Bargain—A ludicrous transaction, in which each party imagines he cheated the other.

The grave—An ugly hole in the ground which lovers and poets wish they were in, but take uncommon means to keep out of.

My dear—An expression used by man and wife at the commencement of a quarrel.

An Ornament to the Church.

A Terre Haute boy of tender years has drowned 17 kittens, tied pans to the tails of 9 dogs, brushed his father's new silk hat against the grain, and blown up a pet canary with a fire-cracker, in the last month, and still his mother intends him for the pulpit.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restore the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. n

The Policemen of London on a Strike.

That most harmless of Englishmen, the London policeman, has got his back up. Wages is the trouble this time. These individuals will consent to sink their individuality under some designation as A 1,509, or B 161, have actually become bellicose. At first 80 then 200 resigned, and finally not a policeman (the gentry won't allow them to be called officers) was to be seen at all. Taking into account that the uniformed nonentities never kill a man in order to capture him, and never get broke for insolence, the reader must decide whether the yearly salary of $300 a year is enough or not. Meantime who shall arrest the striking policeman? Is the "awmy weally loyal" when dangerous duty is required? Will the Guards go out in the rain without umbrellas? But here are more of these blamed conundrums.

A Monster.

There is a man in Buffalo who must hate Shakspeare with deadly rancor. He is building a theatre in that city for the accommodation of amateur actors. He ought to put this legend over the entrances: "Mangling done here."

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and "the Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there. The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Boston Reproved.

The New York Tribune takes Boston to task for refusing aid from the outer world. It concludes a long editorial on the subject as follows:

> The citizens of Boston, who refuse outside aid for these unfortunate working people, take upon themselves a serious responsibility, and we presume they will meet it. It will be their fault, after this, if a single sufferer goes cold, or hungry, or homeless. Their own gifts must be prompt and munificent. But after they have raised all the money they can have a good use for, the fact will still remain that they have checked generous and ennobling impulses by their ungracious repulse of a very kind deed. Boston, which knows so well how to give, does not know how to receive.

There will probably be a great immigration of "sufferers" into Boston during the winter months, and if that city doesn't feed them and clothe them all, the Tribune will howl at her and say, "We told you so." As the charities of Boston are among the best regulated in the world, we have confidence in that city's being able to manage its own affairs in this particular.

Didn't Want to be an Angel.

A visitor at one of our Sunday schools, a short time ago, perceived one little boy covered with perspiration of buttons, singing "I Went to be an Angel" with such vigor and earnestness that he grew red in the face. Watching for that boy to emerge from the portals of the sanctuary, the visitor called him aside. He told that boy that he had observed with what apparently heartfelt enthusiasm the scholar had screamed out his anxiety to become an angel. The monitor told that boy that he would give him half a dollar if he would say honestly that he wanted to be an angel, and if not, what he would like to be. The scholer looked solemn for a moment, clutched his half dollar so as to be certain of that anyhow, and said he believed he would like nothing better than to be captain of a canal boat. It seems to us wrong to compel these ambitious children to tell fibs while they are singing in Sunday school.

Strange!

A liveryman in Richmond, whose horses were sick with the epizootic, was advised to try bran mash. He was seen winding his way home very crookedly toward night. He said he had been trying "bran' (hic) smash all day for his horses, but they didn't seem any her'rer."

Thomas Carlyle recently told Dr. Cuyler that "England has gone clean down into an abominable and damnable cesspool of lies, and shoddies, and shams!"

Mansard, the original architect of roofs of that name, was a Frenchman, and died in 1666.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer.";
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Miss Adelaide Neilson.

We give the following sketch of the professional career of the reigning dramatic star in New York:

Miss Neilson is a native of Saragossa, Spain, where she was born in 1849. Her father was Spanish, her mother English. When about the age of thirteen she went to London. On visiting the theatre she was attracted to the stage, and mingled dramatic studies with those of her school. In the year 1865, at the age of sixteen, she made a first appearance in London, at the New Royalty Theatre, as Juliet, having previously played only six times at theatres of neighboring towns. Though having learned English in early days from her mother, she still spoke with a lingering foreign accent. Notwithstanding this drawback, and that of inexperience, she made a success, and engagements were subsequently procured for her in a round of legitimate characters at several other London theatres during succeeding years. She had married before going on the stage a Mr. Lee, the son of an Episcopal minister, who was rector of a parish near London. Her husband was a man of means, and she did not therefore feel compelled to enter a stock company. She confined herself to the characters of her choice, and played a number of engagements in the provinces. She became thoroughly introduced to the London public last season as heroine of the great spectacular play of "Rebecca," which was produced with great magnificence at Drury Lane, and enjoyed a long run. Everybody saw it, and consequently everybody saw and admired Miss Neilson. Her acting was fine, and her beauty great. Her face, notwithstanding her Spanish birth, is of English type. Her liquid eyes are soft and winning, her hair is a dark brown, and her cheeks wear a rich glow of health. She is of good height, and classically symmetrical. The stage name used by her is that of her mother. It was thought preferable, for an English actress, to the Spanish name of her father. Her slight foreign accent has been long since overcome.

The Discovery of Higgins.

Stanley had considerable trouble in discovering Livingstone, but we don't suppose that this fact will prevent Livingstone from going and losing himself again. Other great men beside Livingstone have been lost. Under the head of "Heard From," a recent number of the Monmouth (N. J.) Inquirer has the following:

> We notice by a late number of the Southern Californian, published at Anaheim, California, that Mrs. A. Higgins is practising as a physician, and that Dr. W. M. Higgins is keeping a drug store in that city. They were formerly of Monmouth county. In the same paper we find a synopsis of a speech delivered by Dr. Higgins at a Grant and Wilson meeting.

The Higginses are found. There does not seem to be much excitement in New Jersey over the matter—only a quiet feeling of gratification.

Stopping a Work of Grace.

The young ladies who jam tracts through the bars to the prisoners in the St. Louis jail, being on missions of love and consolation, sandwiched the harmless literature with sentimental notes to some of the handsomest of the incarcerated. Whereat the warden has interdicted the work of regenerating the prisoners' hearts, and missionary skirts no longer rustle in the corridors.

The following advertisement appears in a Canadian paper: "Will the gentlemen who stole my melons last Saturday night be generous enough to send me a few of the seeds, as they are a choice variety?"

A Musical Criticism.

The following is a happy burlesque upon the hifalutin style of the musical critics on some of the big dailies:

The composition (Shoo Fly) is well known to musical people as one of the most difficult, with crescendo and diminuendo movements that puzzle even masters in the art. The expression necessary to give effect to the first strains and bring them out with due crispness is hardly ever rendered with sufficient force and artistic finish. For this reason was the performance last night so remarkable.

The solo in the first part, performed on a fish horn with great clearness and purity of technique, rendered the inflection on the "bother me" wonderfully effective. Just then the voices rose with magic thrills, and brought in the "shoo fly" of the succeeding line in a fugue arrangement. Taking up this, the tin kettles chanted, "I feel, I feel, I feel, I feel like a—" But at this point fell in the brasses and other harmonies, with a perfect radiance of sound, "That's what my mother said," and overwhelmingly, grandly, beyond all description, rose the finale—"Upon this nigger's head." The excellent manner in which one kettle was managed and all the resources of that wonderful instrument exhausted, bespoke an artist who had conquered all difficulties of execution. The whistles, also, keeping a marvellous fugue time, tore across the wealth of harmony with notes bursting upon the ear at times wholly unexpected. As for the cowbells, it carried one to scenes the most idyllic and Alpine to hear their twinkle, and clang, and the soft tremolo that accompanied their pianissimo movements. They could not have sounded more natural on the neck of a town bull. It is owing to them that the tone of the musical picture was preserved. For they brought out the innocent and rural air which tints the composition of "Shoo Fly," and they were a perpetual musical reminiscence of the parable, "Gone to Grass."

A Model Lord Chancellor.

Justin McCarthy thus describes Sir Roundell Palmer, the new Lord Chancellor of England: "He is the greatest English lawyer now living. He edits hymn-books, composes hymns, is a splendid debater, very conscientious, dresses like an undertaker, and is possessed of profound knowledge."

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

The Bivalve.

This famous oyster house having been refitted and improved, is now under the management of H. E. Besthorn, assisted by "Henry," so long known in the oyster business. The best wines, liquors and cigars are kept. The best cooks and waiters in the State are employed. The neatly furnished rooms up-stairs for families and supper parties have long been a feature of THE BIVALVE, No. 640 Market street, near Kearny. P

Alhambra.

Billy Emerson continues to delight immense audiences at this popular theatre. The finale to the first part—Bob Hart's sketch entitled "The Arizona Diamond Mines," is very amusing. Sam Rickey, Bob Hart and Charles Sutton cause much laughter in the amusing sketch entitled "High Tragedy," and altogether an excellent programme is performed. Miss Jennie Worrall and Miss Lillie Bell Hall will make their first appearance on Monday next.

California Theatre.

The thrilling drama of "The Wife's Ordeal" draw another good house last night, and Mrs. Chanfrau's delineation of the character of Leone de Survilis was generally admired. This play will be performed for the last time to-night. To-morrow night, an entirely new version of 'Aurora Floyd," by Mr. Taylenre, will be presented for the first time. "Alladdin," the holiday piece on which so much money and so much of Porter's, the scenic artists', valuable time is being spent, is underlined.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The play of "Under the Gaslight" is presented in excellent style at this theatre. Miss Sallie Hinckley, Wm. Barry, and many popular favorites are in the cast which appears on our first page. The next sensation at this theatre will be the appearance of Miss Minnie Wells in "The Lion of Nubia," when, we understand a real live lion will be introduced on the stage for the first time in California.

Bella Union.

Mons. Schmidt and Madame Therese will appear to-night in the beautiful ballet of "The Painter's Illusion," supported by Ed Montague, Miss Minnie Fillmore, Miss Josephine, M'lle Gerratta and others. Charles Varner will give comic sketches and songs, and the performance will conclude with the local sketch entitled "1849 and '72."

The Athaneum.

Miss Olande in song and dance; Charley Nickerson, Charley Thompson and others in acts; Lydia Livingstone in songs; Miss Kitty Zoe in ballads and a host of others in specialties will appear to-night.

Ned Deavas.

This gentleman, who has been laid up with a broken ankle for the past two months, will have a benefit tendered to him by the Veterans of the Mexican War, his old brothers in arms, and his present brothers of the profession, at the Metropolitan Theatre on Saturday night.

Woodward's Gardens.

Every Sunday thousands of people visit these gardens, and the attractions during the week draw immense crowds. New pictures have been added to the Art Gallery, and shortly a magnificent fountain will be erected in the ampitheatre in the menagerie department.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

An Eye to Business.

A lady was riding in a Lone Mountain car the other day, the only other occupant of the car being a tall gentleman, with cadaverous countenance. The lady was dressed in deep mourning, and her fair, interesting face looked out from a shadowy veil. After riding a block or two, the gentleman edged up to her quietly, and said, "Lady." She did not understand him at first, and did not look around, supposing that he was talking to himself. "Lady," said the firm, deep voice. She turned around and met the full gaze of the cadaverous eyes. "Lady," said the speaker, coming an inch nearer, his eyes looking sympathetically at her black attire, "lady," wouldn't you like something in the tombstone line?" The car-strap was pulled a veil let down, and the lady vacated the car with a lurking smile on her face.

Good Stock.

The first-class stores in this city are the ones which do the best business. A. Greenbaum and S. L. Jacobs appreciate this fact, and have a first class establishment at 233 Kearny street, where they keep the very finest brands of Havana cigars, choice tobacco, and also a choice assortment of meerschaum pipes, which they will offer during the coming holidays at very reasonable prices.

Mrs. O'Leary wonders "if them Bosting spalpeens will be after schwearing that it was her poor baste of a cow that burned their city."

The President's Message.

Peace and prosperity are the key notes of this document. Cheapness and durablity are the characteristics of H. Luchsingar's furniture. All should visit his emporium, 731 Market street, and ascertain how cheaply a house can be furnished. D

"Mollie, darling, don't you want to buy a doll? Take your money to Hobbert, 155 Third street. He will suit you." D

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

500 Pairs of Socks,

A Captive Hoodlum.

Louisville, Ky., can boast the champion naughty boy. He is by name John McNamara. His workhouse experiences have been of the most extensive nature, and the penitentiary has long marked him for its own. John, in addition to his many other bad habits, had a propensity to stay out late o' nights. His father remonstrated with the unruly olive branch, whose pride and manly dignity being deeply wounded thereat he knocked the meddlesome old gentleman on the head with a club, danced on him, stabbed him, and treated him to several attentions of a similar nature, until he nearly ended the earthly career of the old gentleman. John justified himself on the ground that he was old enough to take care of himself. The court agreed with him thoroughly but did not think he was fit to take care of himself, but considerately determined that the State should take care of him for the remainder of his natural existence. If proud-spirited sons are to be checked in this manner for merely rebuking parents, it will completely cow their noble natures, and bring them down to the level of the dutiful children of the story books. Poor John! We don't wonder he threatened "to cook the old man's goose" if he ever got out of prison again. But, as there is no likelihood of this, the "goose" will have to wait indefinitely for the the promised kind attention. When will father's learn to to be obedient to their children?

A Healthy Girl.

A Rochester boy teased his girl for an hour to go out and take a lunch with him, and she at last consented. Though not feeling hungry in the least, she managed to get away with a stew, a plate of raw, a white fish, an Irondequoit trout, two quail on toast, a glass of sherry, and a half pound of caramels. Her escort left for Denver the next day.

Very Strong.

A San Francisco correspondent of the Virginia Chronicle, of anti Gorham proclivity, says that Gorham has as much show of going to the Senate as Mrs. Fair has of going to Heaven without repenting and hanging herself.

A proprietor of a soothing syrup frankly says that after the baby has taken one bottle of it he will never cry any more.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

Mike the Journalist.

Mike De Young of the Chronicle entered his name on the Great Register with the following description of his profession, Journalist. We object to this, and hope that in succeeding Great Registers this misstatement will not occur. Horace Greeley was a journalist, Mike De Young is not. Drumming up advertisements is not journalism. We do not accuse Mike of willful misrepresentation; he no doubt thinks he is a journalist, but he isn't. "Journalist" is a good respectable title, and we don't like Mike to spoil it. If it is all the same to Mike, it would pain us less if he would call himself "Litterateur" or "Feuilletoniet" in the next Great Register.

Etiquette for Theatre-goers.

Be sure when you go to theatre a that you wear a pair of creaking boots, and get in after the performance begins. You are sure to create a sensation. You can go boldly as all the chairs are fastened to the floor" Always get up in the middle of the last scene, and creak your way out. By this you show independence of character. Do not be afraid to express your views while the actors are on the stage. You've paid your money, and you can act the part of the hog if you choose.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corvillo, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the 'Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1015 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. n

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy, Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

Strict Rules.

Our friend Jackson went the other day to Laurel Hill cemetery with four bouquets. He was afterwards going out with two of them when he was stopped at the gate.

"Where are you going with those flowers?" asked the gate keeper.

"To the Catholic Cemetery."

"You can't take those flowers out of here."

"But I brought with me four bouquets. I can surely take two out with me."

"It is against the rules."

"Allow me to explain. I have placed two bouquets on the grave of my first wife, who lies here, and I am going to take these to the Catholic Cemetery, where my second wife lies buried. I do not wish to make her jealous."

The gate-keeper was inflexible and Jackson had to take the two bouquets back and place them with others on the grave of Mrs. Jackson number one. This forced Jackson to buy four more bouquets to place on the grave of Mrs. Jackson number two, in the Catholic Cemetery, for unless he did so she would certainly be jealous.

Dredging Her Out.

An Indianapolis girl is afflicted with a manie for stuffing articles into her ears. The doctor who is treating her has already washed out five pieces of straw, two of coal, an apple seed, two small chicken bones, a piece of gravel and a black beetle. She is anxious, it is evident, to turn herself into a perambulating horticultural, agricultural and zoological museum. The doctor should not be permitted to interfere with her laudable scientific efforts.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

LETTER FROM CHICAGO.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

CHICAGO, November 23d, 1872.

DEAR FIGARO:—Another week has rolled around since my last, and traveling facilities about town are still demoralized. The average amusement patronage has, however, been better than that of the preceding week, in spite of the wintry weather which has set during the last few days.

M'VICKER'S THEATRE.

At this house Miss Maggie Mitchell has pleased fine audiences by her personation of Marie in "Pearl of Savoy." On Monday (25th) she will appear in "Jane Eyre." After Miss Mitchell's engagement comes Jane Coombs in "School for Scandal."

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Miss Charlotte Thompson has been playing "One Wife" to crowded houses. The impression made by Miss Thompson has been a favorable one, and we are prepared to see her play to as large houses the ensuing week, when she appears as Ogarita in "The Sea of Ice." On Friday she takes her farewell benefit, on which occasion a dramatic novelty entitled "The Coming Man" will be produced. On Sunday Miss Alexander will tell what she knows of "five years in Brigham Young's family." The next attraction after Miss Thompson will be the Lingard Combination. A new drop curtain is being painted for this house, and other improvements are being made to welcome the great array of talent that is to appear this season. On Thanksgiving evening a grand bal masque will be given, which will be attended by the full dramatic corps of the city.

HOOLEY'S OPERA HOUSE.

Johnny Allen, Little Mac and Miss Alice Harrison put in an appearance on the 18th in "Schneider." They gave a feast of fun, and the attendance was good. Mr. C. W. Graves as Bottle deserves credit; he is gaining a large circle of friends by his amiable manner both on and off the stage. On the 25th "Rip Van Winkle" will be produced; Johnny Allen as Rip, Henry Wilson as Derrick, C. L. Graves as Cockle, Miss Harrison as Menie, Mrs. Jernagan as Gretchen.

AIKEN'S THEATRE.

Geo. L. Fox and "Humpty Dumpty," with its supple melange of olio features, remains here for one more week. There has never been a performance of the kind in Chicago which gave such general satisfaction. On the the 29th Geo. L. Fox, on the occasion of his benefit, will drop into comedy, and play Wormwood in "The Lottery Ticket." On Monday, Dec. 2d, Rubinstein will show Chicagoans how to to play the piano. The regular company of this house are at present engaged at Hooley's, supporting Johnny Allen.

MYER'S OPERA HOUSE.

A new bill brimming over with burnt-cork business is announced this week by the Arlington, Cotton and Kemble Minstrels at this popular place. The Reynolds Brothers (late of your city) are here. Billy Rice, J. H. Milburn and Mackin and Wilson put in an appearance Monday evening.

NIXON'S AMPHITHEATRE

Closed this week for changes and repairs, to prepare for M'lle Morlacchi, who will open on the 27th with a strong combination consisting of professionals from some of the prominent Eastern theatres. The opening attraction will be a new version of "The French Spy," with "Toodles" as an afterpiece.

WEST SIDE OPERA HOUSE.

The Zig Zags have been the attraction of late, in combination with the regular company. No new attractions are announced.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Josh Billings on Cockroaches has come and gone—a lecture, I mean. Cady Stanton, the veteran woman suffragist, whose white locks and sweet face make everybody love her whether they approve her sentiments or not, comes to this city under the auspices of the Star Lecture Course this week.

The Adelaide Phillips troupe has billed the town for two concerts under the Star Lecture Course management.

Prof. Youmans, editor of the Scientific Monthly, will deliver one of his popular lectures at the Michigan-avenue Baptist Church on the 27th. Subject, "Chemistry of the Sunbeam." WILL.

The Significant Hat.

In the time of Gessler and William Tell there was much significance in a hat. So it is now. The first thing that attracts the eye is the hat. Therefore buy fashionable hat at "The" Hat Store, 647 Washington street, below Kearny.

Dr. Doherty

Has devoted his study more particularly to chronic and specific practice, and as such is now the most successful of any Physician in San Francisco. Office 519 Sacramento street, corner of Leidesdorff, a few doors below What Cheer House. z

Formerly of Bass House Carriages, can be found in front of Coleman Bros. clothing establishment, southwest corner Bush and Montgomery sts., or Dexter Stables. Carriage orders left at either place promptly attended to day or night, at reduced rates. BG

Bad Spells.

A Massachusetts man attempted suicide at Buffalo, by cutting a fearful gash in his arm. He gave no explanation of the act, other than at times strange spells came over him. If strange spells would cause all men to commit suicide, there would be a good many coroner's inquests. The fellow who writes to us about once a week, and spells curious, "kewrus;" private, "preyvat;" animal, "enymuil," and so on, would get his name into the papers at last. Mrs. Fair's bad spells may lead to her turning her derringer on herself, but we don't think they will.

A Terrible Snub.

Bret Harte was announced to lecture in Boston two or three weeks ago upon the "Argonauts of '49," but failed to put in an appearance. Mr. James Redpath apologized to the large audience and said: "This is the third time the 'Heathen Chinee' has insulted a Boston audience, and I think it is high time this man is taught his place." Bret Harte writes to the Advertiser, throwing the blame of his non-appearance on Mr. Redpath, who, he says, did not come to his terms.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.
The play of "The Wife's Ordeal" with its keen analyses of character, thrilling scenes and exciting denouement will be performed again this evening. To-morrow night Mr. Tayleure's new version of "Aurora Floyd" will be presented with Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau as the heroine. "The Wife's Ordeal" will be performed for the last time on Saturday at the matinee.

Metropolitan Theatre.
A capital bill will be presented this evening The performance will commence with the romantic drama of "The Osiner's Cave," after which Douglas Jerrold's ever-popular nautical drama "Black-eyed Susan" will be presented with Miss Sallie Hinckley in the title role and Charles Edmonds as William. "Under the Gaslight" will be played at the matinee on Saturday. On the occasion of the benefit of Ned Deaves, which is to take place on Saturday evening, a very attractive entertainment will be presented, and his talented little daughter, Miss Bellie Deaves, of the California Theatre company, will appear in a good role.

Alhambra.
This theatre is positively thronged every night. The bill is a splendid one. "The Arizona Diamond Mines" is a pleasing feature; Billy Emerson is great in the first part, in song and dance and in the act entitled "Obeying Orders" The sketches entitled "The Taxidermist" with which the performance concludes, is wonderfully funny, and the capers of the elephant send the audience into roars of laughter.

Bella Union.
Mat Kelly's negro act of 'The Two Alike" is very amusing; J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong are great in "Der Deitcher Dwins;" Cogill and Cooper gained much applause in their original song and dance "We Throw Ourselves Away," and the local sketch of "1849 and '72" is full of fun. J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong will take their benefit to-morrow night and present a great bill.

The Atheneum.
"The Double Bedded Room," in which Charley Thompson, Charley Nickerson and others appear is full of fun. A number of other highly amusing acts are presented, and a host of popular favorites appear in songs and dances. The four end-men make the first part particularly lively.

Pacific Hall.
The Fair for the benefit of Grace Church attracts a large and fashionable crowd every evening. To-night there will be tableaux and recitative ballads.

Woodward's Gardens.
Every Sunday thousands of people visit these gardens, and the attractions during the week draw immense crowds. New pictures have been added to the Art Gallery, and shortly a magnificent fountain will be erected in the ampitheatre in the menagerie department.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

The Jury System.

Spain is about to establish the system of trial by jury, and it would do well to give it some modifications. We English speaking people have inherited this venerable institution from the barbarous days of King Alfred, and some of its barbarisms have been cherished as if they were the most sacred part of the heritage. It is about time to lop them away, and make the selecting of jurors a process for obtaining the judgment of sensible men, and the verdict of juries a rendition of justice which shall represent the will of the law-making and law-observing portion of the people.

Moonstruck.

A Bridgeport man spent three-quarters of an hour the other evening trying to pick up a piece of moonshine from his doorstep. His afflicted wife finally came out, brought him to consciousness by the aid of a loose fence slat, and steadied his tottering steps into the house.

Just So.

One of Charles Lamb's friends visiting him, with his wife and children, happened in the course of the conversation to repeat the old saying, "One fool makes many." "Ay, indeed," said Lamb, merrily, pointing to the children, "you'll have a fine family."

The President's Message.

Peace and prosperity are the key notes of this document. Cheapness and durability are the characteristics of H. Luchsinger's furniture. All should visit his emporium, 751 Market street, and ascertain how cheaply a house can be furnished. D

"Mollie, darling, don't you want to buy a doll? Take your money to Hohbert, 135 Third street. He will suit you." D

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyers's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

The Best Place to Buy

TO THE DIAMOND FIELDS.

AIR—"Ten Thousand Miles Away."

I'm going away to the diamond fields,
In Arizona's clime,
And come back with my pockets full,
To sell you all so fine;
And come back with my pockets full
Of precious stones, so gay-ay-ay—
And take your gold, while I know you're sold,
And then I'll hie away.

CHORUS—Then blow ye winds, I, oh!
To the diamond fields I'll go;
I'll stay no more on Frisco's shore,
To Arizona I'll away;
And return with a ruby rare,
To make the "sharps" all stare,
Then I'll laugh at the way they're sold
By the bubble of to-day.

I'll come back with my pockets full
Of specimens so bright,
To make you think I found them all
By seeking day and night;
By seeking day and night, my boys,
In Arizona's plains and hills—
For the stuff you've seen to start this scheme
Which my pocket nicely fills.

Now all you folks who diamonds want,
To Arizona hie,
And if the gems you cannot find,
Some Indian fighting try;
Some Indian fighting try, my boys,
And we your valor will applaud—
If you lose your hair, do not despair,
But thank the diamond fraud.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3d. I. M. W.

A Frenchman in Berlin.

The Paris Figaro lately sent a correspondent to Berlin, and some of the comments of this gentleman—which should of course be taken cum magno grano—are highly entertaining, and must, we imagine, have tended as much to the amusement of the Berlinese as the comments of M. Assolant on London did to that of the English some years ago. Referring to their domestic habits, Mons. d'Annay says: "The Berlinese, the greatest gluttons in the world, take some refreshment at eight, and a regular breakfast at ten; at one they dine, at four they have their first supper, and between nine and ten a second. But even all this amount of eating fails to satisfy their voracity, and there have consequently been established numbers of pastry cooks, where they satisfy their cravings between-whiles." The only institution in the Prussian capital on which this arch critic deigns to bestow praise is the police service. This he admits is in all its departments admirably effective. "You can positively walk the streets in safety at all hours. And when it is remembered that the cabarets here are open all night, and that half the population gets drunk daily, this is saying a good deal." We think so, indeed, and should be very glad if we could say as much for some of our cities, where neither are the cabarets open all night, nor half the population each day far gone in their cups.

A Necessary Advance.

An amusing instance of the prevalent tendency to advance prices comes from Sheffield, Eng., where the price of milk has been advanced to four pence a quart, owing as the milkmen ingenuously explain, to the new act forbidding the adulteration of food!

Why, Indeed!

An inebriate stranger precipitated himself down the depot stairs, and on striking the landing reproachfully apostrophized himself with: "If you'd been a wantin' to come down stairs, why'n thunder didn't you say so, you wooden-headed old fool, and I'd a-come with you and showed you the way."

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

A Question Settled.

The Leipzig Signale tells a good story in connection with the late Beethoven Festival. The housemaid of a well-known professor there came to her mistress while the festival was in progress, and said: "Please excuse my asking a question; cook and I have been disputing about who Beethoven was; I maintained that he was the inventor of railways, and that is why the festival is held." On her mistress explaining to her that Beethoven was the greatest of musicians, she answered: "Well, at all events, I am glad that cook is wrong, too, for she said that he was a great general."

A new book—"Ebenezer Divorced," a sequel to "Ebb Tide."

A Pleasant Location.

Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Sonchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Pause, Gentle Reader,

And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents.

A Pleasing Religion.

A religious sect has sprung up in London, which, if it continues and increases, will certainly make some noise in the world. The real name of it has not been reported to us, but the ungodly style it "The Howling Repentants." The main business of the votaries is to howl. At stated periods during the day they elevate their voices, and twice during the night they get out of bed and howl. Divine service they conduct in the open air, probably for fear of bringing down the roof. We mourn to say that the police are hard upon these devotees, and so often conduct them to the station houses, where, if they go on with their exercises, they are probably gagged.

Reflected Greatness.

Hale and hearty persons who have passed their hundredth birthday are becoming so common that they no longer possess special special attractions, and are fobbed off with such mere incidental mention as this: "A child was born in Boston last week which has a great-great-great-grandmother living who is over one hundred years." Why the children thus born to great-great-greatness through no particular merit of its own should be made the prominent personage in the above recital is difficult to explain otherwise than upon the ground that New England celebrity is chiefly a matter of reflected greatness from past generations.

An Attendant Cyclops.

A French paper gives a detailed account of the manufacture of false eyes in Paris, from which the curious fact appears that the average sale per week for eyes intended for the human head amounts to four hundred. One of the leading dealers in this article carries on business in a saloon of great magnificence; his servant has but one eye, and the effect of any of the eyes wanted by customers is conveniently tried in this servant's head, so that the customer can judge very readily as to the appearance it will produce in his own head. The charge is about ten dollars per eye.

A Detimined Physician.

An old Dutch disciple of Esculapius, named Van Oldenburg, was sent to prison in Brooklyn, recently, for giving a young lass the alternative of taking the place of his old wife or being shot. She didn't scare worth a cent, but had the old fellow arrested. It seems very unprofessional in a doctor to talk of shooting anyone whom he wishes to kill. Surely he must know better ways than that.

Appreciation.

The Inter-Ocean, of Chicago, says th the other night, as Miss Charlotte Thompson reached the climax of her "tearing passion to tatters," an emotional negro in the gallery could not restrain his feelings any longer, and gave utterance to a prolonged "O—h!" which brought down the house and proved an effectual climax.

Straddle-Bugs.

In California society, straddle-bugs form quite a numerous class. The big bugs do not scorn to be found in company with straddle-bugs. There is the female straddle-bug, who preserves a firm footing in good society, though she is not entirely in it. It is strongly suspected that at such times when she is not at the parties of the creme de la creme of San Francisco society she is associating with those who could by no means obtain admittance to that which no one seems to question the right of the straddle-bug to enjoy. At the matinees there are hundreds of female straddle-bugs to be seen. One does not know to which class they belong—the "bad" or the respectable. Sometimes one of these poor straddle-bugs loses its footing and tumbles on the wrong side. Woe to it then. Society is roused, and rushes to trample it down lest it should again venture to intrude. It is a settled straddle-bug. During the late unpleasantness between the North and South there were any number of straddle-bugs doing business in this city—not foreigners, either, but true-born Americans. You could not tell which side they were on. Towards the close of the war these straddle-bugs all flopped over to the Union side of the fence. The newspapers of San Francisco as a rule belong to the straddle-bug class. The Call is a born straddle-bug; it never could stand fairly on one position. It straddles every question, and never has an editorial without a "but" in it. The Alta is not quite so widely straddled; it stands firmly with the wealthy classes, and its motto is that a poor man has no right to an opinion. It occasionally tries to straddle over to reach the laboring classes on some important question, but it hurts it to do so. Some straddle-bugs actually try the experiment of straddling between God and Mammon, forgetting that the Good Book tells them this feat cannot be accomplished. Straddle-bugs are not as a rule comfortable animals; they don't enjoy life. Some of them actually feel more at their ease when the struggle is over—when they lose their footing and fall on the worst side. They are a numerous and not altogether uninfluential class.

Love and Murder.

The man who lives in the Southwest and couldn't write a dime novel per week out of the neighborhood gossip is a being whom it would be flattery to describe as stupid. Here is one day's occurrence, for instance, the scene being laid in Kansas. The local paper says: "A young mulatto named William Drake, whose course of true love was somewhat roughened by the opposition of his proposed father-in-law, waylaid a funeral cortege on its return from the cemetery, and with the assistance of three of his brothers, shot the old man, abducted the girl, took her to Lawrence and was married in the street, the constable who had him in arrest kindly waiting until the ceremony was performed before taking the bridegroom to the calaboose. Jordan Cownch, the father of the girl, is seriously wounded." Change the location to Spain, call William Drake Don Alfonso and old man Cownch Senor Miguel Cigarros, and what a fine plot for a serial!

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

The San Francisco Public.

The Boston Saturday Evening Gazette gives due credit to the San Francisco public for preventing Mrs. Fair from delivering her lecture:

Mrs. Laura Fair seems to be the most brazen and shameless of her species. The blood of her victim is scarcely dry upon her hands; she has just drifted out of the awful shadow of the gallows; she has not washed herself clean of the unsavory taint of the prison from which she came forth a self-proclaimed wanton, and, despite the verdict of a jury of idiots, a cold-blooded and vengeful murderess, before she thrusts herself, in a flaunting, daring and shameless manner, quite her own, upon public notice. Instead of hiding her head in shame, instead of veiling her face whenever she was forced to go where honest people might pass her by, instead of seeking solitude where she might repent of her sins and offer up prayer of gratitude for her but ill-deserved escape, this creature boldly comes forward and defies public opinion. She proposes to lecture, taking for her text "Wolves in the Fold." Who could speak so well on this subject as she? What a wolf she proved in poor Crittenden's fold! How she tore, mangled, and terrified, in her savage and cowardly way, shedding blood in sheer and blind wantonness. To the credit of the San Francisco public be it said, they hunted her down like the beast of prey she is. She was not allowed to insult decency by appearing before the community to boast of and to justify her crimes. She cowered, whimpered, and trembled in the hearing of the hooting and yelling crowd that threatened vengeance upon her, and at length was compelled to creep away by back streets and devious ways back to her lair, to meditate upon the situation in which she is held. The bitterness of the future in store for her is worse than death. Deserted, execrated, and an object of contempt for the slow, unmoving finger of scorn to point at, her punishment will be more terrible to her than all the fearful anticipations of the gallows.

A Wee Bit of Romance.

A wee bit of romance has just come to light, and of the good old-fashioned kind. The heroine is a very worthy young lady, Miss Matilda Phillipps, who has been for studying the art divine in Italy. The old adage, "A faint heart ne'er won fair lady," has been for once reversed, and just in this way. By some means or other, a young man fell in the water at Genoa, and would have drowned had he not been rescued by Miss Phillipps. It was a very brave deed on her part, but a good one. The best of the whole affair lies in the the following crisp words, which she sent to her sister: "We are great friends ever since, and he can scarcely do enough for me. I have had beautiful letters from his mother and sister, and I feel so happy to have done anything to bring so much happiness to anyone." The name of the young man she familiarly terms Walter. Now, you know how the story will end, as well as we!

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Grateful.

An Indiana editor lay down his shears for a few moments to write a double leaded editorial, in which he plaintively remarks that we are the recipients of half a peck of nice onions, two watermelons and a bottle of ginger beer from one of our subscribers. The gifts were like the shadow of a rock in a weary land. We are glad someone has remembered us amidst our labors and cares, and evinced that remembrance in so delicate a manner. We dote on onions and love melons dearly; and so long as the fragrance of the former and the gripes of the latter linger about us, we shall hold the kind donor in affectionate remembrance. Of ginger beer we have not been able to speak enthusiastically, but may say our children enjoyed it greatly, while the empty bottle added not a little to the effective force of our office armor. These little acts inspire us to renewed exertions, but our subscription price will be the same.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.
To-night O. W. Tayleure's original version of "Aurora Floyd" will be produced for the first time, Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau playing the title role. Miss Braddon has endorsed this version as the best dramatization of her story ever written. A matinee performance will be given to-morrow, when the thrilling drama of "The Wife's Ordeal" will be presented for the last time.

Alhambra.
"The Arizona Diamond Mines;" the performance of Giovani Campodonico on the magic flote and drum; "High Tragedy," by Charles Sutton' Bob Hart and Sam Rick y; the great Billy Emerson in his unrivalled specialties, and a number of other acts which are particularized on our first page, make up one of the best bills of the season and one which thronge the Alhambra Theatre nightly. The full bill will be performed at the matinee to-morrow, when the children should be taken to see the wonderful elephant.

Metropolitan Theatre.
A very bright and entertaining performance was given at this house last night. Both the drama of "The Coiner's Cave" and "Black Eyed Susan" were played in excellent style and gave general satisfaction. There will be a matinee to-morrow, when "Under the Gaslight" will be played.

Bella Union.
J. H. Larkin and Miss Corrie Armstrong have long been bright particular stars in the company engaged at the Bella Union Theatre, and have delighted the patrons of that house by their originality in Dutch burlesque scenes. To-night, these popular artistes will take a benefit, and a great entertainment will be presented, as may be seen on referring to our first page.

The Atheneum.
An entirely new bill will be presented this evening; two new stars will make their appearance, Ella La Rue the favorite burlesque actress, banjoist and vocalist, and Lon Dixon, Ethiopian comedian. The programme, which appears on our first page, will conclude with the play of "Mazeppa."

Platt's Hall.
The Fair and Festival for the benefit of Grace Church now being held at this hall makes it a fashionable resort. A very pleasing entertainment will be given this evening, ending with a grand concert for which the best artistes in the city have volunteered.

Woodward's Gardens.
Every Sunday thousands of people visit these gardens, and the attractions during the week draw immense crowds. New pictures have been added to the Art Gallery, and shortly a magnificent fountain will be erected in the ampitheatre in the menagerie department.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

The Saints on Women.
St. Bernard said "Woman is the special organ of the devil." St. Augustine: "Woman is the perfection of sin." Saint Jean Chrysostome: "Woman is the most dangerous of all ferocious beasts." (St. Chrysostome had a prevision of a Mrs. Fair being born in the latter days.) St. Cyprien: "Woman is envenomed bird-lime." St. Paulin: "There are a few good women made, and a man ought to be on his guard even in their company." There are a few thousand more "saints" who howl against women in in the same manner. R. P. Joly, a Capuchin, knowing how it was himself probably, said: "The wisest man when with women becomes the greatest fool."

A Singist.
A fellow in Salem, Oregon, challenges all the falsetto singers in Oregon and Washington Territory to a trial of skill for the championship of the Northwest coast. He proposes to claim that he is champion unless some one "out-squalls" him in sixty days.

A paper says: "We have adopted the eight-hour system in this office. We commence work at 8 o'clock in the morning, and close at 8 in the evening."

A Democratic editor says: "We are living at this moment under absolute despotism." He married the wrong woman.

The President's Message.
Peace and prosperity are the key notes of this document. Cheapness and durability are the characteristics of H. Luchsinger's furniture. All should visit his emporium, 731 Market street, and ascertain how cheaply a house can be furnished. u

"Mollie, darling, don't you want to buy a doll? Take your money to Hobbert, 155 Third street. He will suit you." D

The Diamond Mines
Are a fizz'e, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for those establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

The Best Place to Buy
Dry Goods, Fancy Goods, Novelties, or Notions for the Holidays, is at Jones and Wilkinson's, 302 Third street, corner Folsom. .... assortments are large. Choice and cheap. Oo

Manners.
"I make it a point of morality," says a writer, "never to find fault with another for his morals. They may be awkward or graceful, blunt or polite, polished or rustic. I care not what they are if the man means well and acts from honest intentions, without eccentricity or affectation. All men have not the advantage of "good society," as it is called, to school themselves in all its fantastic rules and ceremonies; and if there is any standard of manners, it is well founded on reason and good sense, and not upon these artificial regulations. Manners, like conversation, should be extemporaneous, and not studied. I always suspect the man that meets me with the same perpetual smile on his face, the same bending of his body and the same premeditated shake of his hand. Give me the hearty—it may be rough—grip of the hand, the careless nod of recognition, and when occasion requires, the homely salutation, "How are you, old friend?'"

The Scalp Act.
Since the passage of the famous Scalp Act bounties have been paid in Los Angeles county on 1,266 gophers, 1,965 squirrels and 9 wild cats. The squirrel bounty, at five cents a scalp, amounting to $98 25 The gophers at eight cents, to $101 58; the cats at one dollar each, $9. The other bounties under the Act are wolf and coyote, one dollar each.

A Thin Excuse.
Gail Hamilton puts in this manly excuse for having visited an unpleasant place: "Something is accomplished when you have found one place in the world you never want to visit again." Couldn't some one coax her to try marriage on that knowledge-seeking basis.

Sad Indeed!
Such poetry as this written on the death of General Meade, makes an exchange "almost sorry that the hero has gone:"

He scaled the bold heights, the summit of fame;
For the good of his country he toiled up the same.

A Reasonable Complaint.
A milk dealer, who, on opening a can of milk, found a large bullfrog swimming about, sent word to the farmer who supplied him, that he thought his milk strainer was entirely too coarse.

"Matrimony," said a modern Benedict, the other day, "produces remarkable revolutions; here am I, for instance, in ten short months, changed from a sighing lover to a loving sire."

Smart boys in Springfield give blind organ grinders ten cent scrips made out of wall paper, make their own change out of his hat, leaving him five cents ahead, as he supposed.

A Pleasant Location.
Persons desiring comfortable lodgings in a Central location, should visit the Alhambra, and inspect the fine suites of rooms to let there The building is a very fine one and is well lighted and ventilated.

Health and Pleasure.
There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

Oyster Trade.
The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

Ladies and Gentlemen
Who have been suffering from various complaints for years, are obtaining relief from Dr. Aikin, at 137 Montgomery street. He performs delicate surgical operations, and is daily effecting remarkable cures of old-standing diseases. TWO SONGS.

(YOUTH.)

O Time, sweet Time; O pleasant Time!
Dear Time whose hours and days are gold!
Whose nights, however hot or cold,
Soaked through with heat, or glassed with rime,
Are filled with pleasures manifold!

O Time, large-hearted, generous Time!
Who bringest gifts so rare, so sweet;
A gladness to the springing feet;
A spirit which must soar and climb
For rapture and the joy of it.

O Time! O much-abused Time!
I see no glass, no sickle keen;
Your hands are all too soft, I ween,
For any labor's sweat and grime—
Your hands are all too white and clean.

(AGE.)

O Time; O cursed, ruthless Time,
The song I sung you in my youth,
Believing it the truest truth,
Was but a false, a silly rhyme—
A baseless, foolish song, in sooth!

O Time! O cruel, cruel Time!
The gifts you gave me, where are they?
The rapture of the night and day?
The wild joy of my early prime?

O Time, deceitful, cheating Time!
I see the glass, the sickle keen!
Your bony hands are not too clean
For labor or for any crime—
No crime, however low or mean!

A pupil in one of the public schools recently revised an old saying found in his grammar, as follows: "It is better to give than to receive—a good licking."

Live Well.
Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Pause, Gentle Reader,
And peruse this notice. It will inform you that Meyers, of the White House Restaurant, Kearny street, has reopened, and thoroughly renovated the Eclipse Restaurant, 204 and 206 Fourth street, between Howard and Folsom, under the name of the Capitol Restaurant. Mr. Meyers begs to invite the patronage of the residents in the neighborhood and public in general, and assures them that he intends to provide the very best the market affords at Popular Prices—viz: three 12½ cent dishes for 25 cents.

FRIDAY..............DECEMBER 6, 1872

Lively Times.

At half past 11 o'clock on last Wednesday night a visitor from the East, strolling in the vicinity of Pine and Dupont streets, might have formed a false idea of the manners and customs of San Francisco, Anno Domini 1872. The sound of seven pistol shots fired in rapid succession would have fallen unpleasantly on his unpracticed ears. We don't have this sort of thing every night. An old '49er, playing cards in a grocery store on the night in question, threw down his hand (it was a bad one), rushed to the door and said to his companion: "Sounds like old times, Bill, don't it?" "Yes," said the other; "sounds kind o' nat'ral; but ah! those times will never come again." Then they went in and finished their game.

Easy to be Recognized.

A remarkable old English gentleman is missing, and is so particularly described in an advertisement in the London Times that if he be found, the finders will be at no loss to recognize him. He wears a wig and a shade over one eye. He has no hair on his face, but he carries a deep red scar over his left eyebrow, has large yellow teeth dressed in black with a dark grey overcoat. Now, a man with a wig over his eye and an overcoat on his teeth ought to be identified with a positive assurance wherever he may turn up, especially if he spends his money freely and gives checks on London banks, as this old gentleman errant is said to do.

The Reason Why.

Thieves are scarce in Siam, and the reason is obvious: When one is convicted, he or she, it makes no difference which, is put in a bag and laid upon the ground, face downward, with the throat resting upon the sharp edge of a triangular block. The executioner then pounds with a heavy club on the back of the neck until the victim's head is bruised off. The poor kleptomaniac is gently prepared for the final operation by judicious preliminary scourgings.

Honor Your Business.

Never be above your business, no matter what that calling may be, but strive to be the best in that line. He who turns up his nose at his work quarrels with his bread and butter. He is a poor smith who quarrels with his own sparks; there is no shame about any honest calling. Don't be afraid of soiling your hands; there is plenty of soap to be had.

The Cat.

Humanitarians in England are agitating for the abolition of the "cat" as a punishment for robbery. We are not sure but the cat would be a good thing for certain offenses, such as wife-beating, indignities offered by ruffians to ladies, etc. There are certain classes of ruffians who are impervious to any other than a feline argument.

A Pictured Libel.

The last issue of the New York Clipper contains a picture of Ella Wesner, which libels that neatest of all impersonators of male characters sadly. It makes her look like a dyspeptic hoodlum instead of a jolly, gentlemanly fellow, as she always appears on the stage.

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. Actors and Actresses.

We clip the following bits of gossip from the Sporting Times:

"Mr. and Mrs. Dion Boucicault, the exponents of Irish drama at Booth's. This couple receive $500 per night for their services. Boucicault in his life has made something over $2,000,000 by his plays alone; but he spent it as fast as it came. He made the engagement at Booth's before he thought of producing the great spectacle of "Babil and Bijou" in London, and he had to keep the the engagement and leave his venture in other hands. Mr. and Mrs. Boucicault live in gorgeous apartments at the Clarendon, and Dion enjoys life as it comes.

"Miss Lydia Thompson and her company are managed by that very suave gentleman, Mr. Alexander Henderson, who is now the husband of the English blonde. Miss Thompson, when she came here, was not worth much, but she is now worth over $75,000. Miss Thompson is now 43 years of age, and is still unquestionably pretty. Those who think Miss Thompson gay and frivolous are in error. There was never a more industrious woman than Miss Lydia. She hardly ever goes out excepting to the the theatre.

"Miss Thompson has often been accused of stinginess. Yet she is not stingy, but merely a good business woman, who knows theatrical life thoroughly, and intends to make all there is to be made. Harry Beckett is paid $150 per week in gold; Amy Sheridan, $80; Camille Dubois, $50, and so on in decreasing ratio.

"They do say that Harry Beckett is worth $70,000. When he came to this country in 1868, his salary was $75 per week. Now it has been raised to $150.

"Here is the immortal Lester Wallack, who is still the best light comedian of the day. Off the stage he shows his years much more perceptibly than when the glare of footlights shines up rouge and padding and dress—perfectly legitimate adjuncts to the actor. Lester is now 53 years of age, and is worth about $250,000. The income from his theatre averages $40,000 a year—a pretty neat income.

"The largest salary list in New York, at present, is at the Grand Opera House. Mr. Daly pays John Brougham $300 a week, Rose Hersee $500, Mrs. John Wood $600, Stuart Robson $150, and Robert Craig $100. John Brougham still lives in Fourteenth st east, where he keeps open house. Rose Hersee lives with her mother in one of the streets adjoining the theatre, and Mrs. John Wood at a fashionable hotel. Mrs. Wood is a lady over 40 years of age, and still has the charms of youth."

The Best Way.

Signor Vallo gives the following advice to young dramatic authors: "Before writing a play, make enough money to build a theatre and pay a first-class company. You will then have no difficulty in having your plays produced."

Rather Wearisome.

Talking about suicide, an old lady says: "It's all very well to rail at suicide, but wait until you've been a woman 110 consecutive years, and you will think differently about it."

Plainly Competent.

A resident of Kalamazoo writes to a school board in Ohio, that he will take a school, as he has "tought 2 terms school and I attended 1 college 4 yrs at detroit, michigan, and am 26 yrs avage."

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

A Happy Editor.

The happiest newspaper man in the country is at Buffalo, Missouri, according to one who has seen him, and who writes: A. W. Carson publishes the county paper, which is called the Reflex. Carson is better contented and more philosophic than any printer I ever saw. He sets his own type, writes his own editorials, uses a Chicago "inside," has plenty to eat, digests his food well, sleeps sound, and tranquilly looks on the scramble in which the world is engaged with a profound indifference as to whether "school keeps" or not. He never duns a subscriber, as his list is too small to incur any useless risk of losing one. He never asks a man to subscribe, for fear of increasing the amount of his press work; he has no ambition for office, because he expects to die an honest man; and he don't want to get rich, because it is so harassing to take care of a large property, and so tight a squeeze for a humped camel to pass through the optic of a cambric needle. So "Kit," as he is playfully called by Buffalonians, with whom he is a great favorite, goes on in the even tenor of his way, observing a majority of the Ten Commandments, printing his paper regularly, reaping his annual harvest of horse bills, and enjoying life in a sensible, rational manner.

Faithful to His Trust.

The man who tells pretty stories for the Savannah News sharpened his pencil the other day, disheveled his hair, and wrote as follows: "In the twilight of a beautiful day in the ides of October, an Appling county man set his son and heir to watch a favorite corn-patch. Returning a little later to see if the infant was at his post, the jocund father happened to create a little commotion among the dry stalks. There was a flash and a report, and the astonished parent tore down two panels of fence in getting away. To his neighbors who called to see him in his bed-ridden condition he extolled the vigilance of his son and his accuracy with a shotgun."

A Warning to Joaquin Miller.

A Kansas man was "set back" the other day by a couple of squaws entering his house whom he had forgotten he had married a few years ago on the plains. What cheers him up is the fact that a Kansas Court has decided that when a white man marries a squaw after the Indian fashion, the same is legal and binding upon her husband.

A Sunday School Lesson.

A young merchant who is trying to struggle along on a falsely economical plan, took a Sunday school class recently. During the progress of the lesson, he asked: "What is solitude, and was visibly disturbed when a miserable boy promptly answered: "The store that don't advertise."

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer.";
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clam and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.— The production of C. W. Tayleure's dramatization of "Aurora Floyd" drew a capital house last night. After witnessing her acting in the role last night we have no hesitation in pronouncing Aurora Floyd one of Mrs. Chanfrau's best roles. The dramatization is a very good one; the points in the story are brought out in an effective manner. G. D. Chaplin appeared to good advantage in the part of John Mellish, acting it capitally and gaining the sympathy of the audience for the true-hearted Yorkshire squire. Some of the scenes between him and Mrs. Chanfrau, notably that immediately preceding the arrival of James Conyers and the consequent destruction of their happiness, were charmingly natural and pleasing. W. A. Mestayer dressed and acted the part of James Conyers very well; E. J. Buckley played that of Capt. Raleigh Talbot conscientiously but it did not suit him very well; it isn't much of a part anyhow. W. M. Leman was particularly jolly as old Captain Prodder, acting in a style which perfectly captivated the audience; he is much better in jovial than in melancholy roles; J. C. Williamson in the part of Steve Hargrave, the softy, did some capital character acting, though sometimes his Yorkshireman awoke reminiscences of Michael Feeny. Altogether he gave a powerful impersonation of the part. Miss Nellie Cummins, who has acted many parts very pleasingly of late, was all that could be desired as Lucy Floyd, and Mrs. Saunders as the sphynx-faced housekeeper, Mrs. Powell, acted admirably. So good a play with such an excellent cast should be put on for a longer run than two nights, but so the bills say. "The Wife's Ordeal," at the matinee to-day. "Aurora Floyd" for the last time to-night, and revival of "Elopement" by request on Monday. "The Lady of Lyons," "The Hunchback" and "Dora" are underlined for production.

Alhambra Theatre.—The bill which has attracted thousands to this house during the week will be given in full at the matinee to-day. Billy Emerson will appear in the first part in some of his best specialties, in the interlude, and in the screaming act of "Obeying Orders." Bob Hart, Charles Sutton, Sam Rickey and the others forming that brilliant combination known as Emerson's Minstrels, will appear in the same bill to-night and to-morrow night.

Metropolitan Theatre.—To-night, Ned Deaves, so well and favorably known to the public and the profession as the inventor of some of the best automatical effects produced on the stage in California, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit tendered him by the Veterans of the Mexican War and many friends. A capital bill will be presented. The performance will commence with "The Happy Man," in which Mr. Deaves will appear as Ram Rusti. After this there will be an interlude in which many volunteers will take part, and the evening's entertainment will conclude with the farce of "The Clockmaker's Hat," in which Miss Sallie Deaves will appear in the character of Sallie Smart, and Miss Ada Deaves as Jennie. At the matinee to-day, "Under the Gaslight" will be played. To-morrow night, to-night's bill will be repeated. On Monday evening the drama of the "Octoroon" will be produced.

Bella Union Theatre.—J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong had an immense house on the occasion of their benefit last night, and gave an entertainment which pleased everyone. "Der New Yorick Bakery" was a great hit, and called forth great applause. A great bill has been prepared for Saturday night, and there will be no standing room after eight o'clock.

The Atheneum.—The entertainment given at this house last night was a very attractive one. Miss Ella La Rue received a hearty welcome on making her appearance and was much applauded. The performance as a whole was a great success. The same excellent bill will be performed to-night with the addition of Frank Mortimer in his specialties, and Miss Mary Clifoe in songs.

Miss Jennie Worrell and Miss Lillie Hall.—On Monday night Miss Jennie Worrell, the bright particular star of the Worrell Sisters, who has life and vim enough in her for a whole family of sisters, will make her first appearance at the Alhambra Theatre. Irene is pretty, Sophie is graceful, but Jennie is the incarnation of fun and jollity, and has dramatic talent far above that possessed by either of her sisters. She will appear in new and original comic songs, and song and dance with Miss Lillie Hall. Miss Lillie Hall comes here from the Theatre Comique, New York, where she was a great favorite, charming all by her blonde beauty, sweet voice and graceful style.

Katie Holloway.—We are sure the public will be glad to learn that this young lady with her newly-found husband, Mr. J. Holland, having buried the hatchet with Chiarini, reengaged with and sailed with her old manager for the Australian trip yesterday. Miss Holloway as a member of Chiarini's Circus has long been famed for her graceful and daring equestrian acts, and we are pleased to record that she has gone home again.

Woodward's Gardens—Immense Rush.—A performance by the combined Conklin and Semwell circus troupe, with the educated animals and trained monkeys, will be given here this afternoon and evening. The usual Sunday performances will be given to-morrow, when, if the weather remains pleasant, ten thousand people will probably visit the gardens.

Cliff House.—A dash out to the Cliff House between the showers is very pleasant. In Captain Foster's comfortable hostelry one can listen with indifference to the storm without.

Sailed Away.—Chiarini and his company sailed, or rather steamed away for New Zealand on the Dakotah yesterday afternoon. A large number of friends were on the wharf to bid them good-bye.

The President's Message.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, Miss Neilson continued to play in "Romeo and Juliet" at Booth's Theatre......The Fifth Avenue had produced "The Merry Wives of Windsor," with Miss Fanny Davenport, Miss Morant and Charles Fisher, whose Falstaff is well spoken of by the New York press .....At the Olympic the Lydia Thompson Troupe appeared in "Aladdin" to good houses......At Wallack's, E. A. Sothern in "Our American Cousin."......Union Square, Miss Agnes Ethel in "Agnes." The play reached its 77th representation on the 30th ult., and was to run till December 24th, Miss Ethel's engagement being for one hundred nights. Mr. Brougham's new play, then to be brought forward, is entitled "Atherley Court;" and in this Mark Smith, D. H. Harkins, Mrs. Jennings and Emily Mestayer will sustain leading parts...... The opening of the new Niblos' Garden was announced positively for the 27th but did not take place until the 30th. The cast of "Leo and Lotos" was as follows: Prince Leo of Gaul, M'lle Diane; Princess Lotos-Leaf, M'lle Marie Rosetti; Kohinoor, Monarch of the Jewel Kingdom, Henri Collard, Plutus, God of Mammon, Roberts; Electra, Spirit of Mischief, Miss Lizzie Kelsey; The Astronomer Royal, Philip Storer; The Poet Laureate, M. W. Leffingwell; The Grand Hereditary Moddle, Ben McGinley; Huberto, the Sorcerer, Harry Jackson; Fidelio, Page to Leo, Miss Bessie Sudlow; Nobo, Groom to Leo, M. W. Fiske; Babette, Miss Laura Joyce; Satanel'a, the beautiful Fiend, Miss Lulu Prior; Venus, Miss Milly Cook. The incidental performers included Herr Wieffenback, the performer on twelve drums; E. D. Davies, ventriloquist; the Child American, the boy violinist, Miss Josephine Walby, callisthenics. The ballet includes eight premiers, forty-eight coryphees, and one hundred figurantes. The chorus numbered thirty persons, and altogether there are upwards of three hundred people connected with the department behind the curtain. Papers containing an account of the opening have not yet come to hand..... At Tony Pastor's Opera House G. W. Lester, ventriloquist, and Rivolti, Fire King, were the latest new faces......Kelly & Leon commenced a season at their old home, 718 Broadway, on the 25th, and have since been burned out. At the Grand Opera House, Daly's new piece, "Round the Clock," was produced on the 25th to an immense audience. The Tribune says of it:

> "Round the Clock" is a farce—framed in photography. The farce is silly. The photography is often excellent. Such scenes as the Lion Park, Niblo's stage, etc., made up this element of the exhibition. In a literary point of view the work is contemptible. A sort of cleverness of ingenuity, however, marks the construction of some of the scenes, and this and the stage setting make such merit as the piece possesses. The title is taken—without acknowledgment—from the French. Mr. Brougham, Mrs. Wood, Mr. Ketchum, Miss Elle Dietz, Miss Howson, Miss Deland and Mr. Jennings do the little acting needful to be done, and do this with zeal, spirit and ability. The story of the farce concerns itself with the disposition of an estate of two million dollars and more, left by a testator to that relative, male or female, who shall prove never to have been married, engaged, or in love. Two greenhorns, male and female, are produced as candidates for the inheritance; and twelve hours are allowed for testing their claims. Meanwhile the play shows what incidents befal them in New York city life as the hours pass round the clock. Many of these incidents are preposterous. Indeed, the whole work is absurd—and no person possessing true literary instinct, and respecting that great faculty, would expose such a gross, coarse, extravagant medley to the view of intelligent persons. The appeal, however, is made to "the vulgar"—and we do not think it will be made in vain

The Tribune says it can only be characterized as "a folly." It has drawn good houses since its production.

Barnum's Museum, Menagerie, and Hippodrome was opened to the people of New York City on Nov. 18th. The crowd was dense on the opening occasion, and similar throngs visited the house on each succeeding show. The place has been enlarged and improved since Mr. Barnum came into possession. The menagerie abounds with living wild animals of the most interesting kinds, including two elephants, several splendid sea lions, polar bears, ostriches, yaks, elands, lions, tigers, leopards, tapirs, horned horses, Abyssinian wart-hogs, camels, dromedaries, anacondas, four magnificent giraffes, a happy family etc. Some very curious and interesting foreign-made automata are among the curiosities; clumps of trees with singing birds hopping and flapping their wings amid the branches; a gayly-arrayed musician playing a flute; an organist in similar apparel, a roaring and tail-wagging lion, etc. Admiral Dot, the great little man, whose ounces of weight are very few and whose inches in height are much less; the majestic Col. Goshen, who stands about half a rod high in his military boots, and weighs a fourth of a ton, or thereabouts, and several Albinos of the purest breed, are included in the group of living curiosities. In the circus, Dan Costello has introduced various attractive novelties; among others a small army of good looking attendants, arrayed in costumes a la Louis XIV. Another very good effect is produced by the grand entrance into the arena of Dan Costello's trick horse. This animal makes his appearance with his sleek, white coat covered by a red velvet robe, which extends yards to the rear, en train, and is upheld there by several shapely demoiselles in Turkish attire. A black-bearded, Sultan-seeming personage sits in state, overlooking the scene, while Costello, in the dress of an Egyptian groom, causes the horse to go through a routine of interesting tricks. Miss Minna Marks, a child equestrienne; Alexander Melville, the bold boy rider; Young Donald, a champion bare-back rider; James Melville, the famous Australian bare-back equestrian; Marquos, the Iroquois chief, and various braves in war paint; Senor Monte-Verde, contortionist, etc., are also comprised in the hippodrome attractions

Edwin Forrest made his metropolitan debut as a dramatic reader, at Steinway Hall, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 19th, in three acts of the tragedy of "Hamlet," from the usual acting edition. A moderate sized audience was in attendance, who cordially greeted him as he stepped upon the rostrum, and his reading was frequently interrupted by demonstrative applause. Mr Forrest's magnificent voice fell with pleasure upon the ear, its soft tones retaining all their purity and its strength remaining unimpaired. On the 22d he made his second and last appearance, reading "Othello." A storm had prevailed during the entire day, which materially interfered with the attendance. He was far more successful in the embodiment of the character of Othello than of Hamlet, treated it in a masterly manner, and gave great satisfaction in simulation of the characters of Roderigo, Cassio and Iago. The applause during the evening was enthusiastic and demonstrative.

John Collins opened at the Holliday-street Theatre, Baltimore, on Nov. 18th, and attracted good audiences throughout the week. "The Irish Ambassador" and "His Last Legs" constituted the bill for his first appearance. In the first play he impersonated Sir Patrick O'Plenipo, investing the character with gentility and grace, besides guarding its drollery. The Misses Rosa Rand and Nelly Jones appeared as Lady Isabelle and Lady Emily respectively, both looking well and acting with piquancy.

At the Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia, "Escaped from Sing Sing," with Mr. Dominick Murray in the leading character, was given for the last time on the 23d. The next attraction was "Little Em'ly," dramatized from Charles Dickens' "David Copperfield."

J. H. Budworth terminated his engagement with Frank Moran's Minstrels, Philadelphia, on

The Clipper says: We are pleased to learn that Robert Jones, an attache of Forepaugh's Circus, who was shot by the City Marshall of Jerseyville, Ill., on Sept. 28th, has recovered from his injuries and returned to his home in Maysville, Ky. The Marshall, we believe, has never been molested for his playfulness, but continues his childish pranks in a cheerful mood, "with his marshal cloak around him" as a shield.

Lawrence Barrett, who closed an engagement at Wood's Theatre, Cincinnati, O., on Nov. 23d, appears to have achieved a great success by his impersonations in the legitimate drama. At a time when it has been thought that nothing save of a sensational nature would attract remunerative audiences, this was even a greater triumph. The Cincinnati Enquirer of Nov. 22d, speaks of him as follows:

> Lawrence Barrett, who will to-morrow night close his engagement at Wood's Theatre, has achieved a triumph of which any actor might be proud. It had become an almost general axiom among managers that the legitimate drama would not draw in Cincinnati. Moreover Mr. Barrett opened under disadvantages consequent upon the withdrawal of the street cars and all usual means of conveyance because of the horse plague. Yet he has played the heaviest engagement, pecuniarily, of the season, while offering such plays as "Hamlet," "Richelieu," and "Julius Cæsar."

At Memphis, Tenn., the business has been generally good, especially at the Grand Opera House, where Chanfrau has presented "Kit, the Arkansas Traveller," every night to full houses.

The last New York Clipper says: "The Red Pocket Book," with Mr. Joseph Proctor in the leading role, is the leading attraction at the Pittsburgh Opera House this week, and is drawing tolerably large audiences. The drama has some literary merit. The tableaux are effective, dialogue smooth, and plot rather ingenious. Considerable of the scenery is freshly painted by Arthur Palmer, and is elaborate and realistic. Mr. Proctor's voice is as powerful as ever, and his acting of Maurice is strong and artistically embodied.

Mr. Cran pays Rubenstein $10.000 and Winanski $5,000 a month.

Miss Eliza Weathersby fell on the stage the other night and broke her knee cap.

Mr. Edwin Booth is in Providence, Mrs. D. P. Bowers in Louisville, and Mr. E. L. Davenport in Philadelphia.

Oliver Doud Byron commenced an engagement at the Griswold Opera House, Troy, N. Y., Nov. 18th, appearing in his specialty of "Across the Continent." The piece held the boards four nights, but attracted only fair audiences.

Mr. J. B. Studley has played to good houses at the Academy of Music, Buffalo, N. Y., in Meader's version of "Buffalo Bill," up to Nov. 23d.

E. T. Stetson was the stellar attraction at the Royal Lyceum, Toronto, Ont., opening on the Nov. 18th in McCloskey's sensational drama, "Daring Dick, the Detective."

John E. Owens, supported by his own company, opened at the Detroit, Mich., Opera House, on Nov. 20th, in "The Heir at Law" and "Solon Shingle," to a very large house.

Byron's new sensational drama, entitled "Haunted Houses," was produced at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on Monday 19th ult. for the first time in that city. It proved a success.

Miss Eva West, from California, advertises in the New York Clipper for an engagement.

The Clipper says:

> Miss May Howard, recently of the California Theatre, San Francisco, Cal. contemplates a starring tour.

Mrs. James A. Oates was recently married at St. Louis, Mo., to Tracy W. Titus, who has been the business manager of her dramatic company for some time past.

Frank Mayo appeared at the Academy of Music, New Orleans, on the 25th, as Hamlet. The Times of the following day criticises him thus:

> Mr. Mayo differs from such actors as Booth and Barrett, in infusing into the character much demonstrative expression, and is at times what may be termed violent. In this he oversteps the tradition, and fails to endow it clearly with those metaphysical attributes which suggest a pensiveness foreign to violent action of the physical nature. The closet scene was effectively rendered, though bordering too closely on the melodramatic, and in the comparison between the dead and the living king there was evidenced a disposition to rant.

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

MARYSVILLE.—Miss Ellie Wilton and a dramatic company will appear this evening at the Theatre in the tragedy of "Medea." The performance will conclude with the farce of "Betsy Baker."

TRINITY.—The Trinity Journal has the following: "The Wilton Troupe arrived here last Saturday evening, coming through from Humboldt via the trail. One of the mules loaded with baggage fell from the trail into the river and was killed. The baggage, consisting principally of the wardrobe belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Wilton, went down stream about two miles before it lodged, and remained on a riffle about twenty hours before it could be recovered, during which time it got pretty thoroughly soaked. Frank says he has traveled a great deal, but this was the first time he ever got his wardrobe 'in soak;' he 'made the riffle,' however, and got it out 'h'all right, my lord.'"

SAN RAFAEL.—John Wilson's Circus performed here on the third.

SALT LAKE.—Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Bates and the stock company are playing at the theatre to very moderate business.

PORTLAND.—"Diavolo; or, Hunted Down" was performed at the Oro Fino Theatre on the 30th by the Waldron dramatic company.

VIRGINIA CITY.—The Dutch character artists, Baker and Farron, supported by a dramatic company and Maguire's California Minstrels, opened at Piper's Opera House on Monday, and drew good houses during the week. They appeared in "Chris and Lena."

OAKLAND.—An operatic concert will be given for the benefit of Madame Bianchi, when a brilliant company of artistes will appear, among them are Signora Bianchi, Signora Fabbri, Miss Annie McKenzie, Miss Annie Elzer, Sig. Bacci, Herr Muller and Bianchi. Mons. Muller, Fabbri, and and Ritter are conductors.

PETALUMA.—A festival for the benefit of the Library Fund was given on Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week. On the last-named evening the drama of "The Spirit of '76" was performed.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer.".
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clam and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

California Theatre.

To-night Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau, whose performances have given so much pleasure to the public of San Francisco, will enter on the last week of her engagement at the California Theatre. By very general request "The Elopement; or, Marriage and its Shadows," by C. W. Taylaure, will be on this occasion played. To-morrow evening Charles Reade's Dramatization of Tennyson's beautiful poem of "Dora" will be presented with Mrs. Chanfrau in the title role, in which she appeared 172 consecutive nights at the Globe Theatre, Boston. On Friday evening Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau will take her farewell benefit. "The Lady of Lyons" and 'The Hunchback" are in rehearsal.

Metropolitan Theatre.

Ned Deaves had a good house for his benefit on Saturday night, and played the old potentate in "The Happy Man" with his old power and vigor, notwithstanding his crippled condition. George Hinckley played Paddy Murphy very well. Mrs. L. F. Beatty, who volunteered for the occasion, look very pretty as Ko Ket, and dressed the part to perfection. Little Rellie Deaves was nearly covered with bouquets after her Dutch song and dance, and Miss Ada Deaves was the recipient of similar favors after her Irish jig. In "The Clockmaker's Hat," Miss Rellie Deaves played Sallie Smart with very precocious smartness. To-night, the Australian sensation drama, "Hazzard," will be reproduced in a remodeld form, with Frank Hussey and Miss Blanche Clifton in the leading parts. The play is a good one; and will be well placed on the stage, with views of Sydney and other colonial scenes.

Alhambra.

There is unceasing novelty at this popular theatre. Every night during the past two weeks the house has been crowded to suffocation, and now new attractions are announced in addition to Billy Emerson and his matchless band of minstrels. This evening, the bright and piquante Miss Jennie Worrell will make her reappearance before the San Francisco public, who so well appreciated her precocious talent years ago, and Miss Lillie Hall, a favorite burlesque actress from New York, will make her first appearance in California. After a capital first part, in which Billy Emerson Charles Sutton, Bob Hart, Benjamin Clarke, W. T. Nesfield, W. F. Baker and others will participate, Miss Jennie Worrell will appear in a bouquet of new and original songs; Senator Hart will deliver a speech; Billy Emerson will introduce his ever-popular "Drum Major;" Signor Campodonico will present his musical wonders; Miss Jennie Worrell will appear with Miss Lillie Hall in song and dance; the sketch of "A Hard Bite" will be played, and the performance will conclude with the extravaganza, entitled "The Streets of San Francisco," the cast of which appears on our first page.

Bella Union.

As the bills justly claim the programme performed at this house is the jolliest and most lively imaginable. There is a little of everything in it. Good singing, fine music, funny stories, pretty ballet, amusing Dutch acts, lively Ethiopian farces, character songs, song and dance, gymnastic acts, and an Irish extravaganza. The full bill appears on our first page.

The Atheneum.

Miss Elle La Rue, Frank Mortimer, Miss Mary Cline and Lou Dixon are the latest additions to the company at this house, and are all popular favorites. Miss Elle La Rue's banjo solos are encored three and four times every night.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Woodward's Gardens.

The usual immense throng, (fully 10,000 persons) visited these gardens on Sunday. Circus performances and glass-blowing every afternoon this week, and a grand extra bill for Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

A Rich Promise of Amusement.

Manager McCullough is a worthy caterer to the amusement of the San Francisco public as the following future entertainments prove. First following Mrs. Chanfrau we are to have a brief season of Italian opera by the popular Fabbri Troupe; then comes the spectacular play of "Alladdin", for the Christmas Holidays. After this the talented comedian, John T. Raymond, a prime favorite with the San Francisco public, will play an engagement; he will be followed by the famous Charlotte Cushman; next comes Mrs. Bowers, whose talent is so well appreciated by our public. She gives way to Barton Hill, and then comes the star of the period, E. A. Sothern, whose Lord Dundreary has delighted over a million people on both sides of the Atlantic. This last engagement is more than we dared hope for, Mr. Sothern's terms being so high that a less enterprising manager than John McCullough might well have feared to bring him from one side of the continent to the other to play for a few weeks. We hope the San Francisco public are well pleased with the prospect; they have every reason to be so.

Renovation.

The Alhambra Theatre is now undergoing a brightening up process. The walls are being redecorated with crimson and gold and light pink fresco paper by Frank Edwards and assistants, and enough work has already been done to show a vast improvement in the appearance of the theatre. As this house is never closed the work has to be done between performances, and the audience to-night will have an excellent opportunity to contrast the new decorations with the old and see how much improvement has been made. The seats are to be recoverd with damask; and it is reported that many other improvements are to be made in this beautiful little theatre shortly.

"Aladdin."

The Christmas piece of the California Theatre will be "Aladdin." Mr. Porter and assistants have been a long time engaged on scenery for this grand spectacle; new and beautiful costumes have been procured, and altogether "Aladdin" promises to eclipse anything yet produced. Mademoiselles Betty and Emily Regl have been engaged for the ballet, and Mons. Carron and children have also been engaged to take part in the piece.

Miss Frank Daunt.

This young actress, formerly of Boston, will make her first appearance before a California audience, at the Metropolitan Theatre on Thursday

A Theatrical Fire Company.

The Alhambra boys have organized an Alhambra Fire Brigade, and provided themselves with Babcock's Fire Extinguishers to use in the theatre in case of any emergency arising requiring them. This is a wise precautionary measure in case of accidents. Many of the company are old firemen, and with such efficient instruments as the extinguishers at hand no fire could gain headway in the Alhambra during the performance. We know that public volunteer fire companies are prohibited by law, but the prohibition does not extend to private organizations for the protection of private property, or else Chief Engineer Bob Hart's and Fire Commissioner Tom Maguire's liberties might be in jeopardy.

Miss Minnie Wells.

Manager Bert received a dispatch from this real "Lion Tamer," who pets and plays with live lions on the stage as though they were poodles in her piece, "The Lion of Nubia," stating that she would arrive here to-morrow night. Miss Wells will probably appear at the Metropolitan on Monday next.

Deberred from Pleasure.

A writer in an Eastern paper says:

The peculiar passion of the negro for making a jubilee of funerals and their attendant solemnities is sometimes ludicrously set forth. A friend was taking a stroll a few evenings ago, and walking slowly along, observed a man and a woman in earnest conversation. Just as my friend neared them the man questioned his companion thus; "Is you gwine to set up wid de corpse to-night?" "No." "What in der world is de reason you ain't gwine to set up wid de corpse?" "Why, you see, my husben' won't lem me." "Your husben'! Well, I never did see such a husban' as you is got!—don't want to 'low you no pleasure in life!"

A Bad Utterance.

Poor old Briggs, of Boston, labored under two great natural defects, the one being his inability to pronounce the letter V, and the other a "pecuniary retentiveness," vulgarly known as parsimony. "What a queer pronunciation your uncle has," observed some one to a nephew of Briggs. "Ah, yes," replied the graceless, "it is impossible to get a V out of him."

This famous oyster house having been refitted and improved, is now under the management of H. E. Bestherm, assisted by "Henry," so long known in the oyster business. The best wines, liquors and cigars are kept. The best cooks and waiters in the State are employed. The neatly furnished rooms up-stairs for families and supper parties have long been a feature of THE BIVALVE, No. 640 Market street, near Kearny. P

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corvillo, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the 'Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

Ladies and Gentlemen

Who have been suffering from various complaints for years, are obtaining relief from Dr. Aikin, at 137 Montgomery street. He performs delicate surgical operations, and is daily effecting remarkable cures of old-standing diseases. The Doctor is a competent, scientific physician, and the afflicted can consult him with confidence. •

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bockan, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Sonchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street. •

THE MYSTERY OF HOLLOW ASH.

You want to know about the smash
That happened down to Holler Ash?
Well! If anybody knows,
He wears about my style of clothes.

'Twas Deacon Hunper's funeral,
And all was goin' well,
When them there Temp'ars, up in town,
On an excursion train come down.

I driv the mourners, and Joe Fresh
He went ahead of the procesh;
And as we neared the railroad track,
We seed the train a comin' back.

Joe turned around and winked at me,
And from his vest he drew a V;
"I'll bet you these, that this 'ere hearse
Crosses ahead of that excurs."

The mourners they set up a yell,
And then was missin' for a spell;
It was amazin' how that crowd
Cavorted upward in a cloud!

We piled them victims on the sward,
About three-quarters of a cord.
On top we put the deacon's meat,
But where Joe went we all was beat.

We searched the ruins of that train
But all our searchin' was in vain;
And to this day it does beat me
Where the man went who held the V.

Classical Scholars at Schell Creek.

We do not number too many classical scholars in San Francisco; we therefore cannot expect much of Schell Creek. The Prospect, published in that village, has the following:

A church notice lately posted in town read as follows: "There will (Dv.) be religious services held," etc. A number congregated around it, and to the few who could read all was plain enough except the "Dv.," but that was a puzzler. One bright youth gave as a signification "Dolly Varden;" another, "Devilish Villainy;" another, "Dua Value." Stubby, old boy, consulted Noah, and to his delight found "devolente," "God willing," and the question was settled.

The Schell Creekites had a hard struggle over that abbreviation, and after all could not get nearer to "Deo volente" than "devolente."

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Benton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Benton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Mayer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

San Francisco Reporters.

The reporters for the daily papers of San Francisco are active and energetic in picking up news, but they are not happy in the manner in which they present it to the public. The reporter now-a-days obtrudes his personality in the most offensive manner and tries to make himself an important personage in every sensational scene. If a man is shot he is sure to fall into the hands of the reporter of the Morning Blow-hard. The reporter of the Morning Toot it is to whose vigilance the discovery of an attempt at burglary is due. This is the style of thing to which we re er. We extract from the Call of Friday last:

At half-past ten o'clock, the polyglot reporter for the Call visited the scene of the shooting, and in a conversation in the French language with the woman of the house, obtained from her a minute description of the shooter, which was duly furnished to the police. In the afternoon the reporter, acting in the capacity of interpreter, visited the premises, in company with Chief Crowley, for the purpose of questioning the woman again and giving her certain instructions.

Then we are told how the Chief said "Tout de suite," dress yourself; how the woman said, "Je ne comprend pas," and how the reporter translated; and any amount of this sickening stuff is palmed off on the illiterate readers of the Call, in order to show that that paper can afford to employ a reporter who understands French, and make them think a Call reporter is a man of education which he generally is not.

Sale of the Late Walter Montgomery's Wardrobe.

On Nov. 4th, the theatrical wardrobe and other valuable effects of the late Walter Montgomery, were submitted for sale by auction at Messrs. Puttick and Simpson's Gallery, Leicester Square. The attendance was by no means so large as had been anticipated, and there were noticed among the costumers and dealers many persons of prominence in the theatrical world, evidently anxious to secure a souvenir of one who both by his talents as an actor and his personal good qualities, had endeared him to all whose privilege it was to know him. The first lot submitted to competition was the costume for Hamlet, which realized 25s. A costume for Othello went for 40s. Claude Melnotte, second dress, 40s; third dress, 35s. Roman hook and breast pletes, helmet and plume, sword, shield, wristlets, and scarlet cloth toga, 60s. Macbeth, 60s. Costumes for Coriolanus, Louis the Eleventh, Romeo, Charles Surface, etc., realized an average of 30s. The best prices were realized for a number of pair of worsted and silk tights. The net proceeds amounted to about £80.

Doubtful Information.

"How long is this loch?"

"It will be about twenty mile."

"Twenty miles! Oh, it cannot be as much as that."

"Maybe it will be twelve."

"It really does not seem more than four or five."

"Indeed, I'm thinking you're right."

"Really you seem to know nothing about the matter."

"Deed, canna say I do."

The Art of Speaking.

In no country in the world is the cultivation of the art of speaking of so much importance as in the United States. There is a probability that every man will be called upon at some period of his existence to make a speech. If he is unable to do so, he finds himself in an awkward position. He may have ideas, a good voice, but he cannot make a speech; he does not know how. The Chief Magistrate of the nation has, no doubt, often regretted that he did not when young learn the art of speaking. He has no confidence in his ability to speak; though occasions must certainly arise when he would like to say something. Speaking is an art, and must be learned; in some cases it seems to be a gift of nature, and as men who do not know a note of music are able to play on various instruments, so these natural orators are able to speak pleasingly without having studied the art of elocution. These are only exceptions to the general rule, which is that a man who wishes to become a good speaker must study elocution. A great deal of the elocution taught in schools, goes for nothing; it enables children to "spout" a number of pieces, but has but little effect on training the voice and fitting it to address large assemblages of people. Many a man in this country has talked himself into office. The matter of the speech may not be very great, but if it be delivered in an elegant and forcible style it will tickle the ears of the public, and they will pronounce the speaker a great man. To understand thoroughly the art of speaking is an important help to any man. Elocution should be taught and learned seriously, with a set purpose. The really accomplished elocutionist possesses an art which renders him a welcome guest in many a family circle. Out of an assemblage of twenty or thirty people, how often will you find one who can read a piece of poetry in a really pleasing manner? People learn to swim, thinking it may be a useful accomplishment some day. They may never need it, never be forced to swim; but it is a comfort to know that they can swim. So, many who never expect to be called upon to make a speech should learn elocution in order that they may have confidence in their powers to do should occasion require. Two of the leading members of the dramatic profession in this city, accomplished elocutionists both, have it in contemplation to open classes for instruction in this useful and pleasing accomplishment, and advertise in another column for the purpose of feeling the public pulse with regard to their appreciation of the necessity of such classes in this community.

A Natural Result.

Two doctors met, when one said, "Have you heard how our friend Dr. Wilson is?" "He died yesterday," replied the other. "How!" cried the first; "I did not think he was so ill as that." "What could you expect?" said the other, in a tone of disgust. "He trusted to his own treatment."

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. u

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The drama of "The Elopement, or Marriage and its Shadows," was much enjoyed by the audience present at this theatre last night, and Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau won great applause for her impersonation of the dual role of Lady Isabel and Madame Fernando Malten. To-night Charles Reade's dramatization of Tennyson's beautiful pastoral entitled "Dora" will be produced. It is said that in consequence of Mrs. Chanfrau's engagement closing with this week, this exquisite play can be performed only once. If this be the case, the California Theatre should be thronged to-night, as all who miss the opportunity of seeing Mrs. Chanfrau in one of her most beautiful characterizations will certainly regret it.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The revival of the really capital drama of "Hazard" at this theatre last night drew a good house. Frank Hardy delighted the audience by his disguises, acting and songs, in the double character of Tatwell and Jubilee Jake, and Miss Blanche Clifton quite won their sympathy for the persecuted heroine, Eva. The sensation scenes were presented with telling effect, the scenery was much admired, and altogether the revival of "Hazard" was a success. It will be played again to-night.

Alhambra.

This house was thronged to suffocation last night when Miss Jennie Worrell, an old time San Francisco favorite, made her reappearance, and Miss Lillie Hall made her first appearance in California. The entertainment presented was a splendid one. The first part over, Miss Jennie Worrell made her appearance and received a hearty welcome; she sang "I'm so Awfully Clever" and "Courting in the Rain," local songs, and on her second encore bemoaned the loss of a young man called Augustus. Miss Jennie is pretty, piquante and original, and as natural and unaffected as she was seven years ago. Senator Hart followed in an amusing stump speech, and then Emerson appeared in the "Great Drum Major," and was recalled six times; he sang new verses to "Ten Thousand Miles Away," and his pussy cat song sent the audience into fits of laughter. Giovanni Campodonico was much applauded for his performance on the guitar, mouth organ and drum. After him Miss Lillie Hall came on, and at once created a favorite impression by her attractive personal appearance and charming grace of manner; she was joined by Miss Jennie Worrell in song and dance, and the two kept the audience in a high state of good humor for some time, and danced capitally, in spite of Jennie's having the misfortune to kick the heel of her boot off. Miss Jennie Worrell and Miss Lillie Hall are favorites at once, and the Alhambra Theatre will be thronged nightly. The theatre presents a bright and cheerful appearance, the new decorations having much improved it. The bill for to-night appears on our first page.

Bella Union.

Among the many popular and entertaining features in the bill for to-night, may be mentioned Ed. Montayne's graceful act of the "Glass Bottle Pyramid;" Charles Verner's comic specialties; "Der New Yorick Bakery," by J. H. Lorkin and Carrie Armstrong; the beautiful ballet of "La Zingara;" song and dance, "Oh, Honey Dear," by Coghill and Cooper; Johnny Tuers, Harry Sinclair and J. H. Larkin in the screaming act, "Making it Warm," and the whole company in John Brougham's extravaganza, entitled "O Flannigan and the Fairies."

The Atheneum.

There is a very strong company at this place of amusement. Miss Ella La Rue is a great favorite, and her banjo solos are very popular; Frank Mortimer is very clever in character and Io acts; Charley Thompson, Charley Nickerson and Lou Dixon make great fun in "Bad Dickey," and many others appear in attractive specialties.

Woodward's Gardens.

The usual immense throng, (fully 10,000 persons) visited these gardens on Sunday. Circus performances and glass-blowing every afternoon this week, and a grand extra bill for Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Theatrical Picture.

R. J. Preston, of the California Theatre, has just completed a collection of photographs of the members of the company for 1872-73, mounted in a framework of foliage, masonry, armor, heraldic insignia and other stage accessories, beautifully executed with the pen and finished in colors. Mr. Preston having had the pleasure of constructing this work of art, is willing that some one shall enjoy that of becoming its possessor. Who this is will shortly be decided by chance, as the picture will be raffled for at the cigar store adjoining the California Theatre.

Holiday Attractions at the Metropolitan Theatre.

The holiday piece at this theatre will be "Le Roi Carotte; or, the Yellow Hat," with new and magnificent scenery by Wm. Burbury, new costumes, eighty suits of silver plated armor, and full Amazon dress. Engagements have been made with three leading members of the profession in the East, and the company will be otherwise strengthened for the production of this piece.

Manager McCullough.

John McCullough, manager of the California Theatre, will return from his flying trip to the East to-night, having accomplished a great deal of work in a short space of time.

Miss Minnie Wells.

This actress will arrive to-night and will make her first appearance at the Metropolitan Theatre on Monday next in "The Lion of Nubia."

Italian Opera.

The Fabbri Opera Troupe will commence their short season of five nights at the California Theatre on Monday.

TO JEANNIE.

Thou art fair, my Jeannie;
Thou art fair to me!
Thou art fair, my Jeannie,
Fairer none can be.
Let them boast their lilies,
Delicate and tall;
But my bonny white rose
Is the queen of all.

When the sad twilight
Moves the heart to love,
Then I seek my Jeannie
In the lonely grove;
There in silent musing,
Hand in hand we stray;
Then I kiss my Jeannie —
Who shall say me nay?

Pretty, gentle Jeannie!
Thou'rt so dear to me,
That I vow if need be
I would die for thee!
I would die, and dying,
Say—though we must part—
Death has seized my body,
Jean hath still my heart!

A Mother's Gratitude.

One of the most touching instances of gratitude with which we are familiar occurred at Clyde the other day. A little boy, the child of a wealthy mother, tumbled into the river. He was rescued by a working man and restored to his parent. The woman gave the rescuer a three cent postage stamp, and said she would be glad to have him come up to her house and sit in the entry and hear her play the piano. He went away with tears in his eyes. He said he wasn't used to such overwhelming kindness.

A Care.

The Portland Oregonian says: Clothes-line thieving is being successfully practiced in Olympia. We suppose the thieves are not interfered with because the Olympians think, "give them rope enough and they'll hang themselves."

A well-regulated Newark family ate hash for breakfast in 365 different styles last year, and the mother is, in consequence, enabled to display a $90 lace handkerchief.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city — English breakfast tea — Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street. •

Literary Gossip.

Letters of Lord Byron hitherto unpublished, will appear in London, under the editorship of Henry Schultess Young.

Miss Amelia B. Edwards, the English novelist, in a recent novel talks of an "overseer in a Massachusetts cotton field." Oh, Amelia!

The Papal Index, just issued, contains the names of nineteen books which the Holy Father prohibits. Among them is Dr. Buchner's "Force and Matter."

According to a correspondent of the London Athenæum, Mr. Stanley, of Livingstone fame, will immediately publish the story of his life and early adventures.

"The Amazons," by Mr. Joaquin Miller, will be followed by another poem, entitled "Crispus." The opening lines are in memory of John Keats.

Osgood & Co. promise shortly a new Library Edition of De Quincy, putting into eleven volumes the twenty-two which now appear on their catalogue. They will appear in volumes of about 600 pages, and will join Osgood's Library Editions of Scott, Dickens, Hawthorne, etc.

Eight fresh lines of Chaucer have been found in the Ellesmere manuscript of the "Franklin's Tale," which are not in any other MS. yet examined. Six of these lines says the Belgravia, contain one of those pleasant asides with which Chaucer so often breaks the run of his stories. They will appear in the next part of the Chaucer Society's "Six Texts."

Thirty thousand copies of Tennyson's "Gareth and Lynette," were subscribed for by London booksellers before the publication of the volume. It is said that orders for 9,000 copies of the second volume of Forster's Life of Dickens have already been received by the English publishers.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronise really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

A Generous Offer.

The Chronicle, commenting on the London Times having advised Canada to throw off its allegiance to the mother country and set up for itself, seconds the motion, and says:

Or better still, we will destroy national boundaries and landmarks; we will remove Custom houses and coast guards, and will admit the Canadas as sovereign States into the American Union; and remembering a common ancestry and considering a common interest, there shall no longer be any necessity of reciprocal commercial treaties, but we shall become one people and members of the same nationality, and the two Canadas shall enroll themselves among the united and independent States of America.

Probably before the two Canadas seek to be admitted as "sovereign States," they would like the rights of "sovereign States" to be a little more clearly defined than they are at present. "Sovereign States" sounds well enough, but does it mean anything in particular?

Yes, Indeed.

The following telegraphic despatch would be read with interest by a large number of the inhabitants of San Francisco if they could read it:

New York, December 5.—The cigar makers on Saturday night resolved to obtain signatures to a petition to Congress, asking that the tax on home cigars may be abolished or reduced, so as to encourage home manufactures.

If the cigar makers of New York will send that petition on here we can promise them two or three thousand signatures. Ah Fat, Lee Lung, Hop Yee, and all the rest of them would sign.

The Bashful Alta !

You never see anything improper in Granny Alta. This is the style in which she does up her items. So nice ! So delicate:

Mrs. Carter sustained a severe sprain of the ankle and numerous scratches on her limb by stepping through an opening in the sidewalk on Powell street, near Vallejo, yesterday.

Granny wouldn't specify the limb for the world, but of course it was one of the lower limbs. "Scratches on her limb !" Oh, saw my limb off above the knee !

The Doctor's Daughter.

Miss Kitty ——, daughter of Dr. ——, loves her father and takes an interest in his profession. The other day a lady friend called to see her and asked how she was and how she was getting along. "Oh, pretty well," answered Miss Kitty, "pretty well, plenty of colds, some bronchitis, and a little typhus fever, but as papa said yesterday, to make things lively what we need is a nice little epidemic."

A French Bull.

The French make bulls as well as Irishmen, as may be gathered from the following story: Antoine having bought a billiard table, was undecided in which room he would place it.

A servant proposed one as being well lighted and altogether suitable.

"No," said Antoine, "that's just over my bedroom, and when I play late at night the noise will keep me awake."

Mrs. Riordan has just returned from the East with the most choice and elegant stock of Fall Millinery goods ever exhibited in San Francisco, which she has selected with the greatest care. Ladies will do well to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere. Q

"The Mystery Cleared Up."

Under the above head we find the following dispatch in the morning papers:

Philadelphia, December 7.—The mystery at Dover, Delaware, has been explained. Professor West was not killed. It turns out that he had killed a colored man whom he had hired temporarily, and after the man was dead the Professor cut the hands and feet off and buried them, with the object of making the authorities believe that they were his, so his wife could obtain an insurance of $25,000 on his life. He acknowledges that he killed the negro, but in self-defence. West is now in jail.

Nothing could be more satisfactory than this, all except the last sentence, "West is now in jail." What is West in jail for? It appears that Professor West hired a colored man temporarily—mark that, temporarily. Having told the nigger it was only a temporary engagement, he afterwards killed him, thus ending the engagement. He doesn't seem to have borne the darkey any ill-will; he only had need of his hands and feet, and he took them; and doubtless thinking it pitiable to see the poor fellow prowling round in a mutilated condition, finished him. It seems that Professor West wished to speculate off these members of the colored men; he buried them with the object of making the authorities believe that they were his, so that his wife could obtain an insurance of $25,000 on his life. Surely this scheme was well laid. It seems, however, that he could not play a cold hand on the authorities, and he could not realize $25,000 from his investment in feet. And now, just because he failed, they have put the Professor in jail, and he will have the bother of being tried and proving that he was insane when he killed the nigger, and that he did it in self-defense, and all that sort of thing. All right-minded people must sympathize with Professor West in his disappointment, and blame the insurance companies for being so nasty particular.

The Chameleon's Dish.

The following paragraph is going the rounds of the press:

A man will die for want of air in five minutes, for want of sleep in ten days, for want of water in a week, for want of food at varying intervals, depending on constitution, habits of life, and the circumstance of the occasion.

Muffington says it is interesting to know that a man will die for want of air in five minutes, but he would like to have it definitely settled how long a man can live on air and whether anyone ever grew fat on it.

"The Grizzly."

The first number of this paper, devoted to art, literature, the drama and general criticism, made its appearance on Saturday. A little too much prominence is given to the advertisements, which spoils the look of the paper. There are some sharp hits in the first number and for such a young grizzly the animal is pert and precocious.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The production of Charles Reade's dramatization of Tennyson's poem of "Dora" drew a good house last night and was splendidly performed. Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau read and acted the role of Dora so naturally and unaffectedly that the audience could well believe that it was Tennyson's "Dora" whom they saw. W. M. Lemn·, as Farmer Allen gave one of the best bits of character acting we have seen for some time; his characterization of the stern old farmer, whose will was law, was perfect. Miss Helen Tracy's reading and acting in the character of Mary Morrison were both extremely good; she played with feeling and did not over-act; John Wilson as William Allan, gave a very clever representation of that character, softening his voice in the most remarkable way, and simulating sickness with much art; J. C. Williamson, though Luke Sromfield is not a comedian's part, played it very well; La Petite Darling acted the character of William Allen very nicely, and gained much applause. To-night "Aurora Floyd" will be played, and we fear that "Dora," great success as it was, cannot be revived. Mrs. Chanfrau will take her farewell benefit to-night.

Alhambra.

Another immense audience assembled last night when Miss Jennie Worrell and Miss Lillie Hall made their second appearance in conjunction with the great Emerson Minstrels. They gained much applause for their song and dance performances. Billy Emerson was great in his specialties and was encored again and again. The very lively extravaganza entitled "The Streets of San Francisco" terminates the performance. The same bill will be repeated to-night.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The very popular sensation drama of "Hazard," in which Frank Hussey, Miss Blanche Clifton and others appear, will be played to-night for the last time. To-morrow evening Boucicault's capital drama entitled "The Octoroon" will be presented, and Miss Freek Daunt will make her first appearance in California in the character of Zoe.

Bella Union.

Among the many attractive acts to be presented this evening, are "The Two Feller's Alike," by Matt Kelley, Harry Sinclair and Tommy Bree; "Der New Yorick Bakery," by J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong, and "Making it Warm," by Johnny Tuers, Harry Sinclair and J. H. Larkin. Mme. Therese, Mons. Schmidt and corps de ballet appear in "Le Zingare," and the whole company will take part in "O'Flannigan and the Fairies."

The Atheneum.

Miss Ella La Rue, Charley Nickerson, Charley Thompson, and a great number of favorite artists appear nightly in a varied and attractive programme. On Friday evening, a grand entertainment will be given on the occasion of a complimentary benefit tendered to Charles Seymour, the business manager of the Atheneum.

The Fabbri Opera Troupe.

The Fabbri Opera Troupe, strengthened by the addition of Signor Fulvio Rigo and Signora F. Bianchi, will commence their season of opera at the California Theatre on Monday night, opening in "Belisario."

Woodward's Gardens.

The usual immense throng (fully 10,000 persons) visited these gardens on Sunday. Circus performances and glass-blowing every afternoon this week, and a grand extra bill for Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

The Bivalve.

This famous oyster house having been refitted and improved, is now under the management of H. E. Besthorn, assisted by "Henry," so long known in the oyster business. The best wines, liquors and cigars are kept. The best cooks and waiters in the State are employed. The neatly furnished rooms up-stairs for families and supper parties have long been a feature of THE BIVALVE, No. 640 Market street, near Kearny. P

OUR LETTER FROM VICTORIA

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

VICTORIA (V. I.), Nov. 26th, 1872.

DEAR FIGARO:—We have our amusements and entertainments in this part of the world as well as you in San Francisco. For the past month we have had a sorfeit of amusements. First, Charley Nickerson's Minstrel Troupe came. They were very well received by our theatre-going people. They did well in the start, but staid too long. Their manager, Mr. Hochgortel, left them here in the fog, and went to the Sound, and the troupe, to use a Frisco expression, "busted." Charley Nickerson left on the steamer California on her last trip, and the others got away as best they could after the collapse. The town has been flooded with shows; the menagerie, horse trainer, corn doctor, lame soldier and organ, Indian balm oil, and as the show bills say, "several others too numerous to mention." I suppose they all did well as they managed to leave town publicly. For the last two weeks Mrs. Charles Coriell's Vaudeville Troupe have been amusing the lovers of fun and frolic, with but indifferent success, despite the newspaper puffs they got. Now, I don't want your readers to think that I consider this troupe bilks, for they are not. The reason they were not better patronized was because they came too late. Had they come a month before they would have coined money, but as it was the people had had too much theatre. Nevertheless they had two or three good houses. They left here by the last Sound steamer to play at the principal places on the Sound. From there they go to Portland, and thence to 'Frisco, which they intend to reach by the Holidays. May they have better luck than they had here; they deserve it. As their departure left a void in the amusement line, a lady of this city determined to fill it. So on Friday last the young men and ladies of our Royal Island City were astonished by the following advertisement:

DANCING.

Mrs. M——n's dancing academy will open on Tuesday and Friday evening during the season, commencing at 8 o'clock precisely. Haynes' quadrille band will be in attendance.

I went and discovered that the Dancing Academy was an old gymnasium. In the centre were the rings suspended from the ceiling by ropes, on one end a "horse," and on the other was what they called a "strength trying machine" and a pair of foils. On the right hand of the room was a platform for the quadrille band, as the advertisements called it. It consisted of one solitary fiddle. I was informed that the rest of the band (the bass fiddle) was indisposed but would put in an appearance on the following dance night. By the way this band is very accommodating. It plays a waltz, polka, schottische and medley at the same time, at least I thought so by the style of the dancers. So you see, FIGARO, we are not entirely dependent upon 'Frisco show people for our entertainments here, but can turn a gymnasium into a ball room and transform a fiddler into a quadrille band when we wish to become votaries of Terpsichore. We will have our fun.

A WOULD-BE DANCER.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the 'Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

Ladies and Gentlemen

Who have been suffering from various complaints for years, are obtaining relief from Dr. Aikin, at 137 Montgomery street. He performs delicate surgical operations, and is daily effecting remarkable cures of old-standing diseases. The Doctor is a competent, scientific physician, and the afflicted can consult him with confidence. •

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street. •

To Make Life a Success,

Consult Prof. Mey, Astrologer, No. 15 Geary street, San Francisca. Persons consulting the Professor by letter should state the month and year of birth, from which a horoscope of their past, present and future is taken and forwarded. Consultation fee, 2; by letter, $3. V

"Mollie, darling, don't you want to buy a doll? Take your money to Hobbert, 155 Third street. He will suit you." D

DO NOT SLAM THE GATE.

Now, Harry, pray don't laugh at me;
But when you go so late,
I wish you would be careful, dear,
To never slam the gate.

For Bessie li tens every night,
And so does teasing Kate,
To tell me, next day, what o'clock
They heard you slam the gate.

'Twas nearly 10 last night, you know,
But now 'tis very late—
We've talked about so many things—
O, do not slam the gate!

For all the neighbors hearing it
Will say our future fate
We've been discussing! so I beg
You will not slam the gate!

For though it all is very true,
I wish that they would wait
To canvass our affairs, until—
Well—pray don't slam the gate!

At least, not now. But by-and-by,
When in our home I wait
Your coming, I shall always like
To hear you slam the gate!

For, whether you go out or in,
At early hours or late,
The whole world will not tease me then
About that horrid gate!

An Intelligent Compositor.

That intelligent compositor turned up in our office the other day. We happened to introduce into an article the poetic inquiry, "Where are the dead, the vanished dead?" But he—wild and reckless butcher that he is—got it into type thus: "Where are the dead, the varnished dead?" This man must die. A miscreant who inserts observations about varnish into poetry which is intended to call up the tenderest and holiest associations, is unfit to live in a world which wants to be happy.

Mens Conscia Recti.

When the fire was sweeping through Pearl street, in Boston, one of the largest shoe dealers, seeing that his stock could not be saved, invited the bystanders to help themselves. A policeman, who appeared on the spot, not advised of the invitation, indignantly observed an individual pulling pairs of boots from a case before him. "Villain!" he thundered, "what are you about?" "Trying to find a pair of eights!" was the response.

The President's Message.

Peace and prosperity are the key notes of this document. Cheapness and durability are the characteristics of H. Lnchsinger's furniture. All should visit his emporium, 731 Market street, and ascertain how cheaply a house can be furnished. D

An Old Landmark.

The Verandah Cigar Store, at the N. E. corner of Kearny and Washington streets, kept by Henry Schmidt, has been famous for the last eleven years for keeping the best Havana cigars, tobacco, choice meerschaum pipes, etc. F

Hats for Holidays.

"THE" Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second hat store below Kearny), is the place to go to buy your holiday hats. Finest hats, largest assortment and cheapest hat store in the city. Remember, No. 647, second hat store below Kearny, on Washington street. E

Hoop-Skirts.

Just received, 100 dozen latest styles of hoop-skirts, slightly damaged, to be sold for 50 cents, worth $1 50; also, bustles for 25 cents, at M. Friend's Hoop-skirt, Corset and Underwear Manufactory, No. 36 Second street, corner Jessie. Remember the corner store. •

Still Alive!

When looking for Holiday presents, go to the NEW YORK PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY, No. 25 Third street, and see those beautiful portraits in oil, water-colors and India-ink. Prices from one-third to one-half cheaper than at any other first-class gallery in the city. Remember the place—B. F. Howland & Co., 25 Third st. P

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. R. H. Cowan's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. H

The Best Remedies.

Dr. Parry's Last Chance, for pain. Dr. Perry's Webfoot Pills, for all bilious complaints. J. R. Gates and Co., corner Sansome and Commercial streets, sole agents. •

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

The Best Place to Buy

Dry Goods, Fancy Goods, Novelties, or Notions for the Holidays, is at Jones and Wilkinson's, 302 Third street, corner Folsom. Their assortments are large. Choice and cheap. Go and see for yourself. Y

Altogether the Best.

It is curious, but true, that J. A. Shaber, 707 Market street, near Third, should sell furniture and bedding cheaper than any other dealer in this city. Try him and you will be convinced. X

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. n

Give All a Chance.

There are some medical enthusiasts in England who think perhaps it would be well if small or unhealthy children could be suppressed when first born. A writer says had this been the practice in the past we should have had neither Voltaire, Victor Hugo, Goethe, Pope or Isaac Newton. The last might have been put in a quart pot when born. Voltaire was too small to christen for some days, and Hugo and Goethe were not expected to live.

Mark Twain.

The following characteristic card from Mark Twain appears in the London papers:

SIR:—With your kind permission I desire to say to these societies in London, and other cities in Great Britain, under whose auspices I have partly promised to lecture, that I am called home by cable telegram. I shall spend the greater part of next year here with my family, and may be able to lecture a month during the autumn upon such scientific topics as I know least about, and consequently feel least trammeled in dilating upon.—Yours faithfully, MARK TWAIN.

Retribution.

It is computed that Harper's Weekly, "A Journal of Civilization," has lost three thousand subscribers since the death of Horace Greeley. The public, now that good man is dead, remember with horror and disgust the vile and wicked caricatures of him with which the "Journal of Civilization" disfigured its pages, and have visited their displeasure on its proprietors in a practical manner.

Helping Themselves.

A man who died recently at Crestline, Ohio, under circumstances so destitute, that a few rich old curmudgeons in town clubbed together and butchered his hogs for the widow, each one, however, taking home a choice tit-bit of pork for thus helping the widow and fatherless in their hour of trouble.

Hard on Policemen.

Policemen in Jackson, Michigan, have no comforts worth living for. The chief has issued an order that hereafter no member of the force may smoke, drink, or sit on dry goods boxes while on duty. And amusing themselves by tickling a cat with a straw will subject them to dismissal.

In the Old Times.

An Eastern exchange says: In Downieville, in 1853, a woman was attacked with insanity and shot a miner. The population immediately became insane and hung her by the neck to a bridge. It is needless to say that Mrs. Fair does not propose to settle in Downieville.

Very Pleasing.

The Wilmington Critic says: "One of the peculiarities of the gas lately furnished to the city is that it purrs like a cat. A resigned householder says that we must take it as we get it, and be thankful that it does not bark like a dog."

Kansas Festivities.

Fun, lots of it, out in Kansas. They mix the tragic, the tender and the solemn in the most unscrupulous manner. Fights and funerals, elopements and weddings, are the order of the day. Go West.

A Good Idea.

Kitty, aged three years, was trying to think of a pleasant surprise for her father on his birthday. At last she cried, "I know, mamma, I know!" "What, my dear?" "Buy me a little sister without saying anything to papa."

MRS. RIORDAN has just returned from the East with the most choice and elegant stock of Fall Millinery goods ever exhibited in San Francisco, which she has selected with the greatest care. Ladies will do well to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere, q

That Horrid Boy.

A little brother is sometimes more agreeable when he becomes an angel over yonder. Our friend Parker knows a certain little brother whom he would gladly waft at once over to the thither shore, if society had not an absurd prejudice against premeditated murder. Young Parker loved Miss Clamm, the sister of the said babe, and a few evenings since he called upon the lady for the purpose of proposing to her. They sat on the sofa in the front parlor, alone. As the evening wore on, Parker plucked up courage, nudged over to Miss Clamm's side of the sofa, and began some preliminary remarks about his "eternal happiness," his "heart's longings," his "soul's idol," his "love's young dream," etc., etc. Just as he had taken Miss Clamm's little hand in his, and was about to squeeze it, a terrific sneeze was heard beneath the sofa. Parker and Clamm both sprang to their feet. Parker dragged the sofa away from the wall, and there lay young Clamm, snickering and chuckling as if he had rich things stored in him; and when Miss Clamm flew at him and boxed his ears, he remained silent; but, escaping, he ran to the door, and, standing there with his hand on the knob, he observed: "Never you mind! I'm a-goin' right up stairs to tell ma that you and old Parker have been a-sittin' down yer kissin' each other, and squeezin' hands, and huggin' like mad; a-carryin' on scandalus. I'm goin' to tell ma—certing! And you jist wait till pa comes, and if he don't boot that Parker outen the front door quicker'n lightnin' my name ain't William Henry Clamm. Oh! he'll go for ye, mister! He'll root around in here like a maniac when he hears you've been kissin' sis! Never you mind!" And then W. H. Clamm faded into the entry. Parker and Clamm have not yet agreed to consolidate.

Always Behind Time.

A doctor recently died who was the oldest medical man in one of our large midland towns. The babies he had helped in early practice through the perils of childhood, had come to be gray-haired men; and one day, as the story goes, he had an engagement with one of these, a well-known merchant. The hour of the engagement was long past, and the doctor was pacing the floor of his study when the gentleman came in with an apology on his lips. "No matter, no matter!" said the doctor, with an impatient wave of his hand; "you are always behind. I remember," said he, "fifty years ago, sitting for ten mortal hours in the little back parlor of your father's house, waiting for you to be born. You are always behind time."

Consecrated Ground.

When Moliere, the comic poet, died, the Archbishop of Paris would not let his body be buried in consecrated ground. The king, being informed of this, sent for the Archbishop, and expostulated with him about it, but finding that the prelate was inflexibly obstinate, his majesty asked, "How many feet deep the consecrated ground reached?" This question coming by surprise, the archbishop replied:

"About eight."

"Well," answered the king, "I find there is no getting the better of your scruples; therefore, let his grave be dug twelve feet deep—that's four below your consecrated ground—and let him be buried there."

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

A Victim of the Boston Fire.

The New York Dispatch says: He is here, the necessitous young man from Boston. You can meet him anywhere down town. His tale of sorrow includes a brief, general account of the big fire, how it ruined his business prospects, and the frequently announced fact that he had nothing to eat since yesterday morning. He closes with an urgent appeal for immediate pecuniary aid, and in the event of your donating a ten-cent stamp, you can be reasonably certain that your health will be drank at the next corner in gin and water. There is one trouble about this business. The necessitous, pleading individual wonderfully resembles the burned-out individual who appeared here just after Chicago had gone into the wholesale ash trade. Time, it is true, has not dealt with him as gently as it might have done; neither has it been as harsh. The social hue of the nose is of a little deeper magenta; the eyes are slightly redder, and more watery. The hat, boots and shirt are about the same—bad enough.

In the shoe shops of Lynn, Mass. are some venerable relics of the past. For instance, there is a lap stone that has been used in the shop for 127 years, and a lap which has been used on the same bench for 69 years—The latter belongs to John Chase.

In six months months Boston has sent six million gallons of rum to Africa, besides its missionary work.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there the truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Sour Grapes.

The fable of the fox who pronounced the grapes sour when he found them inaccessible is well known. Something like this has recently happened. In former times the Alta's staff of reporters used to range freely through Pacific Fruit-market, devouring the fruit and paying nothing therefor. Now this is all changed. No more do they crush the juicy apples between their grinders; the warning placard, "No Lunching !" forbids them, and even the privileges of the press are suspended. No wonder, then, that one of the Alta's reporters, in a state of disgust, published the following in Tuesday's issue of that sheet:

> The short crop of apples in Oregon, having cut off one source of supply in this market, prices of that loathsome fruit are manifesting an upward tendency.

"That loathsome fruit!" Mark that. Being able no longer to eat apples free of charge, he pronounces that fruit loathsome. Some may say that he does so with the recollection of its being "That forbidden fruit whose mortal taste brought death into the world and all our woe," but we know better; it was the placard, "No Lunching!" that induced him to make this attack on the apple business.

Another Judgment.

The daily papers recount how the teller of the London and San Francisco Bank was splitting wood on Sunday at his house in Oakland, and how a splinter struck one of his eyes and injured it so severely that it is feared he will lose the sight of it. This should be a warning to tellers in banks not to attempt to split wood. Splitting wood is not so easy as making change. Why will people attempt to do things which they are incompetent to accomplish? We are sorry, of course, for this gentleman, but we cannot help reflecting with a feeling akin to gratification that it was on Sunday that this accident happened, and that, consequently, the religious press can record it as a signal judgment on him for breaking the Sabbath. He ought to have let a Chinaman break the commandment, and probably no such judgment would have been visited on him; and if it had, of course it wouldn't have been of much consequence.

Saw How it Was.

A would-be author was advised to try the effect of one of his compositions on the folks at home, without confessing the authorship. His mother fell asleep, his sister groaned, his brother asked him to shut up, as they had had quite a sufficient quantity of words without wit, and at last his wife tapped him upon the shoulder with the sweetest possible "Won't that do?" He then saw how it was himself, buried his portfolio, recovered his digestion, and has been a happy man ever since.

Such unpleasant scenes have occurred at late wedding receptions under the influence of Messrs. Mumm and Roederer, that these two gentlemen are hereafter to be strictly excluded from this sort of entertainment.

The following toast was pronounced at a firemen's dinner, and was received with great applause: "The Ladies—their eyes kindle the only flame against which there is no insurance."

Mrs. O'Leary wonders "if thim Bosting spalpeens will be after schwearin' that it was her poor baste of a cow that burned their city?"

It is proposed to cover the London bridge.

MRS. RIORDAN has just returned from the East with the most choice and elegant stock of Fall Millinery goods ever exhibited in San Francisco, which she has selected with the greatest care. Ladies will do well to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere, q

Washing Returned in One Day

Policemen not to be Sneezed At.

Our San Francisco policemen are dignified beings, who consider themselves just a little above angels, and do pretty much as they please; but the Milesian policeman on his native soil is a still more important personage. We learn from the Belfast Morning News, of Nov. 5, that Constable Sullivan arrested two small boys, James Keegan and Samuel Smith, and in due course brought them up before Mr. O'Donnell, the magistrate. Though our space is precious, we will quote the case in extenso:

The complainant said that when on duty the previous day he was passing the two prisoners, and one of them—Keegan—began to sneeze, or, at least, affected to do so. Complainant advised him to move on, and he turned around and repeated his offence. When witness went to arrest him the other prisoner did the same thing.

Mr. O'Donnell.—They were affecting to sneeze?

Witness.—Yes, your Worship. Keegan sneezed a second time, and I told him to go away, and when I turned about, the other prisoner sneezed. I caught him in the act.

Mr. O'Donnell.—Is that the disorderly conduct you complain of, affecting to sneeze?

Witness.—Affecting to sneeze, your Worship. Several parties have made complaints regarding that.

Mr. O'Donnell (to prisoners).—What do you say to this charge?

The prisoners said they both sneezed, and were at once arrested.

Mr. O'Donnell.—Why did you sneeze?

Keegan.—We got snuff.

The mothers of the prisoners appeared in court, and said the boys had been attending religious duties the previous day.

Mr. O'Donnell said their conduct was unbecoming in the street, and discharged them with a caution.

We trust that sneezing in the presence of a policeman will not be deemed an offence in this country. We may avoid snuff, but influenza is prevalent, and it will be hard on us if, when we have a cold in the head, we must stop at home, or incur the risk of being arrested by a dignified policeman.

Anthony Trollope.

Our London namesake has something to say about Mr. Anthony Trollope, who spent months in Australia and wouldn't stay more than two days in San Francisco. "It is known that Mr. Anthony Trollope is, or has recently been, traveling in Australia and New Zealand. A friend of the FIGARO communicates to us some amusing extracts from a letter written by a gentleman, at present in New Zealand, which will be read with interest by those who know Mr. Anthony Trollope:

On dit that he is not a very pleasant traveling companion. On board steamer from Melbourne, at table, a gentleman asked him to pass something. The reply was, "Well! I'll pass it this time, but ask the waiter, in future." B——, the lawyer, with his family, had engaged the coach from Queenstown, so Trollope, his wife, and P——, had to hire an express, and had had horses. B—— stayed to breakfast some distance from Clyde, and he and his family ate all the eggs, and drank all the milk, so, when Trollope arrived, there was nothing in the house to eat. B——, who is fond of a joke, told the landlord that Trollope would be passing, soon, with the panorama he was painting. So, the landlord politely asked Trollope to let him see it, upon which Trollope got into an awful rage, and swore some.

An Historic Evergreen.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. u

Another Kind of Enoch Arden.

Quebec has just had another Enoch Arden story which takes the wind out of Tennyson's altogether. A shoemaker left his home to seek his fortune in the United States some eight years ago. His wife heard nothing of him for three years, and believing him to be dead yielded to the solicitations of an old sweetheart, and married him. Time rolled on and progeny arrived. A few weeks ago Enoch Arden returned home, and went after his wife. He saw his successor and the infants. He did not rush away to the wilderness and waste away in green and melancholy business. Not at all. He went for that new husband and kicked him out; sorted out the children and kicked them after him. He then gave his wife a whaling and settled down into a model head of the family.

Pushing Forward.

The Home Journal says that Augustin Daly, not many years ago, was earning ten dollars a week, as dramatic critic of a New York weekly newspaper. He now resides in his own house, in West Twenty-fifth street, which is luxuriously but tastefully furnished, and is the proprietor of two successful theatres, and if we may credit newspaper report is worth $275,000.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
..Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

Some Husbands.

Some husbands never leave home in the morning without kissing their wives and bidding them good-bye, in the tones of unwearied love, and whether it be policy or fact, it has all the effect of fact; and those homes are generally pleasant ones, provided always, that the wives are appreciative, and welcome the discipline in a kindly spirit. We know an old gentlemen who lived with his wife over fifty years, and never left home without the kiss and good-bye. Some husbands will leave home without saying anything at all, but turn round at the last point of observation and wave an adieu. Some husbands never leave home without some unkind word or look, thinking that such a course will keep things all straight during their absence. Then on returning some husbands come home pleasant and happy, unsoured by the world; some doze away in speechless stupidity, until bedtime. "Depend upon it," says Dr. Spooner, "that home is the happiest where kindness, and interest, and politeness, and attention are the rule on the part of the husband." Dr. Spooner of all men ought to know how good a plan it is to indulge in a little spooning with a woman even after you have married her.

A Scene Not on the Bills.

Miss Minnie Wells, the "Lion Queen," who is to make her first appearance at the Metropolitan Theatre on Monday next, was the heroine of a thrilling incident at the Bowery Theatre, New York, in May, 1870. The story is told in the New York Sun of the day following, as follows:

The performance at the Bowery Theatre on Saturday night terminated in a frightful tragedy. The previous week the manager introduced living lions and tigers as a novelty, with a young woman named Minnie Wells as the Lion Queen. Attired in a well-fitting suit of red, she boldly entered the lion's cage, and for a time became master of the King of the Forest. The tigers were also so thoroughly under her control that at a mere motion of her hand they crawled to her feet, permitting her to sit on their backs.

At about 12, when the curtain was about to fall, Miss Minnie entered the den of lions and tigers and reduced them to submission. Attired in her sh costume, the girl then went into the cage of the two puma lionesses and began her performance. One of them was ready to obey her mistress, but the other was out of humor. But it would never do to disappoint the patrons of the Bowery Theatre, so Miss Minnie attempted to chastise the animal, and the brute, smarting under the blows, sprang upon her.

In the twinkling of an eye the Lion Queen was thrown down and the furious beast sprang at her throat, fastening its teeth and claws into both throat and shoulder. It was thought at first by the spectators that this was part of the play, until the shrieks of the girl undeceived them; then the truth began to dawn on the house. The women shrieked and fainted. Some of the more timid left their seats and rushed from a place which had been changed from the representation of a mimic to a real tragedy and real horror, and where red ochre was put into the shade by the shedding of real blood. Men who are usually not afraid of any mortal, were paralyzed at the sight thus unexpectedly brought up before them, and could do nothing more than shout for assistance.

All this was the tragedy of an instant, yet it seemed hours to the woman who lay on the floor of the cage with the teeth and claws of the beast tearing her flesh. Shriek after shriek ran through the theatre, and all supposed that the end of the Lion Queen's performances had come, but soon the attendants rushed to the cage, armed with iron bars, and began to belabor the tawny monster until she released her hold. The girl was then taken out more dead than alive, for she had fainted. Her friends rushed up and took her from the theatre to her lodgings, where a surgeon was summoned to dress the wounds. On examination it was found that her injuries were not fatal, but still they were very severe. The girl's neck and shoulders had been very severely bitten and lacerated by the lion's teeth and claws. In trying to save herself, the Lion Queen thrust out her hand, which was seized by the lion's teeth, and so severely bitten that it may be necessary to amputate it.

The animals with which Miss Minnie appears are only two years and five months old, and were obtained by her father a few days after their birth, and reared and trained by him especially for his daughter to perform with. They are said to be very tractable, and devotedly attached to their young mistress, showing for her all the affection of young spaniels.

The keeper of the animals is unable to account for the ferocity of the lioness, which is Miss Minnie's pet, otherwise than that she was annoyed by "Prince," the African lion in the adjoining cage.

The Lion Queen declares her determination to maintain the title she has assumed, and that she will appear again immediately on her recovery. Miss Minnie and her friends are very sanguine that, if no fever supervenes, she will be able to perform again few days.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

Ladies and Gentlemen

Who have been suffering from various complaints for years, are obtaining relief from Dr. Aikin, at 137 Montgomery street. He performs delicate surgical operations, and is daily effecting remarkable cures of old-standing diseases. The Doctor is a competent, scientific physician, and the afflicted can consult him with confidence.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. a

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street.

THE OYSTER-SUPPER CRITIC.

He has a heavy head of hair;
His heavy hands are neatly kidded;
He twists a heavy, dark moustache,
And even his eyes are heavy-lidded.
He babbles in a heavy style,
And heavily grows analytic—
This literary heavy-weight,
This heavy oyster-supper critic!

The manager's his bosom friend;
The agents love him like a brother;
His golden rule's to treat himself
As he'd be treated by another.
And though for business' sake he sells
Impartial praise for filthy lucre,
There's not at the dramatic cards
A rival whom he cannot euchre

He makes trans'a ions from the French,
Of interest contemporaneous,
And ekes a modest salary out
By bribes and bonuses extraneous.
He likes to buzz some light-foot blonde
Who from a prince received her breedin',
And ever since has lived, like Eve,
Naked, but not ashamed, in Eden.

At night he flits from box to box,
Or stands and gossips in the lobby,
With jest and gesture fast and free,
And tout ensemble neat and nobby;
And whilst he eyes the debutante,
And first resolves to praise, then damn her,
New York no other critic boasts
So good at heart—or bad at grammar.

An Appreciated Gift.

Here is an instance of touching devotion on the part of a husband. The wife of a Louisville dancing master lately drew $1,200 in a lottery and gave it to her husband. He took it, went to Germany, came back with another wife, and kicked the first into the street. He continues the dancing school at the old stand. Were he made to dance on nothing the heavens would not be hung in black.

That's Right.

We are informed by a contemporary that the editor who never said anything to offend anybody has retired from the business. He is a success as a skim-milk peddler.

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of reaching it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced; his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

To-night Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau whose performances have been so generally admired, and whose audiences have been composed of the elite of the city, will take her farewell benefit, and make her last appearance but two. "The Hunchback" will be presented with Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau as Julia. Miss Helen Tracy as Helen, Henry Edwards as Master Walter, Mr. Chaplin as Sir Thomas Clifford, and a strong cast throughout. The usual matinee performance will be given to-morrow. "The wife's Ordeal" will be played.

Alhambra.

Miss Jennie Worrell, Miss Lillie Hall, Billy Emerson, and the brilliant combination of artistes entitled Emerson's Minstrels, give a splendid performance every night, and every night the Alhambra Theatre is crowded to suffocation. This evening, and at the matinee to-morrow, Miss Jennie Worrell will sing new local songs, and appear in song and dance with Miss Lillie Hall; Billy Emerson will give his great act of "The Drum Major" and other characterizations, and a number of other entertaining features will be presented.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The announcement that a lady by the name of Miss Frank Daunt would make her debut before a San Francisco audience in the character of Zoe in "The Octoroon," drew a good house last night. Before the curtain rose Mr. Pierpont Thayer (the best man to make a speech in the company) came out and said that he had to make an apology. Miss Daunt had attended rehearsal at 11 o'clock that morning, and seemed well and prepared to act, but at 5 in the evening had sent a note stating that she was seized with sudden illness which would prevent her appearance. William Barry was also indisposed. Therefore Miss Fanny Young, always reliable, played Zoe, and Mr. Ellerton, a clever comedian, uncle Pete, while Mrs. L. F. Beatty took the part of Dora Sunnyside, for which Miss Fanny Young was cast. Miss Fanny Gibson, who made her first appearance at the Metropolitan Theatre on this occasion, played Paul in a very pleasing manner. The audience took the apology most good naturedly, and under the circumstances the play was very well performed. George Hinckley made a better Salem Scudder than we expected, character parts not being in his line. This play will be presented this evening and at the matinee to-morrow.

Bella Union.

The ballet of "La Ziogara," by Mme Therese and Mons. Schmidt, supported by a corps de ballet comprising Carrie Chapman, Carrie Armstrong, Minnie Fillmore. Miss Josephine and other is very popular. Cogill and Cooper are great in song and dance; Johnny Tuess, J. H. Larkin, Matt Kelly, Harry Sinclair and Tommy Bree appear in amusing negro acts, and the extravaganza of "O'Flannigan and the Fairies" terminates a well arranged evening's entertainment.

The Atheneum.

An extra bill will be given to-night for the benefit of Mr. Charles Seymour, the business manager, prior to his departure for the East. In addition to the regular company a large number of volunteers will appear in the olio. There will be a rush to the Atheneum to-night.

Woodward's Gardens.

The usual immense throng (fully 10,000 persons) visited these gardens on Sunday. Circus performances and glass-blowing every afternoon this week, and a grand extra bill for Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Mustn't Look Scared.

Timid people should avoid England. A poor girl was arrested there and kept a week in jail, simply because she looked nervous and afraid; and a little man from the country behaved so queerly, on his first visit to London, that the police locked him up. He was the most harmless creature in the world and being scared was his only offense.

Work for the Coroner.

A lady juror in Wyoming was so anxious to sit on a jury, that she gave her twins laudanum to quiet them, and succeeded so well that several other females will get a job of sitting on the babes at a coroner's inquest.

The Philadelphia hotels are to have girl clerks.

The finest lines of furniture, carpets, pianos and holiday goods ever offered in this city, and at the most liberal discount, are at Terry & Co's auction house, 309 and 311 Pine street. The public are invited to call before purchasing elsewhere. Also, for sale, one very elegant billiard table. B

The Bivalve.

This famous oyster house having been refitted and improved, is now under the management of H. E. Besthorn, assisted by "Henry," so long known in the oyster business. The best wines, liquors and cigars are kept. The best cooks and waiters in the State are employed. The neatly furnished rooms up-stairs for families and supper parties have long been a feature of THE BIVALVE, No. 640 Market street, near Kearny. P

Death of Edwin Forrest.

The telegraph brings us news of the death of Edwin Forrest, the famous actor, in the sixty sixth year of his age. It took place yesterday morning at Philadelphia. For fifty-three years Edwin Forrest has trod the boards of the American stage and for at least twenty-five years of that time was the most popular actor in the country. During his later years the physical powers with which he used to electrify his audiences were much impaired by age. Mr. Forrest made his debut as an actor as Young Norval in the tragedy of "Douglass" at the Walnut street Theatre, Philadelphia, in 1820, at the age of fourteen, having during the preceding year played in minor female parts. His great hit was his performance of Othello, in New York, at twenty years of age. He achieved his greatest successes in Roman characters in which he was every inch a man. He was married in England to Miss Sinclair, daughter of the famous vocalist. The marriage was not a happy one and his wife obtained a divorce from him with $3,000 a year alimony. The great struggle of Forrest's life was to avoid the payment of this allowance. In the year 1866 Forrest came to California and played an engagement at Maguire's Opera House. He brought with him to support him in his plays, John McCullough, and in many pieces the young and vigorous support shared the honors with the then veteran star. California owes Forrest a debt of gratitude for having introduced it to one who was to become a worthy manager of its chief theatre. Mr. McCullough too, no doubt owes some of the perfection which he evinces in Roman characters to the tuition of the great master of these roles. Lately Forrest has relinquished the stage and has been giving dramatic readings at Steinway Hall, New York, and other places, to small audiences. He had played a long engagement on the world's stage and in many parts played it well, but he could not bear the thought of losing sight of the public whose applause had been for many years the chief pleasure of his life. Forrest made a fortune by his profession. Of late years we have heard many rumors as to his intended disposition of his wealth and one was to the effect that a large portion of it would be used to perpetuate his memory by the foundation of a dramatic college for the purpose of instructing students in that art to which he devoted his life. Those who remember Forrest in the height of his powers will confess that it must be long e'er we look upon his like again. As an exponent of the physical school of acting he was unrivalled.

Too Familiar.

We have all met the familiar young fellow who, on the briefest acquaintance, seems to have known you for years, and addresses you as "dear boy," or "old fel." One of this breed, now in our mind's eye, recalls the witty rebuff of Sidney Smith, who was annoyed one evening by the familiarity of a young man of this sort, who addressed him by his surname alone. Hearing him tell that he had to go to the Archbishop of Canterbury's palace for the first time, the reverend canon said, pathetically, "Pray don't clap him on the back and call him Hawley."

The light created by the Boston fire, was seen at sea, ninety miles from the shore, and even at Portland, Maine, which is over one hundred miles distant.

Journals are being started in Paris at the rate of seven a month. Still, there are fewer in existence now than a year since. They die and make no sign.

A Terre Haute girl exclaimed, when she saw a Thomas feline elevate his back: "O, my, wouldn't he make a lovely bustle?"

John Hay talks of starting an evening paper in St. Louis.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the 'Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

Ladies and Gentlemen

Who have been suffering from various complaints for years, are obtaining relief from Dr. Aikin, at 237 Montgomery street. He performs delicate surgical operations, and is daily effecting remarkable cures of old-standing diseases. The Doctor is a competent, scientific physician, and the afflicted can consult him with confidence.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Booken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Squarza's Punches.

One of the most famous institutions of California is Squarza's Punch. It is found in every city, village and mining camp in the State. It is delicious, wholesome and unlike anything else. The proprietor of this delightful beverage notifies his patrons that he has opened at No. 317 Kearny street, between Pine and Bush streets, a BRANCH of his old and popular symposium on Leidesdorff street.

KISS, BUT NEVER TELL.

A world of bliss lies in a kiss,
When snatched from lips that love it well;
So indulge your taste in every case,
But, mind you, never kiss and tell.

Like morning's ray the smile may play
'Round lips where Cupid loves to dwell;
Then take a "smack," or pay one back,
But, mind you, never kiss and tell.

If you have pressed the heaving breast
Where love's warm passions swell,
And from the lip the nectar sip
Have taken, mind you, never tell.

Weep, if you please, your heart to ease,
As did old Jacob at the well;
But never say in any way
That you have kissed; so never tell.

A Child's Answer.

Some children at the dinner table were discussing that which has often troubled the heads of older and wiser persons.

"Wasn't Adam a good man before he got a wife?"

"Of course he was," answered a little girl.

"How long was he a good man after he got a wife?"

"A very short time."

"What made him a bad man after he got a wife."

At this juncture a little fellow spoke up, "Miss Ann, I can answer that question."

"Well, what is it?"

"Eve made him eat the wrong apple."

A Long Indictment.

The indictment against Wm. M. Tweed makes a large volume. It contains one thousand and fifty pages, and is the longest indictment ever found in the world. It is not probable that half his rascalities are enumerated even in that space, and to denounce them in proper terms would require a half dozen volumes of 500 pages each.

Precocity.

A Minnesota two-year old baby won a watch at a raffle, but played poker with his four year-old brother and lost it the same day.

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

The Best Place to Buy

Altogether the Best.

It is curious, but true, that J. A. Shaber, 707 Market street, near Third, should sell furniture and bedding cheaper than any other dealer in this city. Try him and you will be convinced. Y

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Wouldn't Stand the Raise.

Henry Ward Beecher, who is paid the same salary for preaching in his church that the President of the United States gets—$25,000 a year—recently heard that his congregation had resolved to increase the same $10,000, as an indirect rep'y to the slanderous attacks made on him by the Woodhull crowd, and to show the value they place on their pastor's services. Beecher resolutely declined to receive the increase, and is reported to have said to the committee:

My dear friends, I don't see why, because I have been unfortunate enough to be assaulted by a nameless animal in its own peculiar way, that you should seek to protect me from future assaults by covering me with bank notes. Innocence and rectitude are a man's best security. I would rather have your confidence than all the money in Wall street. Give me your faith and love, and bestow your extra $10,000 on the poor and needy.

Stupid.

The Oakland Torchlight copies the Alta's dramatic "criticisms." In Wednesday's issue it published that paper's notice of the performance of "Dora," which closes as follows:

Mr. Wilson's acting as William Allen, is unfortunately too natural, for he is really ill, and feels the pain he is obliged to simulate in the part.

The fact is that Mr. Wilson is better now than he has been for months, and the blundering "critic" of the Alta did him an ill turn when it robbed him of the credit of his simulation of illness and said it was not acting at all. If the Torchlight cannot afford a dramatic critic on this side of the Bay it had better rely on FIGARO instead of the Alta.

What Will Follow.

Miss Matilda Phillpps, the courageous young lady who rescued a young New England gentleman from drowning, at Genoa, a short time ago, writes that they "have been friends ever since," and the Sacramento Union predicts that there will be "Didn't I save your life, you brute?" LETTER FROM CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2, 1872.

DEAR FIGARO:—The reappearance in Chicago of Miss Jane Coombs in a round of elegant comedy characters is an event calculated to produce no slight commotion among our amusement papers of the non-critical class, for it has been a long time since we have been treated with an A No. 1 comedy at

M'VICKER'S THEATRE.

Miss Maggie Mitchell closed a not very successful engagement on Saturday evening Nov. 30th (but it was no fault of hers; Epizootic was the cause.) "Jane Eyre" was the closing piece of this lady. To night Miss Jane Coombs in "The School for Scandal," the lady appearing in the role of Lady Teazle, in the rendition of which it is not too much to say that she stands alone on the American stage. Such, at least is the verdict of the Chicago public. She will be ably supported by the following main characters: Clara Stoneall as Mrs. Candour, Phœbe McAllister as Maria, M. Lanagan as Sir Peter Teazle, J. O'Neil as Charles Surface, M. J. Pendleton as Sir Oliver Surface, W. H. Powers as Joseph Surface, supported by the rest of their able stock company.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The second week of Miss Charlotte Thompson's engagement has been a successful one in every respect. In her rendition of Ogarita in "The Sea of Ice," she has fully established herself in the opinion of Chicago. She is an actress of much cultivation. On Friday, at her benefit, she appeared to excellent advantage as Madeline, in the drama of that name. In the same piece Mr. Milton Nobles, an old Californian, developed a capacity for eccentric comedy impersonation such as surprised and delighted those who admire the subdued force and extreme naturalness which characterized his heavier assumptions. Wm. Horace Lingard, Alice Dunning Lingard, and a complete comedy company of their own open for one week with a new comedy—"A Life's Dream," for this evening. The cast includes the Lingards, Messrs. Edgar Bence, Wm. F. Owens Harry Hudson, Geo. Ryder, B. F. Dunning, Miss Eliza Hudson, and Jennie Walley. Mr. Lingard also announces ten new character statues. Following this troope, commencing Dec. 8th, the Lydia Thompson burlesque troupe.

HOOLEY'S OPERA HOUSE.

John Allen has been doing up Rip Van Winkle to fair houses. This week the place will be closed to admit a complete preparation for the new order of things to be inaugurated one week from to-day. The theatre is then to be dedicated to modern comedy. Henry J. Byron's comedy entitled "Partners for Life" will be produced.

MYER'S OPERA HOUSE.

Mackin and Wilson put in an appearance here to-morrow evening, also, Mr. J. H. Milburn. The local play entitled "The Epizootic" is still having a prosperous run. Cotton and Arlington on the ends. Billy Rice and Master Clarence Berton are underlined to appear on Monday, Dec. 9th.

AIKEN'S THEATRE.

"Humpty Dumpty" gave its last expiring performance on Nov. 30th. This piece has had a run of five weeks to fair houses. On Monday evening, Arthur Rubenstein will occupy the house for a series of concerts, supported by Henri Wienawski, M'lle Louise Comeny and M'lle Louise Liebnart. Monday, Dec. 9th, the dramatic season of 1872-'73 opens with Shakspeare's tragedy of "Richard III." Mr. Lawrence P. Barrett will be the first star, and on the opening night he will assume the part of Richard. Mr. Frank Aiken appears as Richmond, Mr. Frank Lawlor as Buckingham, Mrs. Lanagan as Queen Elizabeth, Miss Stevens as Lady Ann. "Hamlet" is underlined for next week.

NIXON'S AMPHITHEATRE.

The Morlacchi Combination put in an appearance last week. Crowded and overflowing houses have greeted them nightly during the week. The Prager Family gave a musical entertainment on Friday evening: performed a German opera, besides a number of their own peculiar novelties, including the famous cat duet. The place will close for a week, to prepare for entire new novelties not heretofore dished up to Chicagoans.

WEST SIDE OPERA HOUSE.

Is still running, and doing a good business. Some changes occur every week.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A new comedy entitled "The Coming Man," by a lady of Chicago, was produced at the Academy of Music on Friday evening to an audience fully numbering 1,500.

Mr. J. A. Herne, widely known as Lucille Western's regular auxilliary support, has been engaged as a member of the Academy of Music company.

Winton's Comedy Company plays a few nights at Waukigan.

The Academy of Music company, with Annie Wait and Mr. Leak goes to Milwaukee this week. WILL.

Japan.

It is hard to keep track of the progressive acquisitions of awakened Japan. The very latest novelty is a National Anthem which has been composed for the Empire by a canny Scotchman, "formerly band master of H. B. M. 10th Regiment of Foot," according to the local press. Think of that! a "National" Anthem written for an Empire which was ancient when the ancestors of the composer were unbleached barbarians in Caledonia or Gael! Japan is now completely equipped for civilization, lacking only a National Debt, which an enterprising American, Mr. Williams, has now gone to Europe to procure.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapine;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LEPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

CARSON CITY.—Church's Minstrels did not do very well. Their performance was not sufficiently broad for the mountaineers, and was pronounced slow. On Monday Maguire's Alhambra Combination will open at the theatre. If the Carson people do not support them well they ought never to have a first-class show again.

SALT LAKE.—Mrs. F. M. Bates took her farewell benefit and made her last appearance but one on the 6th, appearing in "Frou-Frou." On the following evening "Lucretia Borgia" was played. On the 9th John S. Lindsay commenced an engagement, appearing as Henri de Lagardere in "The Duke's Motto." "The Bells" was underlined for the 12th.

OAKLAND.—Madame Bianchi's benefit concert on Monday at Brayton Hall was well attended. The Oakland Harmonic Society gave a concert at Brayton Hall last night. They were assisted by Messrs. Hartdaren, Koppitz and Schlotte, and executed a good programme in excellent style. A concert and Holiday Festival for the benefit of the Second Congregational Church will be held at Pelowze's Hall, Oakland Point, on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings of next week.

MONTEREY. — Lynn's Panorama and Comedy Troupe are billed to perform here to-night. They consist of George Lynn, Mrs. Lissie Lynn, La Petite Newcomb and others. They go from here to San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, San Diego and San Bernardino.

MARYSVILLE.—The Wilton Dramatic Troupe closed at the Theatre on Tuesday evening, with "Ten Nights in a Bar-room." The Appeal praises the company and blames the public for not crowding the Theatre

GRASS VALLEY.—Professor McDonald has been lecturing on phrenology. To-night the oratorio of "Queen Esther," which has been for some time past in preparation, will be given at Hamilton Hall, for the benefit of the Episcopal Church.

STOCKTON.—The first annual promenade concert and ball of the Stockton Guard was given at Mozart Hall on Thursday evening.

SAN JOSE.—A vocal and instrumental concert for the benefit of St. Joseph's Catholic Church was given at the Opera House last night. Mrs. L. Meriner, Mr. S. D. Mayer, Miss F. Hoffman and other professionals appeared, assisted by a chorus of amateurs.

VIRGINIA CITY, NEV.—Maguire's Alhambra Combination at Piper's Opera House was strengthened by the addition of J. G. Russell, Sam Rickey and others on Monday evening. Baker and Farron appeared in their specialties; Add Ryman in a stump speech; John Enright in "The Watermelon Man," and Harry Thompson delivered a "Fireman's Address." This capital company has drawn good houses during the week. On Thursday evening, Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller, delivered her lecture entitled "Joaquin Miller the Poet and the Man." Mrs. Miller is on her way East, where she has brilliant prospects. She will be one of the most popular lecturers of the day, and will doubtless achieve a brilliant reputation.

PORTLAND.—G. B. Waldron's Dramatic Company at the Oro Fino Theatre made a hit in "Diavolo." On the 5th, G. B. Waldron took his benefit. "Metamora" was played, with "The Wandering Minstrel" as an afterpiece. The house was thronged. On the 7th "Rob Roy" was played. Mrs. Charles Correll's Vaudeville Troupe, comprising Miss May Leslie, George Foster and others were announced to appear on the 9th at New Masonic Hall. The Oro Fino Theatre has a new drop curtain, the centre of which represents Mount Hood and a stretch of the Cascades. It is surrounded by advertisements in ovals.

FRISCO.—The Theatre was opened by the proprietor, S. R. Calhoun, on Monday, December 9th, with a variety company comprising Miss Maggie Knight and others. Mr. Calhoun intends to keep the theatre open all the winter.

Forrest as a Reader.

This veteran actor gave his last Shakesperian readings in New York and Boston. The New York Herald of November 23d, in speaking of his reading of "Othello" in that city, says:

Mr. Forrest seized every opportunity to present forcible pictures of a soul wrenched from the sway of reason. If there be one point more than another which deserves commendation in the performance of Mr. Forrest it is the delicate shading of the more violent passages. Here he gives us every gradation of passion, marked with a delicacy of perception which is in strange contrast with the routine in which some of our dramatic actors indulge. This power of looking into the sense of the phrase and accommodating the emphasis of his words to the exact phase of thought which he seeks to express is the result of careful and close study. It requires no ordinary power to enchain attention during an evening by the mere force of dramatic expression without the aid of any of the realism of the stage, and it is complimentary to Mr. Forrest that he arrested the attention of his audience for nearly two hours and a half, and there were few who did not feel regret when he brought his reading to a close.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer.";
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

AMUSEMENTS. Etc.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau had a good house on the occasion of her benefit last night. The play of "Hunchback" was performed excellently well throughout. Mrs. Chanfrau in the character of Julia evinced unwonted power; Henry Edwards was a capital Master Walter; G. D. Chaplin's impersonation of Sir Thomas Clifford was a very clever performance; Miss Helen Tracy acted the part of Helen with grace and spirit, and the other parts were well played. This afternoon, the thrilling drama of "The Wife's Ordeal" will be played. This evening Mrs. Chanfrau will bring her successful engagement to a close, and appear in the charming drama of "Dora." Those who go to the California Theatre this evening will enjoy a rare treat; they will see a beautiful play acted perfectly in every part. On Monday, the opera season will commence with the performances of "Belisario" by the Fabbri troupe, Signora Bianchi, Signor Rigo and others. "Don Giovanni" and "La Favorita" will follow.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—In spite of the criticisms of the verdant young man from the country who does the dramatic criticisms of the Call the songs and dances of Miss Jennie Worrell and Miss Lillie Hall suit the public taste so well that there is no standing room at this theatre after eight o'clock. The Call man wants "new songs and dances;" Lydia Thompson's freshest are stale to him. As this blase gentleman from the cow counties never saw a theatre, probably, until he came to San Francisco, Miss Jennie Worrell and Miss Lillie Hall will not dance any less merrily for his criticisms. The performance to be given at the matinee to-day, this evening, and again to-morrow evening is a splendid one. Billy Emerson appears in some of his best specialties and a number of others in the acts set down for them in the programme on our first page. Next week there will be an entire change of bill.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—"The Octoroon" was played last night and afforded general satisfaction. It will be presented at the matinee to-day and again this evening. To-morrow evening the ever-popular play of "Jack Sheppard" will be performed. On Monday Miss Minnie Wells, known as the Lion Queen, will make her first appearance in a play written expressly for her entitled "The Lion of Nubia." In this live lions will be introduced on the stage and Miss Minnie Wells will show her power over the wild beasts by making them perform their parts in the play. This is sensational enough, we should think, to throng the theatre.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—To-night there will be an entirely new bill. The Rechede Family of Spanish minstrels will make their first appearance; Miss Carrie Woods will appear at this house for the first time, and new songs and dances will be presented. Among these may be mentioned, "Le Pandero," by Miss Carrie Woods; "Happy Go Bill," by Charles Verner, and the ballet of "Faust and Marguerite." The performance will conclude with "The Female Swimmers."

THE ATHENEUM.—Charles Seymour had an excellent house at his benefit last evening. Frank Mortimer is a great favorite at this house, his character songs are much applauded. The acts by Charley Nickerson, Charley Thompson and others, are bright and amusing; Miss Ella La Roe's banjo solos are very popular, and altogether a very lively entertainment is given.

BENEFIT TO JOHN TORRENCE.—On next Thursday evening, the 19th inst., John Torrence the machinist of the California Theatre, whose workings behind the scenes have added much to the success of many a play, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit, tendered him by John McCullough, who will on this occasion make his first appearance since his return from New York. The Amphion Quartette Club have volunteered. The box sheet is now open.

TOO ABSURD.—Some time ago, the Chronicle, which has not and never will have, the advertisement of the Alhambra Theatre, tried to get up an idea in the public mind, that the dress circle of that theatre was unsafe. Now comes the mean little Post, which also would like to have an advertisement, but can't get it, because it is so very small and weak and insignificant, and backs up the Chronicle's story. It says "in San Jose they try the strength of galleries with bricks," and suggests that the dress circle of the Alhambra be tested in the same way. The herculean editor, who weighs about twenty-two pounds on salary day, (he has to take his pay in nickels), is afraid to trust himself in the Alhambra until the dress circle has been tested with bricks. We think that the safety of this part of the building has been pretty well tested during the past three weeks. Every evening it has been crammed full with people, so densely packed together that they seemed piled on top of one another like sardines in a box. The whole of the dress circle is bound together with clamps and iron, in such a manner that it springs like a drum, and to break it down would be next to impossible. Bricks, forsooth! Better try dead-heads, small editors, and other heavy useless material.

MAGUIRE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Rumors are rife about the opening of this house for the holiday season. Times will be lively and anyone opening this old-time theatre with good attractions would be sure to have a share of the patronage of the amusement-loving public. Among those mentioned as possible lessees of this house is John Wilson, who has for many years devoted his attention rather to horse opera than the dramatic stage. John has his horses eating their heads off and should make them earn their oats. A grand Christmas equestrian spectacle with lots of horses on the stage would draw against any other attractions. Horses were made to draw and the stage will make lively time if John Wilson harnesses up the team. Let us have a grand equestrian spectacle; there is money in it.

SHERIDAN CORBYN.—This gentleman, so long connected with the theatrical business, both here and in the East, has established a theatrical agency at 620 Washington street in this city. No man is better posted than Sherry in all that pertains to the details of dramatic business.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Harrigan ought to bless the day when he went East from San Francisco, he has made good progress in his profession......Stanley is lecturing at Steinway Hall.

Leo Hudson played "Mazeppa" at Binghamton, N. Y., on the 29th inst.

J. B. Studley seems to be a dangerous man to play with. He was recently at the Academy of Music, Buffalo, N. Y., and one of the papers says:

> Mortimer K. Wright, heavy man at the Academy, met with a painful accident on the 23d. In a struggle with J. B. Studley, three fingers of his right hand were severely cut, and were so painful as to prevent his appearance this week. At last accounts he was doing well. It is singular that this is the third accident which has befallen Mr. Wright since his engagement here.

Madame Lopez and her five pupils were at the Olympic Theatre, Memphis, Tenn., at latest dates.

Miss Ada Grey opened at the Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia, on the 2d, in "Who's Wife?"

A complimentary testimonial to Mrs. E. N. Thayer was given at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, on the afternoon of Wednesday, the 4th inst. A varied and attractive programme was presented by the companies of the Arch, Walnut and Chestnut Street Theatres, who kindly volunteered their services. Mrs. E. N. Thayer is as great a favorite in Philadelphia as Mrs. Judah is in this city. She had a splendid house.

Mr. Robert McWade, who has just completed a successful three weeks' engagement at Col. Wood's Museum, Philadelphia, will visit Europe at the termination of his present engagements, under the business management of Prof. Risley.

At the Walnut Street Theatre, Mr. and Mrs. Dion Boucicault commenced an engagement on the 9th inst., in "The Colleen Bawn" and "Kerry; or, Night and Morning."

W. Horace Lingard and his comedy company performed at Dayton, O., on Nov. 28th, and in accordance with a promise made on a previous visit, Mr. Lingard and his entire company visited the Soldier's Home, and gave a matinee performance for the enjoyment of the veterans. "Delicate Ground," Mr. Lingard's sketches, and "A Day After the Wedding" made up the programme. At the conclusion of the performance the veterans tendered the company a vote of thanks, gave them three rousing cheers, and shook each member heartily by the hand on their departure.

Joseph Proctor opened at the Academy of Music, Cleveland, O., in the "Red Pocket Book."

Miss Kitty Leroy is in Cleveland, O. Martha Wren and James Collins, Jenny Benson and Baby Benson are at Trimble's Opera House, Pittsburg. Otto Burbank, Dick Parker, Amanda Lee and others, are at the Baltimore Opera House.

Little Nell, the California Diamond, achieved a great success at Worcester, Mass. Isn't it about time for this young Californian to return and show us how much she has improved since we started her in the theatrical profession? She appeared on the 9th at the Chestnut Street Theatre Philadelphia.

Edwin Booth's company, with which he is traveling round the Eastern States, comprises several artistes well known in California. It is as follows:

> F. Bangs, James Taylor, James Stark, J. Dorsey Ogden, J. H. Anderson, R. Pateman, J. S. Booney, Edwin Barry, Bella Pateman, Charlotte Crampton, Mary Young, and Mrs. S. E. McDonnell.

A Bridgeport, Conn., "critic" thus does up Oliver Doud Byron and "Across the Continent:"

> Oliver Doud Byron came "Across the Continent" 26th. Good house. Show not good as formerly; wanted Harry Clifford for Knuckle Bone Johnny had, play much cut, "big Injuns" frauds; train from station 46 behind time; do better next time, Oliver Doud, or run by.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers opened for four nights at the Detroit, Mich., Opera House, Dec. 11th.

The Baltimorean speaks thus of M'lle Aimee and her opera company: "Aimee has been with us during the week and we regret her departure. Her troupe is the best in opera bouffe that has visited Baltimore. She has been greeted every night with brilliant honors and the most unmistakable marks of approbation. Costumed as a page in "Genevieve de Brabant," in which we saw her on Wednesday evening, aided very much to show off her graceful figure. The surprise duet between M'lle Aimee and M'lle Bonelli, from a window overlooking the stage, was the gem of the opera. Aimee will leave us with brighter laurels than she brought."

Lawrence Barrett, Varieties, New Orleans, Dec. 30th, three weeks.

Patti-Mario Troupe, Indianapolis, Dec. 5th.

Maggie Mitchell is in Louisville, Ky.

A benefit at the Howard Atheneum, Boston, in aid of the Boston sufferers by the late fire, realized the sum of $780.

The death of Will J. Wiggins, a popular comedian of De Bar's Opera House, in St. Louis, is announced.

Miss Neilson will appear at the Walnut-street Theatre, Philadelphia, at the close of her engagement at Booth's Theatre.

Miss Charlotte Cushman commenced an engagement at the Olympic Theatre, St. Louis, Mo. Dec. 9th.

Tony Denier and his "Humpty Dumpty" troupe will play an engagement at the Griswold Opera House, Troy, early in December.

Berger Family of bell-ringers, Parkersburg, W. Va., Nov. 29th and 30th.

Frank Mayo, Mobile, Dec. 7th, one week.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers, under John T. Ford's management, will appear in Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 16th, 17th, and 18th.

"Arrah-na-Pogue" is shortly to be produced in grand style, at Wakefield Opera House, St. Louis. Robert Craig and Edward Coleman will be in the east.

The New York Dispatch says that Miss Ettie Henderson does not go to California in December, as has been reported, but will go in March next. She commenced an engagement with Wilkinson's company, Nov. 20th, and opens at Troy, Jan. 6th.

A new burlesque founded on W. S. Gilbert's "Pygmalion and Galatea," is announced at Simmons and Slocum's Minstrels, Philadelphia, under the title of "Big-male-Lion and Gal-or-eat-Her." Can the art of abusing the English language much farther go? If the piece itself contains nothing more suggestive of wit than the title, the Philadelphians who go are to be pitied.

In New Orleans John T. Raymond made his first appearance at the Varieties Theatre on the 2d in a new play adapted from the French by Charles Horeman and W. J. Florence, entitled "Forbidden Fruit." The piece ran three nights. The press did not praise it much. On the 5th Mr. Raymond appeared in a play by the late Frank Murdock, entitled "Only a Jew." Maze Edwards, well-known in San Francisco and Sacramento, lately agent of the Zavistowski Sisters, who have sensibly retired from the stage, is now agent for John T. Raymond. At the St. Charles Theatre, Mr. Chanfrau having played "Kit" for all it was worth, appeared on the 4th, as Jim Dalton in the "Ticket-of-Leave Man." Frank Mayo was playing at the Academy of Music in "Davy Crockett." The horse disease affected the attendance at all all theatres.

Before Mr. J. T. Raymond's departure from Boston, he was tendered a complimentary supper by Mr. J. V. Taylor, and was presented with a massive silver pitcher bearing the inscription: "John T. Raymond. Presented at the Globe Theatre, November 22d, 1872."

The charming and favorite comedienne, Miss Carlotta Le Clercq, commenced an engagement at the Globe Theatre, Boston, Dec. 9th. It is rumored that Gilbert's beautiful comedy, "Pygmalion and Galatea," will be produced during her stay.

The office of Col. T. Allston Brown, dramatic agent, 718 Broadway, in New York, was burned on the 25th in connection with the theatre occupied by Kelly and Leon's Minstrels in the same building. The Philadelphia Ledger printing establishment had a quantity of valuable cuts and general theatrical printing stored on the premises, all of which were consumed.

Particulars of the burning of Lina Edwin's Theatre, the news of which in brief was received by telegraph, have come to hand. Facing Broadway and over the entrance to the theatre are two suites of apartments, and in one of the rooms the business manager, A. L. Parkes, was sleeping. The first intimation he received of the danger was the bursting open of his door by the police about half past two, and a hasty summons to save himself. He hurried on his clothes as fast as possible, and rushed down stairs. Before leaving the building he glanced hastily into the theatre. No sign of fire was visible, but smoke was rising through the floor and entering from the rear. Mr. Parkes, seeing that should the flames communicate with the theatre all hope of saving anything must be abandoned, wished to enter the hall to carry out such light and valuable articles as he could find a safe place for; the police, however, would not permit him. About eight minutes afterward he saw the theatre lighted up with a lurid glare, as the fire bursting upward seized the curtain and scenery in the rear. Within half an hour the interior was virtually consumed, and long before morning not a vestige of anything remained save the bare and tottering walls. Messrs. Kelly and Leon, who were staying at the Stacy House, a short distance from the theatre, were aroused about 3 o'clock with the information that it was burning to ashes. A matinee on a scale of unwonted magnificence had been planned for Thanksgiving Day, and the house was stocked with numerous new and costly appointments. Mr. Kelly, to use his own expression, got up in his night shirt and put his head out of the window, and seeing at a glance that it was all over with him, began slowly to dress himself, calculating the while what houses he could hire for the performance of the promised matinee, and from whom his employees could borrow suitable wardrobes. Mr. Kelly attempted to rent the Globe Theatre from A. T. Stewart for the matinee, but failed. Loss on building $36,500. The scenery of the theatre was not valuable. The musical instruments of the Minstrels were the most valuable properties, with the exception of Leon's female wardrobe, which was rated at $3,000. Kelly and Leon had no insurance. Benefits were being organized for Messrs. Kelly and Leon. Messrs. Hayes and Colville of the Olympic Theatre, tendered them a benefit to come off on Saturday evening, Dec. 7th. Col. W. Alliston Brown, dramatic agent, whose offices were burned down with the theatre, was to have one at the Academy of Music on the 10th.

Bellingall's Minstrels, a colored company which performed at Le Roy, N. Y., got the following cruel notice from the Le Roy critic:

> This is a light company composed of dark subjects, and with the exception of one or two the remainder would make a better show by using a whitewash brush or a saw and buck. One of the performers was arrested for larceny, and two others were too drunk to leave town with the company the next morning.

At the Boston Theatre "The Cataract of the Ganges" pageant has been produced in good style and may run through the holidays. Messrs. Aldrich, Weaver, Murdoch, McGuinness, Mrs. Booth and Rachel Noah have the leading parts.

At the Globe, Boston, Dion Boucicault and Agnes Robertson, in "Arrah na Pogue" and "Colleen Bawn," have filled the bill.

At the Howard Atheneum, Boston, they have already a local drama entitled "Boston Before the Fire; In and After the Fire," with panorama covering 1,000 feet of canvas. The Matthews Family and Arthur Gregory are at this house.

We find the following "dramatic dots" about amusements in Boston in the New York Mercury:

> That $30,000 expended by the management of the St. James in the production of "Le Roi Carotte" must have depleted their exchequer, for this week they show nary sprout. Why wouldn't it be a good place to take out insurance policies on doubtful plays? Some parties say if we had had the cataract of the Ganges in the city the week of the fire the burned district would have been flooded.... Warner appeared as Billy Lackaday, in "Sweethearts and Wives," the 27th. On the 23d of August, 1847, a quarter of a century ago, he made his first appearance at the Boston Museum in that character. He has only been absent one season from the Museum since that time. Photographs of Augustin Daly and his Fifth-avenue Theatre company, handsomely framed, are exposed prominently in the extensive hall of the museum. The Globe company give a performance Thanksgiving at the Chelsea Academy of Music, G. W. Conlduck as Peter Probity in "The Chimney Corner," and the "Irish Emigrant," with Manager Floyd as Tim O'Brien.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has for more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

The Bivalve.

This famous oyster house having been refitted and improved, is now under the management of H. E. Besthorn, assisted by "Henry," so long known in the oyster business. The best wines, liquors and cigars are kept. The best cooks and waiters in the State are employed. The neatly furnished rooms up-stairs for families and supper parties have long been a feature of THE BIVALVE, No. 640 Market street, near Kearny. P

Everybody Goes There.

THE place to buy a hat is "THE" HAT STORE, 647 Washington street, the second hat store below Kearny. The stock is immense, the fashions are the latest, and the prices are the lowest.

It is curious, but true, that J. A. Shaber, 707 Market street, near Third, should sell furniture and bedding cheaper than any other dealer in this city. Try him and you will be convinced. Y

Probably a Ghost.

The night watchmen at the dead house complains of several unknown mischievous individuals who ring the night-bell at all hours of the night, waking him from sleep, causing him to run to the door under the belief that another hath summarily ended his existence, and when he opens it, to hear naught but a mocking laugh in the distance. He promises a night's free lodgings in the Morgue to whoever he catches at the game.—Chronicle.

May not that "mocking laugh" be a spirit voice? This matter requires investigation. What is more probable than that some one has committed suicide in some out-of-the-way place and goes to the Morgue to communicate his wish that his body may be properly disposed of? He may be able to ring the bell, and when the watchmen comes to the door he finds he is unable to manifest himself. His words fade away in the air, and then the other spirits laugh at him. That watchman had better keep his eyes skinned and he may some day see a ghost. Perhaps, again, it may be the spirit of some body departed in the Morgue that rings the bell. Virginia City has lately got up some first-class ghost sensations. The Morgue would be a good place for a ghostly manifestation. In dismissing this matter in a paragraph the Chronicle has wasted good raw material. It had better "interview" the night watchmen and work the matter up for a sensation for next Sunday's issue.

Very Sad.

A morning contempory says:

McCausland, who shot Mulendore, still languishes in prison, having been unable to obtain the required bail.

It is a pity that young men should be allowed to languish. He ought to be let out to shoot some other inoffensive man in the back. If we had been on the jury which tried him he would now be at rest.

Suggestive.

The friends of a famous skater, who died in New York recently, would like to know exactly what the minister who preached the funeral sermon meant by his pathetic statement, that he had gone where there is no ice.

A Lifelong Puzzle.

A baby was left on board a steamboat at St. Paul the other day, with a note stating that his name was Conrad B. Clark. Imagine the torturing curiosity of that child when he grows up, to determine of what name "B" is the initial.

Washing Returned in One Day

And we never disappoint at

"LIES."

We suppose newspaper editors don't think the above a pretty heading, as they prefer to use "Facts," "Gossip," "Clippings," etc., for a prefix to their preposterous inventions. FIGARO is above this kind of thing. The printers ask for some "fat" copy; so here goes.

LIES.

Utica rejoices in a cat with a beautiful soprano voice which sings "Il Bacio."

George Francis Train has never blown his nose.

A grandson of General Jackson is opening oysters in a cellar on Broadway, New York.

Gail Hamilton uses an ounce of snuff a day.

Grace Greenwood doesn't wear corsets.

Joaquin Miller is engaged to be married to the eldest daughter of the Duchess of Gloster.

Five hundred kilters perished in the Boston fire.

A Maine girl committed suicide by swallowing a nutmeg grater.

Bret Harte has been divorced from four wives.

Stanley, the discoverer of Livingstone, gives one-tenth of his income to the poor.

Pauline Lucca was formerly a circus rider.

President Grant has given up smoking, and uses Smith's tobacco antidote.

Miss Neilson's husband has a glass eye.

Henry Ward Beecher prays daily for Victoria Woodhull.

A silk manufactory in Brazil is run entirely by monkey power.

A man in Yankton was cured of the toothache by being struck by lightning.

Boss Tweed is now a humble Christian.

We could string out a column or two of this kind of thing, but it wearies us. To some men lying is merely recreation, but to us it is really hard work. Now the daily press of the United States will take the above falsehoods, and cutting them free from the explanatory context, will reprint them as "Diamond Dust," "Surface Siftings," "Facts and Figures," and other headings, when they want matter to fill up with.

Was It Libellous?

The Call on Friday, said that Rev. John Hemphill of Calvary Church was going to be married. Mr. Hemphill says there is not a word of truth in the statement. The question now arises: can Mr. Hemphill sue the Call for libel? Has he suffered damages to his character to the extent of $10,000, more or less, by this imputation? Did the Call start this report for the purpose of injuring him with his congregation? We hope Mr. Hemphill will try this case. We should like to see it settled. If any paper were to start a rumor that we were going to be married, we would make it smart for it. We would prove positive damages, and ask for vindictive damages also on account of the malice of the statement.

Worse Still.

Simkins, having wedded and settled down, accumulated a slight scar over his eyebrow, the cause of which it is unnecessary to state, but an inquisitive acquaintance asked him whether it was a mark of the chicken-pox. "Worse than that," replied Simkins. "It's a mark of the henpeck."

A Western editor says of a contemporary that "he has his ears under such control that he can fan himself with them."

Vermont has sent nine car loads of merino sheep to California.

"Mr. Croak" is a member of the Massachusetts legislature—and others.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

Wilt He Stay?

Anthony Trollope gave San Francisco the cold shoulder on his arrival here from Australia. He wouldn't stay, but slipped out of the city as soon as he could get away. Now it is announced that Charles Dickens, Jr., is to visit San Francisco in February on his way to Australia. Mr. Dickens is the editor of All the Year Round, the best weekly publication in the world. If we treat him well he may, perhaps, "crack up" San Francisco in his periodical. We must do what we can to induce him to make a long stay here. He must be introduced to the Board of Supervisors, shown through the County Hospital and Industrial School, taken out to the Pound to see the dogs murdered, and otherwise amused. It is really a matter of some importance that he should form a favorable impression of this city as he will undoubtedly print what he sees.

A Bold Paper.

The boldest paper in San Francisco is the Chronicle. In Saturday's issue it had a trenchant article headed "A Sheep is a Public Enemy." Whenever the Chronicle finds a sheep, or a man like a sheep who is a public enemy, it isn't a bit afraid of pitching into him. You might bring a whole flock of sheep against the Chronicle, and it wouldn't be a bit scared.

New York Dull.

A lady correspondent of the FIGARO writes from New York: "I never saw New York so dead as it is this Winter. Opera has fallen perfectly flat. The lovely Lydia Thompson has grown fat. Only that Fechter promises to open his new theatre next Winter there would be nothing to live for."

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Bonchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

California Theatre.

The Fabbri Troupe strengthened by the engagement of Signor Fulvio Rigo and Signore E. Bianchi, will resume for a short season their performance of Italian opera at this theatre, commencing to-night with Donizetti's opera of "Belisario," which will be presented with the following cast:—Belisario, Jacob Muller; Antonias, Signore Inez Fabbri; Irene, Miss Anna Elzer, Justinian, M. Roncovieri; Entorpia, M. Charles; Endore, Miss Hall; and Alemir, Signor Pietro Bacci. To-morrow evening a dramatic performance will be given by the California Theatre company, it will consist of "All that Glitters is not Gold" and "Family Jars." Wednesday will be the next opera night.

Alhambra.

This beautiful little theatre has been redecorated in a very pleasing manner, and now presents a very attractive appearance. There will be an entire change of performance to-night. Billy Emerson will appear in new songs, and in his great character of Uncle Bill in "Scenes on the Mississippi" in the first part, and in "Josephine Orange Blossom" and "He Got to Come" in the interlude. Lillie Hall, who is a most pleasing vocalist, will sing popular songs of the day, and she and the bright and piquante Miss Jennie Worrell will appear in song and dance. This rich and varied entertainment will conclude with the sketch entitled "Sophia's Supper," in which Bob Hart, Chas Sutton, W. F. Baker, G. W. Rockafeller and others will take part.

Metropolitan Theatre.

To-night Miss Minnie Wells will make her first appearance in California at this theatre in a military drama written expressly for her by James McCloskey, entitled "The Lion of Nubia." In this play she will appear in the character of Harry Trueheart, an American sailor; will enter a cage of lions and perform other strange feats, and will introduce during the progress of the drama character dances, and performances on the banjo. The play promises sufficient sensation and variety to please the popular taste and will, doubtless, draw a crowded house. The performance will commence with the farce of "The Artful Dodger," in which W. Ellerton and others will appear. The full cast, of each of these pieces appears on our first page.

Bella Union.

The new artistes who made their appearance at this house on Saturday evening met with a flattering reception and at once installed themselves in the good graces of the audience. Miss Carrie Woods won much applause for her performance of "La Pandero," dressed well and looked very pretty; the performance of the Recheda Family were very good, the young ladies being proficients on the violin, guitar, and other instruments. The bill for to night appears on our first page.

The Atheneum.

Frank Mortimer and Mollie Le Forrest, the two latest engagements at this house are great favorites. To-night Miss Maggie Lincoln, the popular vocalist, will make her first appearance. Continual novelty is the rule at this house. The programme on our first page promises a rich treat for those who visit the Atheneum this evening.

Horticultural Hall.

This hall, corner of Stockton and Post streets, is open for skating Tuesday afternoon and evening Thursday afternoon and evening, and Saturday afternoon and evening.

Woodward's Gardens.

The usual Sunday crowd of thousands was present at these gardens. M'lle Seoyeah, circus performance and wonderful troupe of educated animals, will be the daily attractions throughout the week.

"Aladdin."

This gorgeous spectacular piece, now in preparation at the California Theatre will be produced on Christmas night, Wednesday, 25th.

City Gardens.

Yesterday was just the day for a balloon ascension and M. Buislay made a most successful one from these gardens. The absence of wind enabled him to perform the most extraordinary feats on the trapeze hanging from the balloon.

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Mayer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LEHMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

Theatricals in Japan.

The following letter describing theatricals in Japan was sent by an old Californian to the New York Clipper:

As we very seldom see any mention made of theatricals in the Far East in the columns of your highly prized paper, I send you an account of a visit I made to the Japanese Theatre in Yeddo, which may prove interesting to some of the members of the profession. After doing all the temples and places of interest in Yeddo, we reached the theatre about three o'clock in the afternoon. Here the theatre opens at 11 A. M. and closes at 5 P. M., no night performance being allowed since the last great fire. We were ushered into a box by the proprietor, with many smiles and bows, who, after providing us with fire and lights for our cigars (smoking is universal, at almost all times and in almost all places), left us, and we proceeded to consider all that was before us. Our presence attracted a good deal of attention, as Europeans are not so plentiful in that portion of Yeddo as one might suppose. The theatre is quite a large building, capable of holding between 1,500 and 2,000 persons. The admission was 15, 25 and 35 cents, fruit, etc., included. The lower portion, or pit, of the theatre was divided into small squares or boxes, each seating about ten persons, Japanese fashion, i. e., kneeling upon mats. These boxes are divided by a railing about eighteen inches high, over which you have to step in going from one box to another. The fashionable portion of the house consists of a row of boxes, something similar to those in the Bella Union, San Francisco, which extend round three sides of the house at an elevation of about six feet above the pit. Occupying these seats are the Yakonins, or gentlemen occupying high standing, lords, etc., and Europeans who visit the theatre. The stage is circular, and revolves in its own circumference. Each act is in one scene, and as the scene closes the curtain is dropped, the stage revolves, a few extra "props" are added, and another scene commences. There were no females upon the stage, as they are not allowed to appear in Yeddo, so I was informed. The play we witnessed seemed to be a half drama, half burlesque; a sort of "Damon and Pythias" affair, "without the horse." The costumes worn by the actors were very rich in appearance, consisting of a variety of colors. Differing from our drama, Damon is killed, Pythias is nearly crazed with grief, cuts off his hair, using a well of water, apparently as a looking-glass, and becomes a priest as if by magic, finds a sword, upon which are portrayed the likenesses of Damon's murderers, kicks up a terrible muss, and then commences the combat, one against twenty. Swords are flashing in all directions, and in a surprisingly short time twenty heads are lying on the floor. The curtain falls upon the victorious Pythias, standing upon a barrel, surrounded by the heads and trunks of the vanquished. The orchestra is situated on two sides of the stage, fronting the audience, and the music, consisting of Japanese banjos and drums, with the fife, keeps time with the motions of the actors. The Japs are not very exuberant; no boisterous clapping of hands and shouts were heard. One thing struck me rather forcibly: we paid for our admission on leaving instead of entering.

Tom Moore.

A correspondent who used to live close to the residence of the late Tom Moore narrates the following anecdote: Once driving home to Chippenham from Devizes, I gave an old lady a lift in the trap; and in conversation I asked her if she had seen much of Tom Moore in her village when he was alive. "Tom Moore, sir! Tom Moore!" said she. "Oh, I see you mean Mr. Moore. Mrs. Moore were a very kind lady, but Mr. Moore used to write all sorts of verses about the moon and all such sort of things. He were no account!"

Erratum in druggists' signs: For "prescriptions carefully compounded" read "prescriptions carelessly confounded."

The early bird can secure the worm without any trouble by buying a few chestnuts of any street-dealer.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

ONLY A WORD.

A frivolous word, a sharp retort,
  A parting in angry haste,
The sun that rose on a bower of bliss,
The loving look and the tender kiss,
  Has set on a barren waste,
Where pilgrims tread with weary feet
Paths destined never more to meet.

A frivolous word, a sharp retort,
  A moment that blots out years,
Two lives are wrecked on a stormy shore,
Where billows of passion surge and roar
  To break in a spray of tears;
Tears shed to blind the severed pair
Drifting seaward and drowning there.

A frivolous word, a sharp retort,
  A flash from a passing cloud—
Two hearts are scathed to their inmost core
Are ashes and dust forever more,
  Two faces turn to the crowd,
Masked by pride with a life-long lie,
To hide the scars of that agony.

A frivously word, a sharp retort,
  An arrow at random sped,
It has cut in twain the mystic tie
That had bound two souls in harmony.
  Sweet love lies bleeding or dead.
A poisoned shaft with scarce an aim
Has done a mischief sad as shame.

A frivolous word, a sharp retort,
  Alas! for the loves and lives
So little a cause has rent apart;
Tearing the fondest heart from heart
  As a whirlwind rends and rives,
Never to reunite again,
But live and die in secret pain.

A frivolous word, a sharp retort,
  Alas! that it should be so.
The petulant speech, the careless tongue,
  Have done more evil, wrought more wrong,
  Have brought to the world more woe
Than all the armies age to age
Records on hist'ry's blood-stained page.

The Joys of Heaven.

They tell about a boy somewhere or other whose loving mother took him upon her knee and began to talk to him about Heaven, and about his dead aunts and uncles and little cousins; and when she had finished the description, she thought she would ascertain what kind of an impression, as it were, had been made upon her darling's mind. So she said: "And now Henry, who would you most like to see when you get into the spirit world?" Henry ran over the thing in his mind, and he then observed: "Well, I believe I'd like first rate to take a good look at Goliah, if the Belgian giant at the museum doesn't die before I do. If he does, give me tickets for him!" Then she suddenly put Henry to bed.

Alhambra.

As a matter of course the Alhambra Theatre was crowded last night, and the new programme gave general satisfaction. At the conclusion of the first part, Billy Emerson appeared in one of his famous old men characterizations, Uncle Bill, and won immense applause. Miss Lillie Hall who has become a great favorite, sang in charming style, and was repeatedly encored. Billy Emerson gave his ever-popular "Josephus Orange Blossom", and was recalled again and again. He afterwards appeared in the character of Bolivar Piscinst, in which he kept the audience in a continual roar of laughter. The songs and dances by the charmingly, original Miss Jennie Worrell and Miss Lillie Hall were pretty enough and new enough to satisfy even the critic of the Call. This capital programme was terminated by the performance of the laughable act of "Sophia's Supper," in which Bob Hart, Charles Sutton and others took part. The same bill will be performed to-night.

California Theatre.

That the taste for opera has not died out in San Francisco was sufficiently proved by the audience present last night, when the opera of "Belisero" was performed in a style which gave general satisfaction, and called forth loud applause. Signora Inez Fabbri, Signor Pietro Baccei, Herr Jacob Muller, Miss Anna Elzer, M. Roncovieri, M. Charles and Miss Hall acquitted themselves admirably in their respective roles, and the opera as a whole was most pleasingly performed. To-night the comedy of "All that Glitters is not Gold" will be presented with G. D. Chaplin a Stephen Plum; Miss Annie Graham as Martha Gibbs; J. C. Williamson as Toby Twinkle and a generally strong cast. The performance will conclude with "Family Jar," in which the popular favorite, Miss Maggie Moore, will appear in the character of Liddy Larrigan with song of "Mollie Darling" and an Irish Jig. J. C. Williamson will play Delph, and Miss Nellie Cummins, Emily Seaport; the rest of the cast appears on our first page. To-morrow night, the opera of "Lucrezia Borgia" will be presented by the Fabbri Opera Troupe.

Metropolitan Theatre.

There was a capital house last night when Miss Minnie Wells, comedienne and danseuse and female lion tamer, made her first appearance in California in the original drama of "The Lion of Nubia," written expressly for her by J. McCloskey. The performance commenced with the amusing farce of "The Artful Dodger," in which W. Ellerton caused much amusement as Demosthenes Dodge, and the other parts were well filled by Pierpont Thayer, Miss Fanny Young, Miss Ada Shattuck, Frank Rea and others. This over the play of "The Lion of Nubia" commenced, and the audience were introduced to Captain De Valmont (Pierpont Thayer) and Clarisse De Valmont (Mrs. Charles Edmonds), a French officer and his wife who had escaped from a sinking vessel wrecked in the desert of Arabia, only to fall into the hands of Abd-el-Moussouf (Charles Edmonds) an Arab chief, who had sworn vengeance on all Europeans. Shortly after they have been interviewed by Abd-el-Mousouf, another vessel is wrecked in the same place, which shows that it was a good place and a good day for wrecks and Harry Trueheart (Miss Minnie Wells) comes floating on a spar, looking very nice in a blue sailor suit. Miss Wells was received with much applause, and came out of the water and bowed her acknowledgements. Shortly afterwards Tim (W. Ellerton), an Irishman, a particular friend of Harry Trueheart, comes floating in on a barrel of whisky with a banjo slung around his neck. Then Miss Wells plays a banjo solo in good style and sings a duet with Ellerton. Abd-el-Moussouf and his tribe enjoy the music and then Harry Trueheart dances a sailors hornpipe. All of this is light and amusing, but Abd-el-Moussouf having a bad temper, matters soon take a more serious turn and he threatens Harry Trueheart. Harry, by the aid of Zuleika (Miss Fanny Young) the chief's daughter, who of course falls in love with him, manages to make his escape and rescue the French officer and his wife. To do this he has to throttle a lion, which he does in good style. The lion is lying on a raised platform at the rear of the stage; Miss Wells in the character of Harry Trueheart catches him by the throat while the officer and his wife escape, the limelight is turned on, showing a pretty picture, and the curtain falls on the first act. In the second act there is some fun in the desert between Harry and Tim, a mechanical caravan by Ned Deaves, appears in the distance and finally comes on the stage headed by the handsomest live camel who ever made his appearance on the stage. With them come the French officer and his wife. They are pursued and retaken by Abd-el-Moussouf, and Harry Trueheart is sentenced to be eaten by the lions—two lions this time. He, like Daniel of old, goes into the den and the lions don't touch him the French soldiers come to the rescue; there are some combats which were not very well executed last night from lack of rehearsal, and the curtain falls on a very pretty tableau with the lions in the back ground. Miss Wells played her part with considerable vim and showed she was not a bit afraid of lions. W. Ellerton enlivened the play with a good deal of fun, gaining many a hearty laugh. The same bill will be played to-night and every night until further notice.

Bella Union.

Therese and Mons. Schmidt in ballet; the wonderful Reebeda Family; Charles Verner, the London comique; J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong, Dutch character artistes; the old war horse Johnny Tuers; R. O. Marsh, Mat Kelly, Cogill and Cooper, the favorite song and dance men, and many others will appear to-night in an excellent programme.

The Atheneum.

There is no end to the novelties at this house. To-night the management announces the first appearance of Senorita Maria Reolie, vocalist and song and dance artiste, who will appear with Miss Maggie St. Clair, Miss Maggie Brewer, Miss May Leroy, Charley Nickerson, Charley Thompson, and a host of others. An entirely new programme will be given. It may be seen on our first page.

Horticultural Hall.

This hall, corner of Stockton and Post streets, is open for skating Tuesday afternoon and evening Thursday afternoon and evening, and Saturday afternoon and evening.

The usual Sunday crowd of thousands was present at these gardens. M'lle Seoyeah, circus performance and wonderful troupe of educated animals, will be the daily attractions throughout the week.

Verdict for an Actress.

The English Court of Queen's Bench was recently engaged in gravely discussing the effects of a scar upon the forehead received by an actress in a railway collision. The counsel for the railway company suggested that the matter was entirely too sentimental for the consideration of the court, but Mr. Justice Blackburn said that it was a serious thing for an actress to have a disfiguring mark upon her face, and it was doubtful after such a shock whether the lady would be so good a performer as before, in consequence of the depressing influence upon her energies. Lord Chief Justice Cockburn dwelt upon the effects of the accidents upon the lady's professional career, without dwelling particularly upon the scar upon her face. The court supported a verdict which gave the lady eight thousand dollars damages.

Nasal Billiards.

The last novelty in the game of billiards is using the nose instead of a cue. Mons. Maire is a practitioner of this new art. We do not know whether or not the bridge is barred in this game. To see M. Maire nursing the balls with his nose is said to be an enrapturing sight. No chalk is used, but when not in use the nose is kept wrapped up.

Holiday Candies.

A fine variety of Christmas Candies, Clear and Fancy Toys, Hornets and Fancy Candy Boxes, etc. Also, Christmas Tree Trimmings, etc., at J. Vogeley & Bro's., 126 Kearny and 46 Second street. Fairs and Festivals supplied at wholesale prices. s

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. Lipman has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

Manning's.

The only place south of Market street to get a good dish of Oysters, California or Eastern Transplanted, is at Manning's Charter Oak Oyster Saloon, corner Howard and Third, late of the Blue Wing Saloon. L

A CELTIC SUBTERFUGE.

She wore a monstrous chignon—
The gurl in front av me,
An' bedad 'twas not transparent,
An' the stage I couldn't see.

So I said: "Me dear young lady,
Wid the glorious bunch of hair,
It's fallin' aff, me darlint,
An' its' lookin' mighty quare!"

She crimsoned like a cherry,
An' she quickly left her sate,
An' thus I was enabled
To view Morlacchi's fait.

For, begor, I paid me money
For a place in the parquet,
An' though I love the ladies,
I was bound to see the play.

They're a comfort in our sickness,
But in our houre of aise—
As Scott once wisely mintioned—
They're mighty upt to taise.

The Bivalve.

This famous oyster house having been refitted and improved, is now under the management of H. E. Besthorn, assisted by "Henry," so long known in the oyster business. The best wines, liquors and cigars are kept. The best cooks and waiters in the State are employed. The neatly furnished rooms up-stairs for families and supper parties have long been a feature of THE BIVALVE, No. 640 Market street, near Kearny. P

Holiday Punches.

There are no Punches for the Holiday tables that compare with Squarza's. Squarza's Punches are famous for the high art shown in their manufacture, the happy combination of wholesome tonics, and their delicious flavor. Bone, the disciple of the great Squarza, has prepared forty different kind of punches and cordials for the Holiday tables. For sale at the new branch, 317 Kearny street, or at the Old Headquarters, 120 Leidesdorff street. N

Forrest's Wealth.

When the news of Forrest's death reached this city we suggested the possible disposition of his wealth to found a Dramatic College. Soon after a telegram arrived stating the probability of his having left his money for this purpose. Now comes Mrs. Sinclair, his divorced wife, with her claims on the estate. We sincerely trust that the law will not be able to give her the sums appropriated by the deceased actor to the purpose referred to above. Mrs. Sinclair, it is said, lost none of her rights by divorce. It now remains to be seen how far the law will give her e right to interfere with her late husband's will.

Oh! Worthy Man!

If it be true that Arnold, remotely connected with the diamond "discoveries" in Arizona, has discovered silver mines in Kentucky worth three hundred millions, and bought for nine millions all the property in the locality of the mines, the newspapers had better change their tune. Even if he did salt the diamond mines, he probably did it only as a joke. It is quite certain that a man who owns mines worth three hundred millions of dollars, is not to be called to account for any little eccentricities he may formerly have indulged in.

Amusements of the Season.

The boys in the neighborhood of North Beach go out in the afternoon hunting for dead babies which they take to the Morgue. Public decency calls for the erection of a baby tower such as they have in China. This practice of strowing babies along the beach is revolting. Let us have either a baby tower, a la Chinoise, or a foundling hospital, a la Francaise.

Must be Caught.

The Call says:

The S. F. S. T. P. O. C. T. A. is on the trail of the inhuman wretches who mutilated a cow on Green street, a few nights since.

Those inhuman wretches must and shall be caught even if it become necessary to send the rest of the alphabet after them.

Ravenous Creatures.

This is certainly interesting. Copper-toed fans are now sold for the benefit of young ladies who have no one to love, and who chew the stuffing out of an ordinary fan in one evening, provided there is a dance going on and they are forced to be "wall flowers."

Peru is indebted to an earthquake for an early adjournment of her Congress.

Ladies and Gentlemen

The Sunday Law.

The Call yesterday published what it calls "the exceedingly stringent" Sunday Law, which will go into effect with the new Code on January 1st. Now let us see how stringent it is:

SECTION 207. Every person who, on the Christian Sabbath, gets up, exhibits, opens or maintains, or aids in getting up, exhibiting, opening or maintaining, any bull, bear, cock or prize fight, horse race, circus, gambling house or saloon, or any other barbarous or noisy amusement, or who keeps, conducts or exhibits any theatre, melodeon, dance-cellar or other place of musical, theatrical or operatic performance, spectacle or representation, where any wines, liquors or intoxicating drinks are bought, sold, used, drank or given away, or who purchases any ticket of admission fee to or for the purpose of witnessing or attending any such place, amusement, spectacle, performance or representation, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

This is the old law now in force, and is entirely inoperative. The proviso "where any wines, liquors, or intoxicating drinks are bought, sold," etc., settles it; for there is a general law against selling liquors in theatres, and no manager ever thinks of selling any in his auditorium. This section is a dead letter. But the next one is very different. It is imperative, and has no qualification:

SECTION 208. Every person who keeps on Sunday any store, workshop, bar, saloon, banking house or other place of business, for the purpose of transacting business, is punishable by a fine of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars.

To be sure the bars and saloons have been kept open all the time on Sundays, and will be hereafter, in spite of the law; for their proprietors combine together, and by their influence override it. But it will be seen that the proviso touches the Call in a vital part, as it prohibits every place of business from doing business on Sunday, except "hotels, boarding houses, restaurants, livery stables and drug stores." Consequently the Call office will have to be shut up on Sunday, and the composition room likewise, so that after the 1st we can have no more Monday Morning Calls—for the Call will never, like the saloon keepers, have sufficient influence to set the law aside. No wonder the law looks "exceedingly stringent" to the Call.

Rather Tough.

There possibly may be a few of our readers who will believe this grasshopper story. They have become so ravenous out in Montana (it is said) that they eat the iron work on wagons. That's pretty tough work (to believe) perhaps, but Jersey mosquitos can discount them and give large odds. They have been known to tickle a mule on the back until he kicked up, and then to devour his shoes while they were in the air. Why not tell a story while you are about it?

A Jurywoman.

There are some women in the world who do not think it would be the sum of all happiness to get on a jury and be locked up in a room for several days and nights with eleven tyrant men, who would undoubtedly insist on smoking and chewing while deliberating on a verdict. One of this sort in Wyoming was summoned to serve on a jury. She said nothing but went, bearing in her arms a pledge of marital love, whose howls so discomposed the nerves of the Judge that he was glad to excuse her.

Sad News for Christmas.

The wonderful Danish story-teller, Hans Christian Andersen, who has written more delightful books than any living man, is reported to be seriously ill. He is now 97 years of age. If Hans Christian Andersen were to die at this time of year, one would expect old Santa Claus to come dressed in mourning.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

The Beggar Bates.

At last accounts the peripatetic Bates, who is marching from Glasgow to London with the Stars and Stripes, had not been molested. This is consoling. It is a relief to know that our troubles at home are not to be supplemented by a foreign war. The American eagle takes its shrieking way across the soil of Briton unchecked and uninsulted. Onward the dauntless Bates pursues his way, flapping the folds of freedom's banner in the eyes of tyranny. It is to be hoped that when the bold and fearless flag-bearer reaches the coal districts with his precious burden, he may tumble down some charitable shaft and never more be seen of men. If he should not be suddenly brought to a stand-still, we shall have him invading every country under the sun with our country's flag over his shoulders. Bates should be abated without delay.

Neat.

A neat little tragedy was enacted at Verona the other day, by two officers of Austrian cavalry. One of them, Signor S. .M., had surprised his wife in criminal conversation with one of his friends. The husband and the lover agreed to draw lots, as to which of the two should kill himself. Fate decided against the lover, and an hour later the gentleman shot himself through the head in his apartment and expired instantly.

The height of impertinence. Asking a Jew what his Christian name is.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Booken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

"All that Glitters is not Gold" was well played last night by Mr. Chaplin, Miss Annie Graham, Mr. Leman and others. Maggie Moore gained immense applause in the character of Liddy Larrigan in the lively farce of "Family Jars," which followed after the comedy. To-night, the Fabbri Opera Troupe will give their second operatic performance, and present "Lucrezia Borgia" with Signora Fabbri as Lucrezia, Miss Anna Elzer as Orsini, Signor Pietro Baccei as Gennaro, Herr Jacob Muller as Don Alfonso, Mons. Charles as Rustighello, and Mons. Roccovieri as Gubetta. To-morrow night, John Torrence will have his benefit which is mentioned below. On Friday evening the opera of "Don Giovanni" will be performed, and on Saturday, "La Favorita." The public must make the most of opera while they can enjoy it, as the season is a very short one.

Alhambra.

Emerson's Minstrels, the brilliant combination headed by Billy Emerson, the most popular performer who ever came to San Francisco, will give a great entertainment to-night. Miss Jennie Worrell, an old-time favorite, who is now brighter and more amusing than ever, will appear in song and dance with the graceful and attractive Miss Lillie Hall. Giovanni Campodonico will present his strange and pretty performance on original musical instruments, and the farce of "Sophia's Supper" will terminate one of the best bills of the season.

Metropolitan Theatre.

Miss Minnie Wells drew another good house last night. The play of the "Lion of Nubia" is sensational enough to suit the public taste, and Miss Well's banjo playing, singing, and dancing, and performances with the lions give much variety to the entertainment. Miss Wells is ably supported by Charles Edmonds, Miss Fanny Young, W. Ellerton and other members of the Metropolitan Theatre company.

Bella Union.

The Recheda Family of Spanish Minstrels are very popular at this house; Charles Verner, the London comique, is much applauded for his songs; M'lle Gerretta and Montagne appear in eccentric acts; Miss Jennie Johnson has made a hit in "The Belle of the Kitchen;" Oogill and Cooper appear in the song and dance entitled "The Two Benjamins," and altogether a very lively entertainment is given. The performance concludes with "The Female Swimmers."

The Atheneum.

The new bill presented at this house is a very attractive one. Senorita Maria Reoll is popular in ballads and her specialties; Miss Livingstone's character acts are much admired; Charley Thompson, Lon Dixon and Tommy Ross form a strong team, and the programme throughout is lively and entertaining. Miss Bertha Lillian, a burlesque actress late of Deagle's Varieties, St. Louis, is announced to make her first appearance.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Horticultural Hall.

This hall, corner of Stockton and Post streets, is open for skating Tuesday afternoon and evening Thursday afternoon and evening, and Saturday afternoon and evening.

Woodward's Gardens.

The usual Sunday crowd of thousands was present at these gardens. M'lle Senyeeh, circus performance and wonderful troupe of educated animals, will be the daily attractions throughout the week.

John Torrence's Benefit.

To-morrow night John Torrence will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit at the California Theatre. This testimonial is tendered to Mr. Torrence by John McCullough in acknowledgement of his valuable services during his connection with the California Theatre. The public are, we suppose, aware that to Mr. Torrence is due in a great measure the great improvement made in this theatre by the remodeling of the auditorium, etc. A capital bill will be presented. Mr. McCullough will make his first appearance, since his return from the East, in the character of Lucius Junius, in John Howard Payne's drama, entitled "Brutus; or, the Fall of Tarquin," and a musical entertainment will be given by the Amphion Club, Miss Anna Elzer, Jacob Muller, Professor Mulder-Fabbri, who have volunteered for the occasion.

Oriental Social Club.

A grand bal masque is to be given at the Horticultural Hall, on Stockton street, near Post, by the Oriental Literary and Social Club, on the 23d of January, 1873, on a scale of magnificence which promises to excel anything of the kind ever given in this city. Tickets will be issued to none but subscribers, thereby insuring a respectable assemblage.

Platt's Hall.

The fair being held in this hall for the benefit of the Central Presbyterian Tabernacle presents many attractions. This evening there will be a number of beautiful living pictures, scenes from Dickens' novels, Evangeline, etc. Lunch will be served to-day between 12 and 3 o'clock.

Daughters of Israel.

The second grand ball of the Daughters of Israel will be held at Horticultural Hall on Saturday evening, December 28th. The price of tickets has been set at five dollars. The proceeds will be devoted to charity.

To Arrive.

Among the passengers passing Carlin yesterday to arrive in San Francisco this evening are Miss Betty Rigl and Miss Emma Rigl, the famous dancers, engaged for the Christmas piece at the California Theatre.

First Regiment Drum Corps.

The first invitation party of this company will be held this evening at their Armory, at the corner of New Montgomery and Howard streets. We acknowledge the receipt of tickets.

Talent for the Metropolitan Theatre.

By the Eastern train due to-night, Harry Eytinge and Hudson Liston will arrive under engagement to the Metropolitan Theatre.

It is wittily said of a beautiful French

LETTER FROM CHICAGO.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

CHICAGO, November 9th, 1872.

DEAR FIGARO:—The past week has afforded our people plenty of amusement. The weather being very moderate and warm, and the "Epizon" past, a little better attendance is expected by managers.

AIKEN'S THEATRE.

Rubenstein and Wieniawski have left us and gone elsewhere to charm the public ear with their ravishing strains, and we come down to the level of stock companies and occasional stars in the dramatic firmament. Lawrence Barrett opened on Saturday, the 9th, in "Richard." This evening "Hamlet" is the bill—Aitken as Laertes, Frank Lawler as the Ghost, Mrs. Clara Maeder as Ophelia. "Julius Cæsar" comes next, to be followed by "Rosedale."

HOOLEY'S OPERA HOUSE.

In pursuance of the new policy decided upon by the management, this evening will inaugurate a season of legitimate dramatic entertainments at this theatre. The company is an excellent one. Byron's society comedy entitled "Partners for Life" will be given for the first time in this city, with John Dillon, Padgett and Blaisdell, and Mrs. Meek in the principal roles. The intent of the management is to copy after Daly's Fifth-avenue Theatre.

M'VICKER'S THEATRE.

"London Assurance" is underlined for production this week, with Miss Jane Coombs as Lady Gay Spanker. The overflowing houses which greeted her last week guarantee that she will draw immensely. "Lady of Lyons," "The Love Chase" and "Stranger" are in active preparation.

MYERS' OPERA HOUSE.

The admirable burlesque company here will be augmented this week by the appearance of several new artistes; among them Billy Rice, Clarence Burton in his specialties; Milborn in his artistic portraitures, and Macklin and Wilson, song and dance men, remain. Many new features will be presented, chief among which are the laughable sketches, "The New Policeman" and "The Watch Dog."

NIXON'S AMPHITHEATRE.

Flaming posters covering near all the dead-walls of our city announce that Leo Hudson as Mazeppa, with her animal Black Bess, will be the particular attraction during the week. Fanny Denham and Billy Roose, old-time favorites, will assume leading characters.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Mr. Gardiner, of the Academy, has gone on a tour with his fine troupe to our rural cities. In his absence the Lingard troupe attract the many. On Monday of last week and the two nights following, "The Dream of Life" and his statues and specialties. Thursday an exchange was made when "David Garrick" was produced; on Friday Lingard and Miss Alice Dunning Lingard received a benefit, presenting "David Garrick," with Lingard in the title role. This evening (Monday), the Lydia Thompson Troupe makes its appearance, "Blue Beard" is the play, with the great Heathen Chinee scene in the second act. Willie Edouin as the Heathen Chinee, a part which he can impersonate well, for his experience in your city adapts him for that. "Lurline" is underlined. Their engagement is for four weeks.

WEST SIDE OPERA HOUSE

Is still under headway with the "Zig-Zags," Healy and Maas, and Walter Bray as leading attractions.

GLOBE.

Col. Sinn, associated with Col. Woods in the management of this theatre, has retired. The company has been freed from the presence of several objectionable persons. The principal feature this week is the Ellis Family. They will appear in their specialties, "The Belle of the Kitchen," the fairy extravaganza of "Wine Amaliel." The other features of the programme present the same melange of singing, dancing, etc, as usual.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Miss Sarah Alexander starts soon a starring tour. The lecture field, of course. Milwaukee is the first destination.

Miss "Lisle Lester" is also under the lecture mania. She also soon starts on a tour.

Susan Denin with a fine company is at Green Bay, Wisconsin, playing "Romeo and Juliet," and "The Marble Heart."

Miss Florence Newton is still confined to her bed suffering from her burns caused some weeks ago in "The Black Crook." WILL.

The Diamond Mines

Or feast my eyes upon a face
That Phydias might have prayed to see;
And reckon up each manly grace
That makes you seem so dear to me!

I cannot stay the ambitious thought
That ever in my breast is rising,
Of what may some day be my lot—
Down, foolish heart! 'tis vain surmising.
I cannot help, for evermore
My vagrant thoughts make this reflection—
How handsome, tall and brave is he—
How rare a subject for dissection!

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

A Novelty.

They have hanged a man in Brooklyn, New York. Henry Regers killed a man and was hanged for it. It is true that his victim was something more than a man: he was a policeman. But still this is encouraging. The New York Dispatch says:

> Regers had committed the one great crime of taking human life, and that, too, the life of one of the guardians of the public peace. The killing of a police officer is a crime more than ordinarily heinous. The constituted authorities say to such a man, "Here is your warrant; go out into the dark night and protect the city." Armed with this right he goes alone among the low, the vile, the dangerous element. He is more than a man, in that he is a representative of the power of the people who demand peace and public security. The person who assails him while in the discharge of his duty is punished beyond the man who commits a common assault and battery. The man who kills him strikes a blow which tends to shatter society in a far greater degree than if the victim were a common citizen. As the police officer runs a greater risk, so should he enjoy greater protection; and if he must die, stricken to his death by an unlawful hand, he should at least have the consciousness of knowing that his death will be avenged.

The law might be changed to make the penalty of killing a man imprisonment for life and killing a policeman hanging. How would that work?

New Music.

Among the latest pieces of music published by M. Gray, are the "Punchinello Polka," as played in "The Palace of Truth," arranged for the piano by Carl Hess; "Sweet Kathleen McGee, composed by M. C.; "Le Maitre D'Ecole Alsacien,' chant patriotique, words by Villemer and De Lormel, music by L. T. Planel; and a very pretty ballad entitled "No, No, I Never Can Forgot," answer to "The Day When You'll Forget Me," words by Pascal Loomis, music by J. R. Thomas.

Impertinent.

A lady who signs herself Amethyst, writing to the Chronicle on the ill treatment of the boys in the Industrial School, asks, "What did Jesus of Nazareth come on earth for?" Now, isn't this a pretty question to ask the Chronicle? Hasn't the woman better taste?

The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

Newspaper Personalities.

Commenting on the death of Horace Greeley, Bennett, Raymond and others, the New York Observer suggestively and forcibly remarks:

> One lesson the editorial profession might learn from these repeated deaths in their number. The respect and tenderness with which great editors are spoken of while they are waiting burial is in strange contrast with the style in which they spoke of one another and others spoke of them, and others speak of others, in the conflicts of the day. Personalities disgrace the profession. There are journals that are never soiled by it. They are marked by a dignity and decorum that no temptation leads them to forget. It would be well if over the bier of our dead brethren we could be inspired with a lofty sentiment of self respect, that would shine in the purity and brightness of pages that never bear "a line which dying we would wish to blot," or a word regarding an opponent which we would regret when helping him into his peaceful grave."

"We that have free souls it touches us not. Let the galled jade wince, our withers are unwrung." That saying, De mortuis nil nisi bonum, is a very kind one, but our idea is, that if we have abused a man when he was alive, not to take back a word we have said merely because he is dead. If we dislike a man we don't particularly want to see him round, and certainly shall not shed crocodile tears because he has died and got out of the way. If a bad man's death may be accepted as a sort of apology for having lived at all, then perhaps we may be inclined to think more kindly of him, and stop abusing him. When a bad man dies he stops being offensively bad, he annoys us no longer, therefore we cease from pitching into him. If an editor has abused a good man, it is well for him if he takes back what he has said about him before he dies. To do so simply because the man is dead, is mean and cowardly. Harper's Journal of Civilization "helped honest Horace Greeley into his peaceful grave" with a vengeance. It pictured him as an ass, a devil, a maniac, etc., when alive, and then sniffled over his murdered corpse. If we say a man ought to die, we mean it, and when he is dead, of course we are not sorry, and don't say that we are. A pretty spectacle these editorial crocodiles present blubbering over the grave of Horace Greeley! Ugh!

Very Good Sense.

M. Alphonse Kerr, the French journalist, has supplemented, with an equally graphic one, his well-known mot on the abolition of capital punishment: "I have no objection whatever, only let the murderers begin." Referring to the agitation for amnesty to the Communists, he says: "In principle I am in favor of such a step; but I wish first to know whether, if we were to pardon the Communists, they would amnesty us."

Soothing for Sikesy.

Olive Logan says: "I am not fickle; but do you know that whenever I get a beau and come to like him I find another man I like better!" We do not doubt it; but how does Mr. Sikes conduct himself on these occasions?

Never too Old to Learn.

Caleb Cushing, while in Paris, last May, is said to have devoted three hours daily to the study of French. Mr. Cushing has spoken French for 40 years, and is 72 years old—but not too old to learn.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

And we never disappoint, at the What Cheer Laundry.

How He Died.

There is a dead gambler in Circleville, Ohio, and it happened in this wise: Among other luxuries he kept a mistress, Alice, and having one evening discovered the foreman of a printing establishment in amorous dalliance with that same Alice, he swooped down on him and rent his garments, and vi et armis ejected him from the domicile; nor then was his wrath appeased, for he commenced a promiscuous demolition of the furniture, and when he had pulverized it to his vicious satisfaction he casually remarked: "There, now (the next three words were wicked), keep house if you want to." Seeing that the fragmentary condition of her chattels rendered that somewhat impossible, she rose in her wrath and with a sharp instrument punctured the earthly tenement of that gambler's soul insomuch that the tenant fled, and she has been indicted for gamblercide, and will be invited by an intelligent jury to continue her depredations.

Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. At SQUARZA'S PUNCH SALOON, in Kearny street
There BONA, disciple of GREAT SQUARZA,

The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADI

To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL,"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find
To aid the Man—invigorate the mind!

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

The opera of "Lucrezia Borgia" was excellently well performed last night before a large audience. This evening Mr. John Torrance will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit at the California Theatre. This testimonial is tendered to Mr. Torrance by John McCullough in acknowledgement of his valuable services during his connection with the California Theatre. The public are, we suppose, aware that to Mr. Torrence is due in a great measure the great improvement made in this theatre by the remodeling of the auditorium, etc. A capital bill will be presented. Mr. McCullough will make his first appearance, since his return from the East, in the character of Lucius Junius in John Howard Payne's drama entitled "Brutus; or, the Fall of Tarquin," and a musical entertainment will be given by a number of volunteers whose names appear in the full programme on our first page.

Alhambra.

Miss Jennie Worrell, Miss Lillie Hall, the great Billy Emerson, the original Bob Hart, the lively Charley Sutton, and a host of others will appear in a great bill to-night, including the very pretty song and dance, "My Little Bunch of Roses," "Josephus Orange Blossom," and the lively acts entitled "He's Got to Come" and "Sophia's Supper."

Metropolitan Theatre.

To-night, there will be a change in the bill. The performance will commence with an original musical farce, written by W. Ellerton, entitled "The Death Puzzle;" in this, Mr. Ellerton will appear in the character of Sam Spouter. The rest of the cast appears on our first page. After this, Miss Minnie Wells will appear in the sensation drama of "The Lion of Nubia," and go through her struggles with the lions, performances on the banjo, hornpipe, etc.

Bella Union.

Among the many attractions at this house, are the Recheda Family, Charles Verner, the London Comique, the ballet of Faust and Marguerite, the play of "The Belle of the Kitchen," and the sensation drama of "The Female Swimmers."

The Atheneum.

There are many new artistes at this house, all good in their respective specialties. Senorita Maria Reclis, Miss Maggie Sinclair and many others will appear to-night. To-morrow night, "One Night in the Calaboose" will be presented for the first time.

San Francisco Olympic Club.

The exhibition of this club will be given at their Hall on Sutter street, below Montgomery, this evening. It will be a pleasing affair and of course there will be a highly fashionable attendance.

nrticultural Hall.

This hall, corner of Stockton and Post streets, is open for skating Tuesday afternoon and evening, Thursday afternoon and evening, and Saturday afternoon and evening.

Woodward's Gardens.

The usual Sunday crowd of thousands was present at these gardens. M'lle Senyeah, circus performance and wonderful troupe of educated animals, will be the daily attractions throughout the week.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Comprehensive.

The New York World states that justifiable homicide is now held to include "the case of every man who kills any other man on account of any woman, and of every woman who kills a man on any account whatever."

Editorial Amenities.

An Alabama editor mildly alludes to his rival as a "reservoir of falsehood and an acqueduct of mendacity;" whereupon his rival retorts by referring to his contemporary as a "bottomless pit of infamy and an earthquake of blasphemy."

Rash Man!

A merchant in a Connecticut village recently kissed the hired girl while his wife was looking at him through the window. It is thought he will be out again about Christmas.

TO ACTRESSES.—For sale at a great sacrifice, at 38 Geary street, six elegant silk dresses, unequalled for quality and style. a

The Bivalve.

This famous oyster house having been refitted and improved, is now under the management of H. E. Besthorn, assisted by "Henry," so long known in the oyster business. The best wines, liquors and cigars are kept. The best cooks and waiters in the State are employed. The neatly furnished rooms up-stairs for families and supper parties have long been a feature of THE BIVALVE, No. 640 Market street, near Kearny. P

Holiday Punches.

There are no Punches for the Holiday tables that compare with Squarza's. Squarza's Punches are famous for the high art shown in their manufacture, the happy combination of wholesome tonics, and their delicious flavor. Bona, the disciple of the great Squarza, has prepared forty different kind of punches and cordials for the Holiday tables. For sale at the new branch, 317 Kearny street, or at the Old Headquarters, 120 Leidesdorff street. N

A Successful Dodge.

We had a visit from a book-peddling female last week. She wished to dispose of a book. She was alone in this world, and had no one to whom she could turn for sympathy or assistance, hence we should buy her book. She was unmarried, and had no manly heart in which she could pour her sufferings; therefore we ought to invest in her book. She had received a liberal education and could talk French like a native; we could not in consequence refuse to pay her two dollars for a book. She wanted to take lessons in music from a learned German professor; consequently we must not decline buying a book. We had listened attentively, and here broke in with, "What do you say? We're deaf." She started in a loud voice and went through her rigmarole. When she had finished we went and got a roll of paper and made it into a speaking trumpet, placed one end in our ear, and told her proceed. She nearly burst a blood vessel in her frantic efforts to make herself heard. She commenced: "I am alone in the world." "It doesn't make the slightest difference to us. We are not alone; in fact, we are a husband and a father. Although this is leap year, bigamy is not allowed in this State. We are not eligible to proposals." "Oh! what a fool this man is," she said in a low tone: then at the top of her voice, "I don't want to marry you. I want—to-sell—a—b-o-o-k!" This last sentence was howled. "We don't want a cook," we blandly remarked; "our wife does the cooking, and she wouldn't allow as good looking a woman as you are to stay in the house five minutes. She's very jealous." She looked at us in despair. Gathering her robes about her, giving us a glance of contempt, and exclaiming, "I do believe if a three-hundred pounder were let off alongside that bigmed old deaf fool's head he'd think somebody was knocking at the door," she slung herself out and slammed the door with a vehemence that awakened our office boy, who can sleep sound enough for a whole family. When she was gone we indulged in a demoniac laugh. She isn't likely to try to sell us a book any more.

True Words.

In a letter on the tobacco question, the London Lancet says:

To the poor man, working hard and living hard at the same time—to the soldier, cold, fatigued and ill-fed during a campaign—tobacco is, we believe, both useful and comforting. It soothes some excitable men and enables many others to concentrate their attention on subjects requiring thought. If tobacco be the poison its enemies declare it, it is eminently slow in its action, for every work-house, lunatic asylum and charitable institution has its gray-haired votaries of the pipe.

Do Not Suffer from Corns.

The unfortunate sufferers from Corns, Bunions, Club and Ingrowing Nails, can find instant relief by applying at Dr. B. H. Cowan's Institute, 310 Kearny street, from 1 to 6 P.M. We speak from experience, having tested the Doctor's capability. References given if required. H

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizz'e, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

The President's Message.

Peace and prosperity are the key notes of this document. Cheapness and durablity are the characteristics of H. Luchsinger's furniture. All should visit his emporium, 731 Market street, and ascertain how cheaply a house can be furnished. D

An Old Landmark.

The Verandah Cigar Store, at the N. E. corner of Kearny and Washington streets, kept by Henry Schmidt, has been famous for the last eleven years for keeping the best Havana cigars, tobacco, choice meerschaum pipes, etc. F

Hats for Holidays.

"THE" Hat Store, 647 Washington street (second hat store below Kearny), is the place to go to buy your holiday hats. Finest hats, largest assortment and cheapest hat store in the city. Remember, No. 647, second hat store below Kearny, on Washington street. D

Just received, 100 dozen latest styles of hoop-skirts, slightly damaged, to be sold for 50 cents, worth $1 50; also, bustles for 25 cents, at M. Frend's Hoop-skirt, Corset and Underwear Manufactory, No. 36 Second street, corner Jessie.

BENEATH THE SNOW.

Beneath the snow, couched there so low,
Two heroes lie,
Whose spirit brave "for home" they gave
Up to the sky.

"For home," they say. One's cause to-day
Lies with him, low.
A cause so high could never lie
Beneath the snow.

But peace, like snow, wraps each hero,
Whatever side;
For heaven's sake, no ripple make
On death's dark tide.

An Ingenious Cripple.

Philadelphians, notwithstanding that they are Quakers, have always had the reputation of being smart. In fact, most of them cut their wisdom teeth at an early age. An ingenious youth of that city has shown himself worthy of the place of his nativity. He wears a wooden leg, and worked in a pipe factory. He had his wooden leg so made that he could carry in it half a dozen meerschaum pipes. When his little game was found out, he had disposed of about $800 worth of pipes in his own interest. This he called walking into a fortune. But his employers walked him into a prison.

Too Much Sensation.

An Irishman went, for the first time, to a play. Just as the drop curtain descended after the first act, the boiler of an engine in the basement exploded, and the Celt was blown through the roof, alighting in the next square. His first remark after coming to his senses was, "An' what the divil will they play next?"

Poor Fellow!

The Alta Reporter says:

A heavy frost nipped all green things in the city yesterday morning.

He is slowly recovering, but has to wear a mustard poultice continually.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the 'Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

A Deplorable Failure.

William McMenna imagined that the fair young thing whom he loved did not reciprocate his affection with precisely that degree of ardor which seemed to him essential to the perfection of his bliss. Having faith therefore, in the action of chemicals on the human soul, he procured from a female seer a formula from which he could have love-powder compounded. The apothecary to whom he applied for the materiel was suspicious and jocular; therefore he merely supplied the solicitous McMenna with an ounce of tartar emetic. That evening William asked his only one to partake of oysters at a restaurant. While her back was turned he placed the love powder among the refreshments. There was joy and peace for a few moments. Suddenly, however, the object of Mr. McMenna' longings rose hastily, rushed quickly into an adjoining room, and displayed serious evidences of the powerful effect of tartar emetic. Here William called a cab, and took her home, and told her about the powder, and tried to explain that there must have been some mistake. Then she said she hated him, and if he came around to see her again she would set the dog on him, and the next morning her elder brother fooled awhile among his hair. Then they arrested him for attempting murder by poison, and he was in prison six months before he was tried and acquitted. Doctor's and lawyer's fees, and other expenses, amounted to about two thousand dollars not counting shattered hopes and blighted affection, the loss in which can only be estimated in millions. He now considers the science of chemistry a deplorable failure.

A Wonderful Organ.

In its report of the wreck of the Sacramento, the Chronicle has the following:

> Scarcely ten minutes afterward the officer in charge of the deck, Mr. Herrington, the second mate, became uneasy, and remarked to the lookout that he thought he smelled the surf, and feared the ship was running into danger. The lookout failed to perceive any sign of danger, and so stated to his officer. Hardly had he spoken before a long white line of breakers was seen immediately ahead.

If Mr. Herrington's nose had been credited with the discernment it was afterwards proved to possess, the Sacramento might have been saved. Mr. Herrington's sense of smell proved more acute than the lookout's eyesight. The nose has never had due credit given it; we therefore record with much pleasure this instance of a nose having very nearly saved a ship. "Follow your nose" is a good motto, that is—trust to your nose as well as your other senses; don't ignore it altogether.

Somewhat too Much.

An Omaha theatre bill has the following startling announcement: "A New Wife, every night." And Brigham Young isn't a character in the play either.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

Edwin Forrest's Will.

No man who ever trod the stage was more thoroughly devoted to his profession than Edwin Forrest. We hear a great deal of Forrest's boorishness, of his cruelty to actors who played with him in purposely hurting their feelings, but there are hundreds of unrecorded cases in which he assisted brother professionals in distress. All his life he has been saving up money to do what? To help actors when they are no longer able to tread the boards. Surely this was a good work for an actor to mark out for himself. Forrest was not popular with the profession. Now they all must learn that they have lost one who loved them well. We are told that Forrest in his will leaves money for the foundation of the "Edwin Forrest Home," in Spring Brook, Philadelphia, which institution shall be for the support and maintenance of actors and actresses decayed by age or disabled by infirmities; who, if natives of the United States, shall have served five years in the theatrical profession, and if of foreign birth shall have served in the profession ten years, whereof the three years next previous to application for admission to the Home shall have been spent in the United States, and who shall in all things comply with the laws and regulations of the Home, otherwise they shall be discharged by the Managers, whose decision shall be final. The purposes of the Home are intended to be partly educational and self sustaining, as well as eleemosynary, and never to encourage idleness or shiftlessness in any capable of useful exertion. It provides that his library shall be at the Home, which shall also contain a picture gallery for the preservation of his collection, in which the inmates shall meet for private exhibition and histrionic culture. Lectures on science, literature and the arts are also provided for, as well as celebrations on the 4th of July and Shakspeare's birthday. This is well designed. May the design be well carried out. The managers of the Home will not find their path strewn with roses, but we trust that they will be men who will honestly carry out Forrest's idea in the foundation of this home. What sum is to be devoted to this purpose is not yet announced; if it proves in the future insufficient for the purpose, it will be very easy to increase it from time to time. It is a good begining. An annual benefit at principal theatres of the United States would support such an institution in princely style when the present number of actors is doubled or trebled. Forrest's legacy to the profession of which he was a worthy member, must be sacredly guarded, and made to accomplish all the good its noble donor had in view when he gave it.

Brought to Light.

Nothing like a fire to bring out the frauds of business sometimes. In an account of burning of a coffee mill at Rochester, the press of that city announces that there was several thousand dollars worth of barley destroyed. "What was barley doing in a coffee mill?" is the question drinkers of pure Java would naturally ask.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

There was a splendid house last night on the occasion of the benefit of John Torrence. An excellent programme was well performed. The beneficiary was called before the curtain to receive the congratulations of the audience, and appeared with John McCullough. "Brutus, or the Fall of Tarquin," was performed in excellent style. Mr. McCullough, who was warmly welcomed on making his first appearance since his return from the East, gave one of those splendid renditions of Roman character for which he is famous, and in which, the great original being gone, he stands without a rival. This drama will be performed at the matinee to-morrow. This evening Mozart's grand opera of "Don Giovanni" will be presented by the Fabbri Troupe. Don Giovanni, Jacob Muller; Leporello, Fulvio Bigo; Donna Anna, Inez Fabbri; Donna Elvira, Signora Bianchi; Zerlina, Anna Elze; Don Ottavio, Pietro Baccei.

Alhambra.

Miss Jennie Worrell and Miss Lillie Hall, in conjunction with Billy Emerson and his great band of minstrels, are nightly honored with the presence of large and fashionable audiences who express their delight at the excellent and varied entertainment offered for their amusement, by loud and frequent applause. The bill which has thronged this house from pit to dome every night this week, will be played at the matinee to-morrow.

Metropolitan Theatre.

W. Ellerton's original musical farce, entitled "The Death Puzzle," produced last night, proved a very amusing affair, and the author and Miss Young kept the audience in good humor by their exposition of the eccentricities of their characters. Miss Minnie Wells appeared in the drama of "The Lion of Nubia," and was much applauded for her banjo playing, dances and performance with the lions. This play will be presented at the matinee to-morrow, when of course all the children in town will wish to go to see "live lions" on the stage. This evening Miss Minnie Wells will take a benefit and make her last appearance but two.

Bella Union.

M'lle Gerretts and Ed Montague in eccentric acts; J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong in Dutch acts; The Rechada Family in a pleasing musical performance; Mme. Therese, Mons. Scmidt, and corps de ballet, comprising Miss Minnie Fillmore, Miss Josie Mayfield, Miss Josephine, and many others in "Faust and Marguerite;" Charles Vernar in comic songs, and many other attractions are offered to-night.

The Atheneum.

Among the many amusing acts to be performed to-night are "The Amateur's Debut," "Matrimonial Troubles," "Mesmeric Influence," "The Military Tactics." The performance will conclude with the screaming farce of "The Picnic to San Jose."

City Gardens.

There will be great doings at these beautiful gardens on Sunday next. There will be a grand ascension in a new balloon by A. Buislay, accompanied by a daring American lady who will scatter flowers on the crowd beneath as she sails towards heaven. In addition to this there will be a circus performance and a new pantomime written expressly for this occasion by E. Buislay. On Christmas night there will be a grand ball.

Horticultural Hall.

This hall, corner of Stockton and Post streets, is open for skating Tuesday afternoon and evening, Thursday afternoon and evening, and Saturday afternoon and evening.

Woodward's Gardens.

The usual Sunday crowd of thousands was present at these gardens. M'lle Seojeah, circus performance and wonderful troupe of educated animals, will be the daily attractions throughout the week.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

A Fearful Sight.

A horrible fall happened a loafer at Salt Lake, recently. He was a large, powerful man, which made the struggle more fearful. He sauntered into a drug store there recently, and sat down on a freshly charged soda fount. The proprietor slowly turned the cock, and in a moment the loafer was dancing on the top of a water spout, like a ball of cork on the jet of a fountain.

TO ACTRESSES.—For sale at a great sacrifice, at 38 Geary street, six elegant silk dresses, unequalled for quality and style. a

The Bivalve.

This famous oyster house having been refitted and improved, is now under the management of H. E. Besthorn, assisted by "Henry," so long known in the oyster business. The best wines, liquors and cigars are kept. The best cooks and waiters in the State are employed. The neatly furnished rooms up-stairs for families and supper parties have long been a feature of THE BIVALVE, No. 640 Market street, near Kearny. P

Holiday Punches.

There are no Punches for the Holiday tables that compare with Squarza's. Squarza's Punches are famous for the high art shown in their manufacture, the happy combination of wholesome tonics, and their delicious flavor. Bona, the disciple of the great Squarza, has prepared forty different kind of punches and cordials for the Holiday tables. For sale at the new branch, 317 Bush street, or at the Old Headquarters, 1.0 Leidesdorff street. N

An Essay on Legs.

Mr. A. E. Lancaster, a well-known essayist and critic of New York, is not pleased with the new spectacle of "Leo and Lotos," with which Niblo's was opened. He says:

We read in Proverbs that the Lord delighted not in the legs of men; to which we may add that the devil certainly seems to take pleasure in those of a woman, and that in no play that we have ever seen is this Satanic object of enjoyment made greater use of than in "Leo and Lotos." There were vernal legs, and autumnal legs, and summer legs, and legs that would seem to have the wings of the morning; there were legs affluent with the girth and resiliency of nature, and legs rounded with the smooth paddings of art—legs in which the red wine of youth circulates hotly, and legs in which all the passion of a tropical temperament seems to have confined itself; there were large legs, and small legs, and dapper legs, and idiosyncratic leg—legs of ambition, legs of disappointment, legs of sin, legs of remorse; there were ripe legs, mellow legs, amorous legs, contemporaneous legs, and legs of living human import; there were legs of action, and legs of repose—legs which a sculptor might have Pygmalionized, and by which the worshipper might have felt happy to be kicked. No wonder that the legitimate has scarcely a leg to stand on when so many have been squeezed into the service of the spectacular. We suspect that the correct form of congratulation would be, not that Jarrett and Palmer have begun the season prosperously, but that Niblo's is on its legs again.

A Sharp Tailor.

Poole, the tailor to the Prince of Wales, is a character in his way; any number of stories are told of him. One day a young Captain in the Guards is said to have stopped him when driving on the parade at Brighton, and asked him as a bit of fun, to look at his coat and see how badly it was made. Poole flung his reins to the groom, gravely scanned the coat, took a piece of chalk from his pocket, and chalked any number of cabalistic diagrams or problems from Euclid on his customer's back. "Ah," he said, contemplating his work with much satisfaction, "that will do now, certain; just go to my place and let the cutter see those marks, and he will know what to do;" and returning to his phaeton he left the fellow chalked all over like an April fool. Pool takes care to hold his own ground among his aristocratic clients, who are more amused than offended at his blunt ways. They sometimes invite him to their country houses, and on one occasion on the complaint that the company he met was very much mixed, was met by the remark that "he could not expect them to be all tailors."

Queer Medicine.

Rural people have queer ideas of what is an efficacious medicine. A man in Waterford, New York, having got too drunk to navigate, his friends gave him a dose of kerosene oil. They thought it would cause a small Niagara to issue from his throat. But it didn't affect him a bit. And now he dare not go near a stove; he shuns all lights, and won't even smoke. He labors under the delusion that he is in danger of explosion. If he were to come to this city and circulate among the "distilleries," he'd soon discover that even benzine can be drank in large quantities with impunity from explosion.

Food for the Brain.

Mark Twain got off the following to a "Young Author" in his "Answers to Correspondents:" "Yes, Agassiz does recommend authors to eat fish, because the phosphorus in it makes brains. So far, you are correct; but I can not help you to a decision about the amount you need to eat—at least, not with certainty. If the specimen of composition you send is about fair, usual average, I should judge that, perhaps a couple of whales would be all you want for the present. Not the largest kind, but simply good, middling-sized whales."

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Peace and prosperity are the key notes of this document. Cheapness and durability are the characteristics of H. Luchsinger's furniture. All should visit his emporium, 731 Market street, and ascertain how cheaply a house can be furnished. D

Hats for Holidays.

A LAY.

Slowly a Boston man
  Fried in his store,
Where, seeking salvage, he'd Gained upper-floor;
Singing, "A Threnody
  Write for me now,
Julia Ward—Julia Ward—
  Julia Ward Howe!"

Came a Fire Company
  Under the sash,
Bearing the ladders there,
  Quick as a flash;
Crying, "To rescue thee
  Norwich ascends;
Boston man, Boston man,
  Help bring thy friends!"

Peered then the Boston man
  Down through the smoke,
O'er where the ladder-end
  Casement had broke;
Asking, with dignity—
  "Answer me true—
Norwich men, Norwich men,
  What would you do?"

Up spake a Norwich man,
  Poised on a rong,
Breaking the sashes in,
  Red sparks among—
"We, by the City's light,
  Come to assist;
Boston man, Boston man,
  Give us thy fist!"

Back sprang the Boston man,
  Splendidly proud,
Saying, while flames around
  Wove him a shroud:
"Outside assistance is
  Of him the scorn,
Gentlemen, gentlemen,
  Who's Boston-born!"

Wildly the Norwich men
  Swarmed up amain,
Vainly to rescue him
  Seen not again;
And e'en a Threnody
  Writes for him now
Julia Ward—Julie Ward—
  Julia Ward Howe!

Speed the Coming Millenium.

Drummers are fined $200 in Washington if they solicit sales without a license. In Omaha they are shot on sight. Would that the latter mode of disposing of the pests prevailed here. But the world moves, and the day may come when drummers, life insurance agents and bad poets will be placed on a level with mad dogs. We probably won't live to see the time; but we are working in the interests of the peace of our successors.

A Mother-in-Law a Blessing.

The man who can't be happy unless his mother-in-law lives in the same house with him, isn't a resident of New York. He lives in Jersey City. He says she's the only woman who can tackle his wife successfully. They take up so much time jawing each other that he has a peaceful life.

Selfish Woman!

"What's to become of me if you die?" asked an affectionate wife of her receding husband. "I don't know," he snapped out querulously; "it would look better in you to be thinking what's to become of me!"

Quincy, Ill., averages about four runaways a day. Sometimes they are wagons and sometimes they are men.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. n

Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES' PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.

Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!

A balmy soother for the troubled mind.

Jealous of the Dogs.

The Alta is indignant that the Poundkeeper should be allowed twenty-five cents a day per dog for his board, while only sixteen and three-fourths cents per prisoner is the allowance in the County Jail. It is mean of the Alta to grudge these poor dogs lying under sentence of death, two or three square meals before they are slaughtered; but then the Alta was always mean toward the poor and friendless. When we put the case thus: That some of these dogs, who unfortunately fell into the hands of the Poundmaster, belong to rich people and have been been used to good living, the Alta, may, perhaps, sympathize with them.

Woman's Cruelty to Man.

The wiles of woman have caused many a heart to bleed. How sad is the case of a young man who resides in Jersey City. About a month ago he presented that dear little creature with a writing desk, a lot of note paper, ink, and postage stamps. He has discovered that she used his presents in writing to the "other fellow." He now wears a gloomy look, and a red necktie, and takes his hash irregular. In the midst of life we are in scrapes.

A Romance of the Big Fire.

A Boston paper says that an heiress of that city, worth some $500,000, who was engaged to marry a poor man at home, was traveling in Europe at the time of the fire. That catastrophe left her in utter poverty, and accordingly by cable, next day, she sent him a message of dismissal, which, it is probably safe to say, will not be accepted.

Why Should They?

When a man thinks that nobody cares for him, and that he is alone in a cold and selfish world, he would do well to ask himself what he has done to make anybody love and care for him, and to warm the world with faith and generosity. Generally those who complain the most, have done the least.

Business Enterprise.

There is no limit to the capacity of Yankee enterprise. A lively son of Anak from the hills of Vermont hears of Professor Tyndall's "Prayergauge;" and what does he do? Why, only one thing, of course—writes to the professor soliciting an agency for the sale of his patent!

A Mania for Funerals.

A Washington paper declares that a Masonic lodge near its office has a funeral every Sunday, using a dummy as a corpse when none of their members are ready for burial.

Olive Logan having herself been brought around to think it would have been money in her pocket, had she taken to millinery instead of literature, the popular regret on that score must now be considered unanimous.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

Effect of Disapprobation on Actors.

High and low, from Garrick to "the super," it is probably the actor's doom, for more or less reasons, at some time or another, to be hissed. He is, as members of parliament are fond of saying, "in the hands of the house," and may be ill-considered by it. Any one can hiss, and one goose makes many. Lamb relates how he once saw Elliston, sitting in state in the tarnished green-room of the Olympic Theatre, while before him was brought, for judgment on complaint of the prompter, "one of those little tawdry things that flirt at the tails of choruses—the pertest little drab—a dirty fringe and appendage of the lamp's smoke who, it seems, on some disapprobation expressed by a 'highly respectable' audience, had precipitately quitted her station on the boards and withdrawn her small talents in disgust. 'And how dare you,' said the manager, 'how dare you, madam, without notice withdraw yourself from your theatrical duties?' 'I was hissed, sir.' 'And have you the presumption to decide upon the taste of the town?' 'I don't know that, sir, but I will never stand to be hissed,' was the rejoinder of Young Confidence. Then, gathering up his features into one significant mass of wonder, pity, and expostulatory indignation—in a lesson never to be lost on a creature less forward than she who stood before him—his words were these: "They have hissed ME!" It is understood that this argument failed in its effect, for, after all, a hiss is not to be in such wise excused or explained away; its application is far too direct and personal. "Ladies and gentlemen, it was not I that shot the arrow," said Braham to his audience, when some bungling occurred in a performance of "William Tell," and the famous apple remained uninjured upon the head of the hero's son. If derision was moved by this bungling still more did the singer's address and confession excite the mirth of the spectators. To another singer, failure, or the dread of failure was fraught with more tragic consequences. For some sixteen years, Adolphe Nourrit had been the chief tenor of the Paris Opera-house. He had created the leading characters in "Robert," "Les Huguenots," "La Juive," and "Masaniello." He resigned his position precipitately upon the advent of Duprez. The younger singer afflicted the elder with a kind of panic. The news that Duprez was among the audience was sufficient to paralyse his powers, to extinguish his voice. He left France for Italy. His success was unquestionable, but he had lost confidence in himself; a deep dejection settled upon him, his apprehension of failure approached delirium. At last he persuaded himself that the applause he won from a Neapolitan audience was purely ironical, was but scoffing ill-disguised. At 5 in the morning, on the 8th of March, 1839, he flung himself from the window of an upper floor, and was picked up in the street quite dead. Poor Nourrit! he was a man of genius in his way; but for him there would have been no grand duet in the fourth act of "Les Huguenots," no cavatina for Eleazar in "La Juive," and to his inventiveness is to be ascribed the ballet of "La Sylphide," which Taglioni made so famous.—All the Year Round.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

On the Safe Side.

A young lady of this city, who is partially deaf, is in the habit of answering yes to everything when a gentleman is talking to her, for fear he might propose to her and she not hear it.

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco, give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—The public of San Francisco are thoroughly enjoying the season of opera by the Fabbri Troupe, and evince their satisfaction by crowding the house. "Don Giovanni" was performed last night in a very pleasing manner. Signor Fulvio Rigo on this occasion made his first appearance at this theatre, filling the role of Leporello with much skill, and Signora Bianchi made her re-appearance in that of Donna Elvira. Jacob Muller as the gay Don Giovanni gained much applause both for his singing and acting. Signora Inez Fabbri was of course excellent as Donna Anna, and Miss Anna Elzer acted the role of Zerlina charmingly. Sig. Pietro Baccei as Don Ottavio was all that could be desired, and the applause which rewarded his efforts was enthusiastic. Mons. Roncovieri was quite at home in his old role of the Commander, and M. Charles filled that of Masetto with his accustomed ability. This afternoon John McCullough will appear as Lucius Junius in the drama of "Brutus, or the Fall of Tarquin." To-night will be the last but one of the opera season, when "Don Giovanni" will be presented with the same cast with which it was given last night. "Lucia di Lammermoor" and the last act of "Belisarius" will be presented for the benefit of Miss Anne Elzer.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Large and delighted audiences have been the rule during the present week at this beautiful little theatre. Billy Emerson has appeared nightly in some of his best acts, including the ever-popular song and dance "Josephus Orange Blossom." Miss Jennie Worrell and Miss Lillie Hall are immense favorites with the patrons of the Alhambra Theatre; their bright sayings, neat and artistic dancing, and "canning" little tricks causing much applause and laughter. The excellent bill which has proved so satisfactory during the week, will be presented at the matinee to-day and again this evening. There is a general desire to see Miss Jennie Worrall and Miss Lillie Hall in burlesque, and the management, to gratify this wish of the public, are making preparations for the production of a Christmas piece.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—At the matinee performance to-day Miss Minnie Wells, the Lion Enchantress, will appear in the "Lion of Nubia," introducing her specialties of songs, dances and banjo solos. The same piece will be played this evening, and to-morrow night Miss Minnie Wells will make her last appearance. On Monday evening the play of "Guy Mannering," dramatized from Sir Walter Scott's novel, will be produced with the original musical effects and appointments, and Harry Etynge and Hudson Liston, who have arrived from the East under engagement to the management of the Metropolitan Theatre, will appear in the cast.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—The Recheda Family of minstrels; Ed. Montague on the Silver Spears; Charles Verner in "Good Evening;" Johnny Tuers and Matt Kelly in "Camille;" Mme. Therese and Mons. Schmidt in "Faust and Marguerite;" Cogill and Cooper in song and dance; J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong in "Dutch Courtship," and the whole company in the play of "The Female Swimmers," will provide fun enough for all who visit the Bella Union to-night. On Tuesday, Christmas Eve, the spectacular burlesque of "A-lad-in-the-Lamp" will be produced with new scenery, machinery, etc.

THE ATHENEUM.—The wide-awake management of this popular place of amusement keep the interest of the public alive by unceasing novelty. Mortimer, Robinson, Dixon, and Fox form a strong team of comedians. Senorita Maria Reolia, Miss Livingstone, Miss La Forrest, Miss May Leroy and many others appear nightly in songs, dances and acts, and the programme is excellently well arranged. On Monday evening the management announce the first appearance of Charles Florence, who will present his guitar solo specialties.

"THE YELLOW HAT" AT THE METROPOLITAN.—This management have in active preparation a gorgeous spectacle for the Christmas and New Year's Holidays. It is entitled "The Yellow Hat." This piece, which was one of the great Paris successes, was brought from that city by George Hinckley, and has been adapted for the Metropolitan stage by John Woodard. Weeks of labor have been expended on preparations for its production. Gorgeous scenery has been painted by Burbury and assistants, and eighty suits of silver armor and other magnificent costumes have been imported from Europe. Apart from its fine scenery and spectacular effects, this play abounds in startling scenes, and many novelties will be introduced. The principal members of the San Francisco Olympic Club will appear during the course of the play and introduce a new pantomimic scene entitled "Humpty Dumpty's Dream." The first representation is announced for Friday evening, December 27th.

THE CITY GARDENS—BALLOON ASCENSION.—There will be great doings at these beautiful gardens on Sunday. There will be a grand ascension in a new balloon by A. Buislay, accompanied by a daring American lady who will scatter flowers on the crowd beneath as she sails towards heaven. In addition to this there will be a circus performance and a new pantomime written expressly for this occasion by E. Buislay. On Christmas night there will be a grand ball.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS—The usual entertainment will be given at these beautiful grounds to-morrow afternoon. Prof. Samwells and his educated animals, glass blowing, M'lle Sanyeah, etc., within the Pavilion, and a thousand interesting attractions outside of it.

THE HORTICULTURAL HALL—SKATING.—This hall, corner of Stockton and Post streets, is open for skating Tuesday afternoon and evening Thursday afternoon and evening, and Saturday afternoon and evening.

BOUQUET FROM THE AMERICAN STAGE.—A very interesting and beautifully arranged collection of theatrical portraits is on view at the Green Room, opposite the California Theatre. The photographs are by Bradley and Rulofson, the groupings, mounting and ornamental border work is by Walter Wallace. The collection comprises forty of the leading actors and actresses of the day.

MISSES M'CARTY'S BAL-MASQUE.—The Masquerade Ball on Thursday night at Dashaway Hall was a very brilliant affair, there being over 200 maskers on the floor. The costumes were elegant and the ball was a success. Miss Lottie McCarty's cornet solo was warmly applauded.

THE CHRISTMAS SPECTACLE AT THE CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—In these days, when the public mind is excited on the subject of diamond mines, the choice of the story of Aladdin and his wonderful diamond cave as the subject of a Christmas piece, shows good judgment on the part of the management of the California Theatre. The spectacle of "Aladdin; or, the Wonderful Lamp," which is to be produced on Christmas night, will realize in the splendor, variety and brilliancy of its gems, the wildest dreams of Dodge, Lent, Roberts, Harpending and other slaves of the lamp. Porter has for months past been at work on the scenery; John Torrence has invented startling mechanical effects, and the costumes are to be the most gorgeous ever seen on the California stage. The piece which is to have all this magnificent mounting, is not the burlesque of "Aladdin," but the original drama. A feature of the performance will be a grand ballet with the famous dancers, Miss Betty Rigl and Miss Emma Rigl as leaders.

HARRY ETYNGE.—This gentleman, who is to make his first appearance at the Metropolitan Theatre on Monday evening, is one of the veteran actors and managers of the United States. He will be remembered as having, in connection with Mr. Willard, built the Metropolitan Theatre of New York, afterwards known as the Winter Garden. Mr. Etynge has lately been supporting Miss Charlotte Cushman in her tour through the Eastern States. He will, from his long experience of the stage, be a valuable acquisition to the Metropolitan Theatre, where he is engaged to fill leading roles.

BENEFIT.—On Tuesday evening a benefit, arranged by a number of members of the press for the assistance of the family of the late Col. Albert S. Evans, will take place at the California Theatre, which Mr. McCullough has generously offered for the purpose. So many are interesting themselves in the good work that the benefit cannot fail to be a success. The bill will be announced on Monday.

TALENT FOR THE METROPOLITAN.—The company at this house is to be entirely reorganized; the engagement of Messrs. Etynge and Liston will be followed by others with whom negotiations are now pending.

HUDSON LISTON.—Mr. Hudson Liston, who is engaged at the Metropolitan Theatre to fill first old man parts, has but lately arrived from London, and during his short engagements in the Eastern States, has won high praise from both press and public.

AGATHA STATES.—Madame Agatha States and Signor Orlandini will arrive here on the next steamer from Honolulu. On their arrival we may hope for a little more opera.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

SACRAMENTO.—Prof. C. B. Plummer gave an entertainment of readings and character impersonations at the Congregational Church on Tuesday evening.

GRASS VALLEY.—Hamilton Hall was opened on Monday by the Wilton Troupe, who appeared in "Medea." On Thursday Mrs. Wilton took a benefit. "Still Waters Run Deep," with Mrs. Wilton and Frank Wilton in the leading parts and "Bad Dickey," in which Jake Wallace and others appeared constituted the evening's entertainment.

VIRGINIA CITY, NEV.—Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller delivered her lecture on "Joaquin Miller, the Poet and the Man," at Piper's Opera House on Tuesday evening to a good audience.

OAKLAND.—The Transcript says:

> The famous violincello player, A. Hartdegen, intends giving shortly a concert in Oakland, aided by Jacob Muller, Lucchesi, the young Italian pianist, and others.

CARSON CITY.—Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller lectured on Thursday evening on Joaquin Miller. She had a good house.

PETALUMA.—Hon. Wm. O. Clark delivered a lecture at the theatre on Thursday evening, entitled "Around the World and What he Saw on the Way."

YREKA.—Vivian arrived from Oregon on the 8th and gave three entertainments there. M'lle. Marie Gengain, danseuse and vocalist; Miss Marie Zoal, vocalist; and Messrs. Kay and Scott, instrumentalists, make up the troupe.

FORT JONES.—Vivian gave an entertainment here on Thursday evening of this week.

BOISE CITY.—Carl Rosco, magician, was giving entertainments here up to the 5th.

PORTLAND.—At the Oro Fino Theatre, under the management of G. B. Waldron, W. C. Crosbie took a benefit on the 13th. Miss Kate Denin is underlined to appear shortly. Mrs. Charles Coriell's Vaudeville Troupe opened at Masonic Hall on the 10th and did but a poor business. On Saturday afternoon and evening they appeared at the Oro Fino Theatre and drew good houses. Mrs. Charles Coriell, Miss May Leslie, and George Foster are well spoken of by the Portland press.

SALT LAKE.—J. L. Lindsay, who played a six nights' engagement at the theatre, appearing in "The Duke's Motto," "Macbeth," and "The Bells," took his benefit on the 13th, when "The Three Guardsmen" was presented. On the following night he appeared in "Othello." Carl Bosco, the magician, who has been for some time past in Oregon, gave performances at this theatre on the 16th and 17th. Mrs. Chanfrau was to commence an engagement on the 19th, and the Salt Lake Footlights was republishing notices of her performances in San Francisco taken from FIGARO, the only dramatic authority on the Pacific Coast.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York the opera season at the Academy of Music came to a close on the 14th. On the 11th Nicolai's opera of "The Merry Wives of Windsor" was performed in German, Mme. Lucca sustaining the part of Mrs. Ford, Miss Henne that of Mrs. Page, with Herr Hermanns as Falstaff......At the Olympic Theatre, M'lle Aimee and her troupe of opera bouffe artistes, commenced a new season on the 11th, with "La Belle Helene." During the season two new operas never before presented in this country, viz: "Les Cent Vierges" (The Hundred Virgins), and Offenbach's "La Princesse De Trebizonde," will be submitted for the first time to the judgment of an American audience......At Wallack's Theatre, "Our American Cousin" was withdrawn on the 21st to make room for "Brother Sam."......At Booth's Theatre, Miss Neilson closed her engagement on the 14th, appearing the last week in "The Lady of Lyons." On the 16th John Brougham's new historical play, founded on the story of Joan of Arc, was to be produced for the first time, to enable Miss Helen Temple to make her first appearance in New York as Joan of Arc......At Niblo's Garden "Leo and Lotos" was running to good houses......At the Grand Opera House, "Round the Clock" was the attraction. The New York Dispatch says:

> The most effective bit of acting in the piece, and we may justly say that has been witnessed in a metropolitan theatre in many seasons, is the Rascal Son of Mrs. Yeamans. In its fidelity to nature it is positively repulsive, and from whatever source Mrs. Yeamans obtained her study of the character, the realization of it on the stage gives undeniable proof of the possession of great dramatic genius. We congratulate the worthy lady on the hit she has made, and fairly award her the acting honors of "Round the Clock."

Mrs. Yeamans, it will be remembered, came to this country from Australia, and played under engagement to Charles Wheatleigh at the Eureka and Metropolitan Theatres in this city......At the Theatre Comique, "Africa, or Livingstone and Stanley," has made a success. The Atlas says:

> It is a work of no little merit—graphic in its incidents, sensational in its situations, artistic in its climaxes, and thoroughly satisfactory in the denouement. Mr. Neil Werner, an actor of the first order, is the chief performer in the play. He represents Stanley—the only character of purely Caucasian type among the dramatis personæ. It is needless to say that Mr. Warner's efforts in this role are forceful and effective. Some twenty other characters—of the Ethiopic sort—are sustained by the regular company.

......The Dispatch, speaking of Bryant's Minstrels, says: "J. W. McAndrews, who has lately been delighting the San Franciscoans, made his first appearance this season with Bryant's Minstrels on Monday evening, in his old character of 'The Watermelon Man.' His reception was extremely cordial, and his efforts to amuse were fully appreciated." Harry Norman is the tenor of this troupe......At Tony Pastor's Opera House, Delehanty and Hengler were the bright particular stars......At the Union Square Theatre, Brougham's "Atherley Court" is to be produced next Tuesday......At the Fifth Avenue Theatre, Mrs. C. D. Abbott made her debut in "The Baroness" on the 11th. This is a new adaptation from the French by De Walden......At the Bowery, Miss Kate Fisher in "Haroe the Hunter" was to be the next attraction. This is a gorgeous horse place......At Wood's Museum a new extravaganza entitled "Babes in the Wood" was produced on the 16th. Sheridan and Mack and Delehanty and Hengler were engaged for it......Fechter's Theatre in Fourteenth street is not at all like the old Theatre Francaise, having been completely rebuilt. The entrance is the most elegant of any place of amusement in the city, and from the sidewalk to the orchestra circle it is but a step. The galleries are very near to the stage. When completed, the theatre will be as unique and charming as the most exacting in theatrical architecture could desire......Charley White has withdrawn his name from the management of the Athenaeum, No. 585 Broadway, and has taken legal steps against parties concerned for a non-fulfilment of contract. ....Barnum's great show draws thousands daily.

Mr. Wheeler, in the Arcadian, speaks as follows of Miss Neilson's performance of Rosalind in "As You Like It":

> And Miss Neilson, let me hasten to say, plays Rosalind with a vernal gush that is sweeter and balmier than the spring wind from a bank of violets. It actually makes everybody gush that sees it—witness me. If there is any occult power that can turn an audience of American buffaloes back to veal again, it resides in Shakespeare, when he breathes through such an instrument as Neilson. Her Rosalind is, in my mind, a better performance than her Juliet. It requires less effort, especially declamatory effort. It is the truly pastoral amative; and an actress with Miss Neilson's talents and sensibilities has only to braid the tenderness and sportiveness in in her own disposition to make it new and delightful.

Mr. Lawrence Barrett commences a three weeks engagement at the Varieties, New Orleans, on the 30th.

Charlotte Cushman commences an engagement at the Varieties, New Orleans, January 30th, for two weeks.

J. T. Raymond made a hit at the Varieties Theatre, New Orleans, in "Only a Jew." One of the papers says:

> The domestic drama of "Only a Jew" was presented to a good house, and the appreciation with which it was received renders it sure of a successful run. The plot is a good one and affords much room for the display of individual excellence in all the roles. Uncle Nathan, the principal character, is a kind-hearted old Jew, and Mr. Raymond makes it one of the most touching stage personations that has been seen in New Orleans for some time. His make-up is capital and the conception very correct.

Mr. Joseph Jefferson is visiting his cousin, Mr. William Warren. His eyesight is much improved, and he is in the enjoyment of better health. He will soon leave for Louisiana, where he intends to spend the winter, as the climate is peculiarly suited to his constitution. By May of next year he expects to go upon the stage again.

Mr. Toole, the English comedian, is once more meditating a trip to this country. We hope he will decide to come, and in case he does we are sure he will find a hearty welcome.

> Stanley, who has been feted without limit ever since his arrival from Europe, lectured at Steinway Hall, New York, on the 7th, before an audience who sat spell-bound under his glowing and vivid description of the country where he found Livingstone. The lion of the day is a rather short, thick-set man, with a bronzed countenance, and is quite unexpectedly modest and unassuming. The stage was decorated with various weapons and utensils, which had been in use "where Afric's sunny fountains roll down their golden sands." Little Kalulu, his negro servant, also diversified the scene by his small presence, and John Livingstone, a brother of the explorer, kept the matter all in the family by occupying a seat on the platform. The identical Stars and Stripes (very much worn) which Stanley presented to the gaze of Dr. Livingstone, when he found him, waved from one corner of the platform.

So says an Eastern paper; but subsequent reports prove that Stanley is not destined to make a hit in the lecture field. His second lecture was attended by a "select" audience. The announcement that he was to appear in African costume might have scared some people and kept them away. It is very warm in Africa, and the costume is consequently "light."

Mr. McConigle, the business manager of Booth's Theatre (one of the most agreeable gentlemen connected with the theatrical profession), receives the largest salary paid to any one in his position in New York, namely, $6,000 a year.

The New York Mercury romances as follows about Miss Lottie Romaine:

> Lottie Romaine, one of the "Leo and Lotos" ballet at Niblo's, is learning the piscatorial biz from Chas. Weightman, the man-fish. She practices in a tepid swimming bath in town, and is only just getting well accustomed to the water. She is green yet. She tried to eat under the water the other day, and was nearly choked. She made a furious splutter, and rushed for the landing.

In Philadelphia, the Italian Opera Troupe, with Lucca and Kellogg, commenced a two week's season on the 13th. At the Walnut Street Theatre, "Arrah-na-Pogue" with the Boucicaults was running. At the Arch, Ada Grey was playing "Who's Wife?" At the Chestnut, Little Nell appeared on the 9th. Pantomimes are to be produced at the Wood's Museum, the Arch and New American. The National Dog Show opened Dec. 2, for one week, attracting thousands. Dogs of every breed, description, etc., for which prizes were awarded.

James Cooke, the jester, is engaged as equestrian director at Barnum's.

Peter Conklin is to open a circus for Christmas week at National Hall, Market street, above Twelfth, Philadelphia. He will use O'Brien's horses, which are wintering in that city.

Here is what the New York correspondent of the Boston Herald says of Daly's "Round the Clock":

> The plot is merely a string, tying together a number of very fine spectacles, in which the audience is supposed to be introduced to the lower haunts of city life. Harry Hill is highly indignant at the representation of his notorious Houston street saloon. He said he would not care if they said they were caricaturing it, but to pretend to show a fac simile of it is too much for his small pride. "I would sue them for libel," said he the other day, "only that would suit them too well."

A couple of Yale seniors, filled with a longing to "get behind the scenes," bribed one of the subordinates the other night to let them go on the stage as apes in "Le Roi Carotte," at the Grand Opera House, New York. This was all very fine, but a sharp fight with some imitation monkeys was next on the programme, and the monkeys leaped on them and overcame them so completely that they fled out of the house wounded and half naked. Their thirst for theatrical life is not as great as it was.

Robert Craig, the comedian, who a short time ago played an engagement at the Metropolitan Theatre in this city, died in St. Louis on the 9th of congestion of the lungs. Mr. Craig was under engagement to appear at the Boston Museum on the 30th of this month.

Some of the Eastern papers have been publishing a statement to the effect that Lotta died in the South of France. Lotta is as much alive as ever she was, and is, as will be seen by a paragraph in another column enjoying herself near Manchester, England, the birthplace of her father.

Brick Pomeroy's Opera House at La Crosse is advertised for sale under an execution to secure $25,000 alimony to his divorced wife.

The Victorellis are at Trimble's Opera House, St. Louis. Billy Carter, the banjoist, is the latest engagement here.

Kelly and Leon will start out shortly with a minstrel troupe.

SQUARZA'S

Branch Punch Saloon,

317 Kearny street.

Have you beheld it? If not, you've a treat
At SQUARZA'S PUNCH SALOON, in Kearny street
There BONA, disciple of GREAT SQUARZA,
Dispenses famed Magic Punches; rather
The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES' PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist
Once what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL,"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find
To aid the Man—invigorate the mind!
Not this alone—a Welcome you will meet
At BONA'S—(SQUARZA'S)—317 KEARNY STREET.

The Bivalve.

This famous oyster house having been refitted and improved, is now under the management of H. E. Besthorn, assisted by "Henry," so long known in the oyster business. The best wines, liquors and cigars are kept. The best cooks and waiters in the State are employed. The neatly furnished rooms up-stairs for families and supper parties have long been a feature of THE BIVALVE, No. 640 Market street, near Kearny. P

Holiday Punches.

There are no Punches for the Holiday tables that compare with Squarza's. Squarza's Punches are famous for the high art shown in their manufacture, the happy combination of wholesome tonics, and their delicious flavor. Bous, the disciple of the great Squarza, has prepared forty different kind of punches and cordials for the Holiday tables. For sale at the new branch, 317 Kearny street, or at the Old Headquarters, 120 Leidesdorff street. N

Peace and prosperity are the key notes of this document. Cheapness and durability are the characteristics of H. Luchsinger's furniture. All should visit his emporium, 731 Market street, and ascertain how cheaply a house can be furnished. D

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

FOREIGN DRAMATIC NEWS.

"The Black Crook" is to be the title of the Christmas piece at the Alhambra, London. As a spectacle it is expected to eclipse even "Babel and Bijou;" designs for six hundred different dresses are now preparing....The first scene of a new burlesque has been read at the Vaudeville by Mr. Reece. It is called "Romulus and Remus; or, the two Romans"......The Covent Garden pantomime will be on the subject of "Jack, the Giant-Killer;" Mr. G. L. Fox, the greatest American clown, will appear in it......Sheridan's "School for Scandal" has just completed a run of one hundred nights at the Vaudeville.

A French critic, speaking of the condition of the Paris stage, says: "The Parisian stage has become simply an illustrated edition of the journals of fashion. People go there to study new eccentricities and to seek inspiration for the next ball."

Mr. John S. Clarke, the comedian, and now manager of the Charing Cross Theatre, London, and Mr. H. L. Bateman, manager of the Lyceum, both lose heavily, it is said, by the failure of the house of Bowles Brothers and Company. Mr. Bateman is soon to bring Mr. Henry Irving to this country to star in "The Bells" and "Charles the First."

The Missouri Republican says that it has been remarked by those who watch the course of the stars, that Lotta has not been around this year and she is missed. Mr. De Bar has received a letter from her dated November 12th, from the vicinity of Manchester, England, where she is now residing. The letter states that she has just returned from a tour through Italy, Switzerland and Germany, well pleased with her experience in foreign lands. She is residing with her parents, pursuing her studies regularly, and drives every day, rain or shine, in a little pony phaeton. She reports herself still an unmarried woman, all rumors to the contrary notwithstanding.

It may not be generally known by the public that Mario is only the stage name of the famous tenor. His real name is Giuseppe, Marquis of Candia. The vicissitudes of his life brought him to Paris, and his exquisite voice soon attracted great attention. He first appeared under the name of Mario at the Grand Opera House in Paris in 1838.

Capoul is to appear at the Italiens, Paris, in "Il Barbiere" and "Rigoletto," after the run of "La Luna Ambula" has ceased.

The Baritone Bartolina, now concertizing in the West, was known by the name of Frank Bartlet, when residing in Philadelphia. A truce to this buffoonery.

In seems that at least one American girl has failed in convincing our European friends that she could sing successfully in Italian opera. Stella Bonheur is the unfortunate individual.

Percy Roselle, the boy actor, who appeared at Wood's Museum last Winter, will appear as the hero of a new pantomime by P. Merchant, entitled "Hop o' My Thumb," at the Pavilion Theatre, London.

Miss Rosa Leclercq, sister of Miss Carlotta, has been engaged to play "Galatea" in a combination going through the provinces in Great Britain, under the management of Mr. Sefton.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

The Diamond Mines

Are fizz'e, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

A Great Discovery.

In all the preparations heretofore offered for restoring and preserving the hair to its original color, the injury attending their use has far more than offset the benefits derived. Mr. J. LIPMAN has happily produced a preparation wonderful in effect, while perfectly harmless. This is not a vile compound of sugar of lead and other poisonous minerals which produce paralysis and insanity, but a harmless preparation, free from sediment, and a few applications restores the hair to its original color. This is beyond question the cheapest and safest hair restorative ever offered. U

Alhambra.

Miss Jennie Worrell and Miss Lillie Hall, who are immense favorites at this house will appear this evening in new selections from their respective repertoires. After the first part by Billy Emerson and his sable band of vocalists and humorists, Miss Jennie Worrell will appear in a clog hornpipe, and she will afterward with Miss Lillie Hall, present new songs and dances. Billy Emerson will appear in some of his newest specialties and the performance will conclude with Bob Hart's sketch entitled "Nip and Tuck," in which he Charles Sutton, W. F. Baker, Benj. Clarke, Rockafeller and others will take part. There will be a matinee performance on Christmas Day. Friday next is set apart for the benefit of that most reverend, grave and potent signor, Bob Hart; he will have a bumper.

Metropolitan Theatre.

To-night, a dramatization of Walter Scott's novel of Guy Mannering will be presented with the original music and fine scenic effects. Harry Etynge will make his first appearance in California, in the character of Dandie Dinmont, in which he supported Miss Charlotte Cushman, Hudson Liston will make his first appearance as Dominie Sampson; Miss Blanche Clifton, who is reengaged at this house, will play Julia Mannering; Mrs. Charles Edmonds, Meg Merriles; Pierpont Thayer' Col. Mannering; and Charles Edmonds, Dirk Hatteraick. The rest of the cast appears on our first page. There will be a grand matinee on Christmas Day. The scenic spectacle of "The Yellow Hat" will be produced on Friday evening.

California Theatre.

To-night the season will close with a performance by the Fabbri Troupe for the benefit of Miss Anna Elzer, who is a great favorite and certainly will have a good house. The performance will consist of the opera of "Lucia di Lammermoor" and the second act of "Belisario." To-morrow night the benefit to the family of the late Col. A. S. Evans will take place. There will be a matinee on Christmas Day when "All that Glitters is not Gold" will be performed, and in the evening the grand spectacle of "Aladdin" will be produced.

Bella Union.

The Rosboda Family, Cogill and Cooper, Ed Montague, Mme. Therese and Mons. Schmidt and many others will appear to-night in an excellent bill which may be seen on our first page. To-morrow night the burlesque spectacle of "A-lad-in-the-lamp," which has been for some time past in preparation will be produced with new scenery by W. Bark, new music by H. Zimmer, and a strong cast.

The Athenæum.

A capital first part, amusing interlude and lively afterpiece will be given at this house to-night. Among many other attractions the management announce the first appearance of Charles Florence, the original Pat Malley, who will give his guitar solo specialties.

Pacific Hall.

The Fabbri Opera Combination will give a concert at this hall on Friday, Jan. 3d. The programme will include a Schubert recital in which Jacob Muller, Miss Annie Elzer and Signor Inez Fabbri will take part. The concert will be under the management of Charles Fritsch, who has so successfully conducted the business of the Fabbri Troupe since their arrival in this city.

Returned.

Mrs. Charles Coriell and company, consisting of May Leslie, Charles Coriell, Geo. Foster, H. Morton, and others, returned from Portland on the Ajax yesterday. The trip to Victoria and Portland was not a pecuniary success.

Perils of Intemperance.

Some few years ago a gentleman in England who had been dining "not wisely but too well," in the course of the evening drew a check for a large amount, and having signed it, poked it by means of a stick, into a box placed at the gate of a charitable institution to receive the donations of passers by. When he regained his sobriety the next morning he remembered with horror his liberality on the previous night and addressed a moving appeal to the managers of the institution in question to restore him the amount of the check, which he found had been cashed before he had time to dress himself and drink one bottle of soda water. As it was found that the unfortunate man had absolutely left himself penniless, the managers, it is believed, kindly allowed him a small sum of money to carry him on until the next quarter, but the shock was too much for him, and after a few days of intense agony he fell into a state of total abstinence, from which he never rallied.

The "Society" Girl.

The girl to be found in "society" circles is not the girl you will desire to take home and make a wife of. Too frequently she is told at her birth that she must be "smart"—she knows that means "pert," and becomes so. At ten she is a woman wiser and worse than her grandmother at twenty. She has beaux and furbelows, followers, frenzies, fun, folly, frolics, feints, falsity, fanfaronade, fantastics, and, in fact, all the f's but fat.

As soon as she is able to walk the streets, the leather is whittled sharp at the toes, a spike is stuck at the other end of her heel, a camel hump is secured at the base of her spinal column, her heart, lungs, and liver are tied up in corsets, flesh barricades of bone and steel, and she is sent out to the world. She goes to school, eats slate pencils; and absorbs arsenic, poisoning her stomach, and stunning her senses. The corsets squeeze the blood to her head. She flirts with boys and men before nature has informed her that there are sexes. During school hours she may be in her seat or out of it; the teacher does not always know. Out of school hours she goes where she pleases, sees whom she pleases, does what she or someone else pleases, says what she pleases.

Frequently, the Lord only knows how frequently, so called fashionable mothers seem perfectly willing that their daughters should go to the bottomless pit, by the license they give them to go where they please. If the mothers of the scores of girls now before the courts of the country as plaintiffs or defendant in criminal cases had only known where their daughters were when they were with their betrayers, the criminal cases would probably have never appeared on the dockets. The smartness of this girl is her Satan. If she have a pretty face, she proceeds to daub her cheeks, tint her lips, paint her nails, shade her eye-brows, and gasp that she might draw her corsets tighter.

Then she begins to learn the trade of the adventuress. She becomes a fraud internally and externally. She looks with lofty contempt at the honest working girls who earn their bread in honesty and virtue; but she begins to draw money from banks where she has no deposits. In time the girl goes Europe, and becomes the morganatic wife of Victor Emanuel as did ———, or of a Bavarian baron, as does ———. That's where the "smartness" of modern society tends to lead its votaries.

N. P. Banks.

Years ago, it is said, General Banks made his debut on the stage of the National Theatre in Boston as Claude Melnotte, in the "Lady of Lyons." After the play he asked a veteran actor what he thought as to whether he should stick to the stage or leave it. The actor advised the young man to stop and go into politics. The advice was heeded, and the actor of a single night became Gov. of Massachusetts, Speaker of the National House of Representatives, Military Governor of New Orleans, General in the Army, and occupied several other prominent and honorable positions. General Banks came as near as this to joining the ranks of the player men and women.

An Absurd Sensation.

Really we must set the dogs on the Chronicle. That paper is becoming altogether too reckless. No class, no race, no species, is safe from its libellous attack. On Saturday it tried to get up a hydrophobia sensation, and thus compass the death of a poor little terrier dog. December being proverbially a time of year when hydrophobia is prevalent, the Chronicle suggests its presence in this city. There never was a case of hydrophobia in California, and there have been very few true cases in any part of the world. Surely the Poundmaster is a great enough trial for the dogs of San Francisco without trying to bring them under suspicion of hydrophobia.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. DEFEAT.

He took her hand, and looked at her,
No sound did that deep stillness stir;
Even the weary, wandering rain
Had ceased to beat upon the pane;
Only about the perfect mouth
A sigh more faint than the faint south
Hovered a moment's space, and then
Dived into nothingness again.

The words he spoke were brief and slow—
What could he say, she did not know;
What pulse of that impetuous soul
But owned her calm, serene control?
No need for him to test her heart
With cunning fence of verbal art;
Only to ask and wait her will,
And, winning, losing, love her still.

Perhaps she wavered—ay, perhaps
The shadow of the cloud that wraps
The future from our questioning gaze
Let in some glimpse of after-days,
Some hint of all she might possess
In that true spirit's tenderness,
If but her weaker life might move
Unto the magic of his love.

Perhaps! who knows? He only knew
The large gray eyes were dim with dew;
Saw only on the mouth's sweet bloom
The shadow of reluctant doom;
Felt only one sad, gentle word—
And then through that deep stillness heard
Once more the weary, wandering rain
Beat dull against the window-pane.

Slightly Mixed.

There is a man in Doylestown, ten years of age, who ate eighty breakfasts a few days ago, and chopped two cords of wood before walking a mile; or else he was two years old and chopped ten breakfasts and ate a cord of wood before walking eighty miles; or he was eighty years old and chopped ten miles before walking into a cord of wood at breakfast; or he was eighty years old and walked ten miles and chopped two cords of wood before breakfast. It was somehow that way we knew—for we saw it in some of the papers; and, as it is of vital importance as a piece of intelligence, we determined to give it. It will, perhaps, be as valuable in any one of the shapes in which we remember it as in the others.

Holding Twins.

That young man who was asked the other day by a woman in a Pennsylvania Railroad train to hold her twins for a moment, while she got out to obtain refreshment, was subsequently much embarrassed. Because, as the fond mother did not return, but rather took the next train back to the city, he was obliged to perform the duty of holding those two babies, one upon each knee, all the way out to Pittsburg, and it became somewhat monotonous before he reached that city. All he could do was to sit there and think, and think, and blush, while the twins emitted the most unearthly yells and inquired in vain for sustenance. The passengers stared, and seemed to regard the unfortunate youth as an unnatural father. The manner in which he soused those infants into an orphan asylum as soon as he got to Pittsburg indicated that he was anxious to get rid of them. And so he was.

The Diamond Mines

Are a fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

A Printer's Monument to Greeley.

The Cincinnati Evening Star says:

"We see it announced that there is to be a Printers' Monument erected to Horace Greeley. It may be that printers could rear a monument to Mr. Greeley. It would be a proper and graceful thing to do. But we have not much faith in monument building by the people of the United States. They are fierce enough to do such things at the moment of the event. But the animus subsides with the stimulus. We do not believe the Printer's Monument will rise more than three feet before work would be suspended for want of funds, and funds would be suspended for want of means.

We agree with the Star that it is not very probable that the Printer's Monument will be completed even if it be commenced. However, if the printer's determine to raise a monument to Greeley let it be something practicable. The base might be formed of imposing stones from bankrupt newspaper offices, and a statue of Greeley cast in the metal which was once the type on which papers now dead were printed might surmount it. There is enough pied type in the various offices in the United States to make a statue of Greeley as huge as the Colossus of Rhodes.

Vick's Floral Guide.

One of the most attractive periodicals published in the United States is Vick's Floral Guide. The Guide for 1873 is just issued. It is now published quarterly; the subscription price for the whole year is 25 cents. The January number contains plans for making rural homes, designs for dining table decorations, window gardens, etc., and contains a mass of information invaluable to the lover of flowers. It contains 500 engravings, and a superb colored plate, with chromo cover. Jas. Vick, publisher, Rochester, N. Y. Many people in California are turning their attention to surrounding their homes with beautiful gardens. Such will find the Floral Guide of great service.

New Scientific Work.

Professor Newcomb, B. F. S. I. N. K. B. S. A., etc., etc., etc., is engaged at present on a scientific work which will shortly be published in six volumes. Any person having a mastodon or a portion of a mastodon would do the professor a kindness by sending it round to the Bohemian Club. Professor Newcomb has used up a whole herd of mastodons in his researches and requires a few more. The Professor is suffering in his toes which it will be remembered were severely frost bitten while he was with the Pavy expedition to discover the North Pole, which he left in consequence of his theory differing from that of M. Pavy.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

500 Pairs of Socks,

The Entente Cordiale.

There was a time when the Bulletin and Alta were known as the Bummer and Lazarus of the San Francisco Press, such was their affection one for the other. If the Bulletin growled at anything the Alta would take up the note, and both would bark in chorus. There was an understanding between these two that any new paper which was started was to be snuffed out or snubbed down. Now this is all changed, Mr. Pickering, who owns an interest in the Bulletin, is also proprietor of a morning paper—the Call—and the friendship between the Bulletin and the Alta is a thing of the past. Worse than this, there now appears to be a combination of papers against the Bulletin and Call. There is an entente cordiale between the Alta and the Chronicle; they copy one another's dispatches concerning the Modoc war with due credit, and say nice things about one another. The little Post frisks round these two strange friends, wagging its tail with delight and uttering gleeful barks. Alta-Chronicle-Post against Bulletin-Call. This is the present aspect of journalism in San Francisco. The other papers—the Examiner and Republican—agree with the Alta and Chronicle in this one thing: they cordially hate the Call-Bulletin and Mr. Pickering. The war cry of the San Francisco papers at present is Delenda est Pickering. FIGARO looks on, an impartial but not uninterested spectator of the fight.

A Cool Request.

The following story is told of a recent meeting between Mr. Boucicault and a friend of his from Chicago. The latter called at the inn which shelters the dramatist, and sent up his card writing thereon "pressing business." The dramatist saw that card, and hastily rising from his position of repose inserted his figure into one of Poole's most tasteful draperies, and awaited the upcoming apparition. The embre stranger entered and grasping "both fives" of Mr. B., observed. "Mr. Boucicault, I have long been your admirer. I have seen you play here, in London, Dublin, Boston and Philadelphia. I hail from Chicago. I have called to tell this to your face, and to say that I should like to borrow ten dollars." The dramatic author, appreciating the neat style of the man of the West, extended the desired greenback, and the twain departed never, never to meet again.

"Our Christmas Story Book!"

We have received a copy of the above-named book, published by F. J. Murphy. It has the merit of being made up of original stories and poems by California writers William Bausman, W. H. Rhodes, Daniel O'Connell, Sands W. Forman, Stephen Massett, F. S. Sutherland and others. It is pleasant enough reading for the Holidays. and has a California flavoring which should make it popular.

Roast Hogs.

Some live pigs were recently found in a hollow tree in Kentucky without any apparent opening whereby they could have made an entrance. That beats the toads blasted out of solid rocks all "hollow."

An Epicurean Child.

Bobby was saying his prayers at his mother's knees: "Give us this day our daily bread," when he broke off, saying: "Mamma, I know why we pray to God every day for bread; it is so that we may have it fresh."

What Cheer Laundry

Employs no Chinamen, and should be patronized by everybody. •

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer.";
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

McDowell, Show Card Writer,

Ready made and made to order. Room 10,

The California Art Journal.

The first number of the monthly publication made its appearance on Saturday. It fulfils the promise of the prospectus, and even more. It is by far the handsomest publication ever issued in California. It is printed on tinted paper, and its typography is beautiful. Its contents are varied, comprising papers on various subjects by J. F. Bowman, Thomas Newcomb, B. P. Avery, R. O. Rogers and others; a pretty poetical vignette by Charles Warren Stoddard, and two pages of original music, "The Yosemite Waltz," by Prof. D. Speranza. It is the intention of the publishers, F. X. Van de Casteele, H. X. Van de Casteele and Alfred Chaigneau, to present with each number a chromo illustrating California scenery, produced by a new process known as chromo-typography. The picture for January represents a view on the Merced river. It is a very "popular" style of picture, but not very artistic; much bright coloring and some bad drawing. We are sure that the publishers will next month present something of a higher order than that mass of blues, greens and yellows, with an impossible broken-legged crane and two bovine deer in the foreground. As we have mentioned bad drawing, we will particularize: These deer never could, at the distance from the river at which they are standing, be fully reflected in its depths; the one farthest off could cast no reflection at all. The subscription price is five dollars per annum. We sincerely hope that this publication will meet with the encouragement it deserves, and gain a long list of subscribers from among that portion of San Francisco representing the taste and culture of the community.

And have with many medals been rewarded!

Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES' PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL,"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.

Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find
To aid the Men—invigorate the mind!

Dorr Redivivus.

Herbert C. Dorr used in former years to write, on an average, two "pomes" a week for the Alta California. Then he was a poetic nuisance. Of late years he has given up writing rhyme, and we thought he was cured. This is not the case however, for in last Sunday's Era we saw some verses entitled "The Beggar's Christmas Carol," with the once-familiar signature. This is the sort of thing:

I once was as rich and as prosperous as you,
And gave then as freely as now you may do,
But the chances of fortune no care may prevent,
And hearts must endure what the Lord may have sent.

The Christ in his manger was poor e'en as I,
His blanket the straw and his curtains the sky.
And the Star in the East, with its soft twinkling light,
Was the same that is shining upon us to-night.

We think our readers will agree with us, that it was better for Herbert C. Dorr to give up writing poetry. The above isn't of a high order of merit. Mr. Dorr's astronomical knowledge—or the beggar's—is as bad as his verse. The star of Bethlehem is not set down in astronomical charts. It has never been discovered, and is generally supposed not to have been a star at all, but a meteor, which having accomplished its purpose disappeared. Therefore, the "star in the East with its soft twinkling light," is not "the same that is shining upon us to-night." Well, Dorr, Christmas comes but once a year, and we can stand even your poetry at this festive season. Good bye, till next year.

LETTER FROM CHICAGO.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

CHICAGO, December 16th, 1872.

DEAR FIGARO—This week brings complete changes in all our places of amusement. The legitimate drama has again taken root here, and all the managers but one have indulged in the luxury. Shakspearean drama has again revived in this city, after two years of desuetude. The regular old comedy has also once more made its appearance, together with burlesque and horse drama (Mazeppa, etc). Chicago has a full quota of amusements. Our Garden City, bad as it seems, cannot support a variety theatre (except he the Globe, which is now run on the fifteen-cent basis), so variety or vaudeville business is termed played out here. "With all its other vices, this vice it has none," as a minister said last Sunday in the pulpit.

HOOLEY'S OPERA HOUSE.

At this house we have a new drama entitled "Partners for life," by J. H. Byron; its scenary and dresses are gorgeous, and the play is presented in excellent style.

AIKEN'S THEATRE.

"Hamlet" and "Othello" were the main attractions during the past week. The attendance was pretty fair. Mr Barrett's benefit took place on Friday evening, and while he was doing his best to please the public some scoundrel entered to his rooms in the Gordon House and helped himself to some $500 worth of jewelry belonging to himself and wife. The thief supposed Mr. Barrett would have a bumper benefit and he would not not miss a trifle. A bumper was there but the trifles were missed. After long preparation "Julius Cæsar" is announced for this evening with Mr. Barrett, and Frank Lawlor in the cast. "Rosedale" is underlined for the next attraction.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Lydia Thompson's Burlesque Troupe put in an appearance here last week, making quite a furore among the patrons of this house, in the burlesque of 'Blue Beard." Some new faces are in this troupe, among them are Carlotta Zerbine, Tilly Earl and Miss Camille Dubois, who commence this evening. "Robin Hood" is announced. A grand ovation tendered to her by the citizens, will take place Dec. 20th, on which occasion the play of "Lurline; or, Yet I am not Happy" will be produced. Joe Murphy in "Help" is to be the next attraction. Willie Edouin is creating quite a little stir in his lifelike representation of "John Chinaman" in "Blue Beard."

NIXON'S AMPHITHEATRE.

Leo Hudson and her horse, Black Bess, made their appearance last week in "Mazeppa" to a very good audience. Ned Buntline, Buffalo Bill, Texas Jack, make their appearance in Ned Buntline's drama of the "Scouts of the Prairie" to-night.

M'VICKER'S THEATRE.

Jane Coombs as Lady Gay Spanker in "London Assurance" has been the attraction during the past week. This week "Strange Mothers" is announced. Charlotte Cushman is the next star.

GLOBE.

Charley Howard, the best old niggeros the stage, and others are at this place. "Black Eyed Susan" is announced for Monday.

MYER'S OPERA HOUSE.

No new features appeared lately at this place. Milburn is still the trump card. Cotton and Arlington also carry the ends along jovially. WILL

An Awkward Mistake.

A somewhat ludicrous scene occurred in one of the large drygoods stores in Troy the other evening. Three ladies entered for the purpose of examining some ready-made suits. In the department devoted to this class of goods several "dummies" are need, upon which different styles are displayed. One of the ladies walked up to a "dummy", and commenced to feel of the dress which covered it. Supposing it was placed there as a sample, she handled it pretty thoroughly, and then called the attention of her companions to it. One of the others also felt of the stuff, and then remarked: "Why, what a homely stripe!" The third lady followed by saying: "It won't pay for making up." Whereupon the "dummy" turned her head and smiled, to the utter astonishment and mortification of the ladies in question, who discovered that instead of a "dummy" sample they had been criticising the dress of a real, live woman. Explanations and apologies followed in profusion.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer.".
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

McDowell, Show Card Writer,

Stage Thunder with a Vengeance.

Some fifty years ago one Lee, manager of the Edinburgh Theatre, with a view to improving the thunder of the stage, ventured upon a return to the Elizabethan system of representing a storm. His enterprise was attended with results both ludicrous and disastrous. He placed ledges here and there upon the back of his stage, and obtaining a parcel of nine-pound cannon balls, packed these in a wheelbarrow, which the carpenter was instructed to wheel to and fro over the ledges. The play was "Lear," and the jolting of the heavy barrow as it was trundled along the uneven path over the hollow stage, and the rumblings and reverberations thus produced, counterfeited most effectively the raging of the tempest in the third act. Unfortunately, however, while the king was braving, in front of the scene, the pitiless storm at the back, the carpenter missed his footing, tripped over one of the ledges and fell down, wheelbarrow, cannon-balls and all. The stage being on a declivity, the cannon-balls came rolling rapidly and noisily down toward the front, gathering force as they advanced, and overcoming the feeble resistance offered by the scene, struck it down, and made their way towards the footlights and the fiddlers, amid the wonder and amusement of the audience, and the amazement and alarm of the Lear of the night. As the nine-pounders advanced towards him, and rolled about in all directions, he was compelled to display an activity in avoiding them singularly inappropriate to the age and condition of the character he was personating. He was even said to resemble a dancer, achieving the terpsichorean feat known as the egg hornpipe. Presently, too, the musicians became alarmed for the safety of themselves and their instruments, and thought it advisable to scale the spike partition which divided them from the pit; for the cannon-balls were upon them, smashing the lamps and falling heavily into the orchestra. Meanwhile, exposed to the full gaze of the house, lay prone, beside the empty barrow, the carpenter, the innocent provoker of the storm he had been unable to allay or direct, not at all hurt, but exceedingly frightened and bewildered. After this unlucky experiment the manager abandoned his wheelbarrow and cannon-balls, and reverted to more received methods of producing stage thunder.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

In spite of the rain there was a good attendance at this theatre last night when Bulwer's comedy of "Money" was performed for the benefit of the family of the late Col. A. S. Evans. The performance was good throughout and gave general satisfaction. At the matinee to-day "All that Glitters is not Gold" will be played, and in the evening the spectacular play of "Aladdin" will be presented with gorgeous scenic effects, beautiful scenery, ballet, with the graceful and artistic Rigle, and varied performances by Mons. Cairon and his sons.

Alhambra.

During the holidays, people go in search of fun. The Alhambra is a veritable temple of Momus, Billy Emerson is his chief high priest. Miss Jennie Werrell and Miss Lillie Hall, Bob Hart, Chas. Sutton, and many others will appear at the matinee to-day and again this evening in a splendid bill. J. G. Russell's fine voice is once more heard in the first part. On Friday evening, Bob Hart, the stage manager, will take a benefit, and address the assembled multitude on the questions of the day.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The drama of "Guy Mannering" with the original music was performed again last night, will be played at the matinee to day and again this evening. In consequence of the immense amount of work necessary to be done the production of "The Yellow Hat" will probably be postponed until Monday.

Bella Union.

Being obliged to go to press early in consequence of Christmas day, we must defer extended account of the holiday piece at this house. It is certainly by far the finest spectacle ever presented on the Bella Union stage and should draw crowded houses.

The Athenaum.

First part, interlude and afterpiece are all bright and entertaining. Charles Florence is a valuable addition to the company and is bound to be a favorite; Frank Mortimer is very popular in new songs; Senorita Maria Reolis is attractive in her specialities, and the acts are performed in a very lively manner. A great bill has been prepared for Christmas night.

Pacific Hall.

The Fabbri Opera Combination will give a concert at this hall on Friday, Jan. 3d. The programme will include a Schubert recital in which Jacob Muller, Miss Annie Elser and Signor Inez Fabbri will take part. The concert will be under the management of Charles Fritsch, who has so successfully conducted the business of the Fabbri Troupe since their arrival in this city.

City Gardens.

The Christmas attractions at these Gardens will be a balloon ascension by A. Buislay, and an American lady, in the afternoon, and a Select Ball in the evening.

Horticultural Hall.

Skating assemblies Tuesday afternoon and evening, Wednesday morning and afternoon, Thursday afternoon and evening.

Woodward's Gardens.

Circus, the wonderful educated animals and skating every day. Free skating Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Grand performance Saturday afternoon and Sunday.

A New Play.

Mr. W. Baneman, author of "Early California," produced some months ago at the Metropolitan Theatre, has just finished a new play, the action of which is laid in Australia, entitled "Zeb and Zora."

Arrived.

Mme. Agatha States and Signor Orlandini, of operatic fame, arrived from Honolulu on the Nebraska yesterday.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Profitable Writing.

One of the ruses of the feuilletonists lies in the dialogue. A famous one of Dumas pere led to a revolution in the emoluments of romantic literature. Dumas was paid by the line, and one day he introduced in a romance the following passage:

My son.
Mother
Listen to me!
Go on!
Thou seest!
What?
This dagger!
It is steeped?
In blood.
Of whom?
Of thy father!
Ah!

After that Dumas was paid by the letter.

Self Appreciation.

A writer says "The really beautiful rarely love at all," The very beautiful that we have known have always loved one—herself or himself. And it was to love which they were faithful all their lives.

TO ACTRESSES.—For sale at a great sacrifice at 33 Geary street, six elegant silk dresses, unequaled for quality and style. e

OLD TIME AND I.

BY MARK LEMON.

Old Time and I the other night
Had a carouse together;
The wine was golden, warm and bright,—
Aye! just like summer weather.
Quoth I, "Here's Christmas comes again,
And I no farthing richer."
Time answered, "Ah, the old, old strain!—
I prithee pass the pitcher."

"Why measure all your good in gold?
No rope of sand is weaker;
'Tis hard to get, 'tis hard to hold,
Come, lad, fill up your beaker.
Hast thou not found true friends more true,
And loving ones more loving!"
I could but say, "A few, a few!
So keep the liquor moving."

"Hast thou not seen the crap'rene knave
Come down a precious thumper?
His cheats disclosed?" "I have, I have!"
"Well, surely that's a bumper?"
"Nay, hold a while, I've seen the just Find all their hopes grow dimmer."
"They will hope on, strive, and trust.
And conquer! That's a brimmer,

"'Tis not because to-day is dark,
No brighter days before 'em;
There's rest for every storm-tossed bark;"
"So be it. Pass the jorum."
"Yet I must own I should not mind
To be a a little richer."
"Labor and wait, and you may find——"
"Halloo! an empty pitcher."

JEMIMA JACKSON.

A gust of wind blew sharp and stout,
She was alone without a fellah,
I saw her tack and veer about,
And struggle with an umbrella.

It eddied 'round those nobby charms,
(I saw her feet, I'm only human,)
I rushed and caught her in my arms—
Delicious waif! that breezy woman.

"Oh! thank you, sir, for this relief,
I thought I was about to blow up,"
Said I, "that umbrella reef
Or Miss, or Madam, all will go up."

She did it, as I saw the name,
"Jemima Jackson," on the lining,
Date, eighteen thirty, which the same
Would make her forty and declining.

I read her age as in the book
The faded blue spoke of the by gone,
The handle with its curious crook,
Also the dogs head with an eye gone.

Jemima's face was in a veil,
Although her ways were frank and open;
As home I saw her through the gale
She chattered and was loosely spoken.

Said I, "what are you snuffing for?"
Said she, "there's something burning, stranger"
And then I thought of my cigar,
I dropped when snatching her from danger.

Then peering round in anxious thought,
I quickly saw the art of men were
Mockery, since the flames had caught
The news department of her panier.

I worked and shouted, out of breath,
And jerked away her loose adjustibles,
But wind and fire are strong as death
When on the rampage in combustibles.

So up Jemima Jackson went,
A prey to fashion and to folly;
No insurance—no not a cent—
Which makes it rather melancholy.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. B

The Last Days of Leap Year.

Girls, you have but a few days to do your courting in, and you should hurry up. You needn't, however, be quite so violent in your manifestations of a desire for married life as was the Indianapolis female. She had been receiving attentions from a fellow for some time. The other evening he visited her. After the usual salutations she said to him: "You know what year this is, Henry?" "Oh, yes," was the flippant reply; "it's 1872." "That's so," was her further remark, "and it's also leap year." He smiled a sickly smile and murmured "Yes." "Well, I want to know when you are going to marry me?" was her startling question. "I—marry—why you don't mean it?" "Oh, yes I do. When's it going to be?" "I never intended anything of the kind," was his trembling response. She didn't say another word, but taking up a coal scuttle knocked him flat, and then sat on his head, and wouldn't let him up until the day for the wedding was appointed. We don't advise our females to imitate this lady but merely show them a way to deal with too bashful lovers.

The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

Long before the time set for the opening of the doors of the California Theatre last night, Bush street in its vicinity was filled with an immense crowd of people, who seemed to care nothing for the rain. At half past seven o'clock the placard, "standing room only," was exhibited at the box office, and hundreds of persons were unable to obtain admission. The standing capacity of the house was tried to its utmost, the audience appeared to be packed as tightly as herrings in a barrel, and there they stood from the time the curtain rose on the first act until it fell at the conclusion of the play, strongly attesting the attractiveness of the entertainment offered. The scenery of "Aladdin" is gorgeous beyond description. The Enchanted Cavern with its golden ferns, fruits of various colors, and beautiful fountains of water on which prismatic colors were flashed; a staircase of gold reaching to the flies, gave a magnificent effect to this scene, which was loudly applauded. Another very fine scene is the Feast of Lanterns The costumes of the various character attendants, soldiers, etc., were very magnificent, and for their arrangement and selection, Mr. Pauline deserves credit. Robert Eberle, stage manager; W. T. Porter, scenic artist, John Torrence, Stackhouse and assistants, and Thomas Gossman, property man, have all done their work to perfection, and the result is eminently satisfactory. Among the introduced features, were glees and choruses by some of our best vocalists, Vernon Lincoln, Joseph Maguire, Pascal Loomis, W. C. Campbell and others, under the direction of Stephen Leach, the gymnastic performances of Mons. Carron and three children, and chief among all, a grand ballet with M'lle Betty Rigl and M'lle Emily Rigl as leaders. The vocalists sang glees and choruses in beautiful style; Mons. Carron and his three children delighted and astonished the audience by the grace and daring of their performances, and the ballet was superb. Never was such a numerous and well-trained corps de ballet seen on the stage in San Francisco. The public of this city do not more than half appreciate the ballet, they have not been educated up to it; last night, though the corps de ballet executed their dances in a style which reflected the greatest credit on them, the audience reserved their applause for the principals, M'lles Betty and Emma Rigl, and were not at all too enthusiastic over these two famous danseuses, who set New York wild when they appeared in the "Black Crook." Miss Betty is an accomplished danseuse and has much variety of style, her sister, Miss Emily, is a beauty, dances with much spirit and abandon and must become a favorite with any audience. Having catalogued the attractions introduced in "Aladdin," as produced at the California Theatre, we come to the play itself. This is a drama (not a burlesque) founded on the story of "Aladdin and his wonderful lamp." Miss Maggie Moore played the title role in a charmingly vivacious manner and brought down the house in a Chinese song, sang "Sweet Spirit, Hear my Prayer" very pleasingly, and did some splendidly grotesque dancing. Miss Minnie Walton played the character of the beautiful Princess Badroulboudoir charmingly, looking it of course to perfection and gaining much applause for her song, "When I've Nothing else to Do," which she sang in a delightfully arch manner. W. A. Mestayer made a magnificent magician; and J. C. Williamson as Kasrac the dumb slave, did some excellent pantomime business, keeping the audience amused the whole time he was on the stage. Walter Leman, as the Emperor, was a grand, blustering, old tyrant, and made quite a character of Tonglnck. Mrs. C. R. Saunders, as Mustapha, made a jolly little Chinawoman, and her head-dress was stunning. The other characters were well filled, and the play went very smoothly. "Aladdin," with all its attractions of beautiful scenery, delightful music, grand ballet with the Rigl Sisters, performances by Mons. Caron and children, beautiful music arranged by Charles Schultze and admirably played by the orchestra, etc., etc., should draw crowded houses for many weeks to come.

Alhambra.

Miss Jennie Warrell and Miss Lillie Hall in conjunction with Billy Emerson and his great band of minstrels—Senator Bob Hart, Charles Sutton, J. G. Russell, D. T. Nesfield, and many others give a most delightful entertainment at this house nightly. The Christmas performances gave the greatest satisfaction to the large audiences present. The bill for to-night appears on our first page. Five lines of cars run within a stone's throw of the Alhambra Theatra, therefore the rain need keep no no one away. To-morrow night Bob Hart, who has, as stage manager and author of many amusing acts provided so much for the amusement of the public, will take a benefit and speak on matters of local interest.

Metropolitan Theatre.

The attractive play of "Guy Mannering," with Harry Edinge as Dandy Dinmont, and Frank Rea Miss Blanche Clifton, Miss Fancy Gibson, Miss Fanny Young, and others in Sir Henry Bishop's delighted glees and choruses, will be performed again to-night. "The Yellow Hat" will be produced on Monday night. Neither pains nor expense are being spared to make this one of the grandest spectacles ever produced in San Francisco.

Bella Union.

This theatre was the first in the field with its holiday play, producing the burlesque entitled "A lad-in-the-lamp" on Tuesday evening, and drawing an immense house in spite of the rain. The Bella Union's burlesque follows very closely in plot, action, and arrangement of scenes the original drama being played at the California Theatre. All should see the Bella Union version of "Aladdin."

The Atheneum.

The latest addition to this company is Hugh Robinson, Irish comedian, who will appear to-night in character songs and changes. Mortimer in his sketches, Miss Claude in songs, and a host of others in various specialties will appear to-night.

A Winter Circus Season.

Blew Out the Gas.

The fellows who continue to blow out the gas when going to bed have not all been killed. One of them went to bed in a hotel in Auburn last week. He calmly blew out the light and retired to bed. Some one in the neighborhood discovered that the gas was leaking, and bursting the door of the fool's room open, saved him from suffocation. In the morning he remarked to the clerk: "The gas must have leaked considerably last night." "Ah," said Gawky, "I thought so. Did it run over, and spoil the carpet anywhere?" And it is for such people as this that the public schools are supported. Newspapers are of no use to them, as they look upon them as new fangled follies.

A Model Man.

The man who slips on a piece of orange peel and falls gracefully, and gets up without using one cuss word, could live in the house with two mothers-in-law, three cats with kittens, and a young man who is struggling to master the accordeon, and never get angry the slightest bit. We have never met him, however, and don't think we shall in a hurry.

A Common Sight.

The tenderest feelings of our nature are stirred at seeing a man carrying an armful of toys to his darlings at home, and struggling to properly administer to the wants of a cold in the head.

Taking Precautions.

"Capital punishment was practically abolished by the late Iowa Legislature.' That's too often the case with Legislatures when a majority of the members feel that they deserve to be hanged.

A Hard Case.

Our h'English friend, 'Arry 'Olmes, thinks that "it is very 'ard that Uriah Rogers should be sent to the h'Insane h'Asylom, 'cause h'even h'if 'e h'is h'insane 'e h'is certainly "'armless."

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city — English breakfast tea — Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the 'Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

The Last Days of Leap Year.

Girls, you have but a few days to do your courting in, and you should hurry up. You needn't, however, be quite so violent in your manifestations of a desire for married life as was the Indianapolis female. She had been receiving attentions from a fellow for some time. The other evening he visited her. After the usual salutations she said to him: "You know what year this is, Henry?" "Oh, yes," was the flippant reply; "it's 1872." "That's so," was her further remark, "and it's also leap year." He smiled a sickly smile and murmured "Yes." "Well, I want to know when you are going to marry me?" was her startling question. "I—marry—why you don't mean it?" "Oh, yes I do. When's it going to be?" "I never intended anything of the kind," was his trembling response. She didn't say another word, but taking up a coal scuttle knocked him flat, and then sat on his head, and wouldn't let him up until the day for the wedding was appointed. We don't advise our females to imitate this lady but merely show them a way to deal with too bashful lovers.

The Diamond Mines

Are fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capitol Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

A Lord!

Some of the California papers are as liberal in their bestowal of titles on Englishmen visiting this State, as are the hotel keepers on the Continent of Europe who call every rich man "milord." The Chronicle of Monday, under the heading of "A Lost Lord," has an article which commences as follows:

In 1867 a young English lord named John Stuart Forbes, 18 years of age, came to this city from London.

John Stuart Forbes is no more a lord than this: He may, if an elder brother and all his children die, become a baronet and be Sir John Stuart Forbes. Forbes, though a good natured fellow enough, will never, if he be found, prove an ornament to the English nobility. He would be a lob-lolly lord. The last that was heard of him, was that he was on his way to join a brother (another lord?) who was keeping a whisky shop in Montana. Unfortunately there were a good many whisky shops (not kept by lords) on the road to Montana, and John Stuart Forbes probably called in at these, and gave up life and prospective title, and wealth in one of them.

Pleasant for Hubby.

A gentleman of Jersey City went home a little late the other evening. He found his door locked. He knocked. His wife put her head out of the window and asked: "Dear, have you had a pleasant time this evening?" "Very much so, indeed," was the reply; "how did you pass the evening?" "Tip top," answered his wife. "You had your pleasant company and I had mine!" "Oh! inde-e-e-d! Who is it?" "You don't know him, so it's no use telling you." The husband cogitated for a moment, and then asked: "Can't you introduce me?" "Not to-night, dear. Come home to breakfast in the morning and I'll make you acquainted." The husband walked away in moody silence.

Pangs of Conscience.

A most remarkable case of conscience comes from Boston. From a doorstep of that most conscientious town, a few mornings since, was stolen a pitcher containing a pint of milk. What pangs of remorse the thief suffered we can only infer from the fact that upon a subsequent occasion the pitcher was returned to its accustomed place, and in it was found four cents, the value of the stolen milk, which the thief had probably drunk for his breakfast and so could not return it. We should really like to know whether it was the lacteal fluid, souring on his stomach, which occasioned his remorse.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1015 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

The Alta and the Art Journal.

The Alta goes after the California Art Gallery (one of the most creditable periodicals ever published in California) like a mad dog. It abuses its shape, which it characterizes as a "clumsy folio," and says:

The chromo in this number is detestable, as might be expected from such an incompetent art critic as the editor shows himself to be in his criticism of the Gerome in the Art Association collection, and in his acceptance of an unjust and weak criticism on Nahl's pictures of the "Rape of the Sabines."

The Alta evidently thinks that the editor manufactured that chromo, but he didn't. The criticism on Nahl's picture of the "Rape of the Sabines," which the Alta calls "unjust and weak," is to the effect that these pictures are historically incorrect as regards costumes, and are theatrical and gaudy. This is, we think, very just and very strong. The reason of the Alta's attack on this particular article is probably that the author of it is one who has for the last ten years persistently criticised that paper, and good naturedly made fun of its bad English and silly editorials in the News Letter, Puck, the Californian, Golden Era, and more recently in FIGARO. It was too good a chance to "get even" for the Alta to miss. To say that the Alta took up the cudgels for Nahl's pictures because they were ordered by a rich man would of course prove unpalatable, for it says:

The adoption of the dirty insinuation that the Alta and Bulletin praised "Cleopatra Before Cæsar" because it belongs to a wealthy banker, does not indicate a high tone in literature or much regard for the merely common decencies of common journalism.

We cannot see anything actually "dirty" in this insinuation. The Alta is better known for its adulation of men of wealth than for its appreciation and encouragement of art, music and the drama. Is not this so? If a man is rich, does not the Alta believe that to criticise his taste in pictures is impertinent? Would not the Alta's comments on that article about Mr. Crocker and Nahl's picture in the Art Gallery read somewhat as follows if set down at length? "We will undertake to say that this writer "who pretends to criticise the taste of Mr. "Crocker, one of our wealthiest citizens, "with regard to pictures, has not enough "money in his pocket to buy a chromo." That would be very good Alta criticism. The Alta seldom if ever outrages "the merely common decencies of common journalism," and that is about all that can be said for it. It is an eminently respectable paper; it fills its place in the community, but those who support it, though wealthy, are not necessarily the most cultured class.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

NUTMEGS.

[From the Danbury News.]

Some one has perfected ready-made mustard plasters. With one of them and a biscuit, traveling on the cars will become a luxury.

The Hartford Times says that Rubinstein never looks at his audience. We shall soon begin to believe that Bret Harte never does.

We are pained to see that some papers that appropriate our items seek to palliate the theft by publishing a column of religious miscellany. This may look well enough in the eyes of heaven, but it does not satisfy us.

One of our residents about to depart West, desires to sell a sitting in one of the most eligible groceries in town. The stove is one of the most powerful in the market, and the cracker and sugar barrels are within easy distance.

A Danbury shoe-maker went off hunting Monday, well supplied with ammunition, and waltzed around all day without securing any game. His lack of luck is supposed to be due to the fact that he had no gun with him. Being absent-minded he had forgotten to take it.

One of our fashionable youths donned his first silk hat and cigar, Saturday evening. He got along well enough with the cigar, but he had to give up the hat—it made him sick at the stomach.

A Danbury boy whose imagination had become diseased by too close devotion to dime novels, started off yesterday to seek fame as a slayer of bears and Indians. He took all his toys, including a sled and a snare drum, bade his little brothers and sisters an affectionate farewell, and was gone nearly two hours.

Our exchanges are considerably agitated over our Indian trouble. We are worried to death, ourselves, about it, although we never say anything. We prefer to let the grief eat into us—eat into us silently. We want our readers to understand this.

The Tyranny of Capital.

Gradually the rights and luxuries of poor men are being snatched from them. Cleveland street car conductors have been forbidden to use an oath, however stubborn the propulsive mule. This is another instance of the tyranny of corporations. They are always soulless, and have no appreciation of the agony which must stir the soul of a man driving a refractory mule.

Still Alive!

When looking for Holiday presents, go to the NEW YORK PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY, No. 25 Third street, and see those beautiful portraits in oil, water-colors and India-ink. Prices from one-third to one-half cheaper than at any other first-class gallery in the city. Remember the place—B. F. Howland & Co., 25 Third st. P

SQUARZA'S

Branch Punch Saloon,

317 Kearny street.

Have you beheld it? If not, you've a treat
At SQUARZA'S PUNCH SALOON, in Kearny street
There BONA, disciple of GREAT SQUARZA,
Dispenses famed Magic Punches; rather
The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES' PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight to round her waist
Guess what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL,
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find,
To aid the Man—invigorate the mind!
Not this alone—a Welcome you will meet
At BONA'S—(SQUARZA'S)—317 KEARNY STREET.

Music for the Male Breast.

A novelty in gentlemen's dress is to be introduced this season. The bosoms of shirts are to have a few bars of music printed on them, in some cases with the words. It will be a delightful thing to attend a party this Winter. When the girl of one's heart is invited, she will be led up by the infatuated youth, who bears upon his bosom her favorite tune. She opens, if of a pensive nature, with "Thou reign'st in my bosom," or "I cannot tell thee all I feel." If of a rollicking character, she'll sing, "Shoo-fly don't bodder me," or "Comin' thro' the rye." And all the while the infatuated youth will have to stand behind the piano, and his vest unbuttoned, his coat thrown back, and a smile spreading over his countenance like the ripple on the green surface of a frog pond. Any man who undergoes the ordeal, and doesn't go out and hang himself to the nearest lamp-post we shall regard as a person of exceeding heroism or unmatched cheek.

Fun in the Family.

What a healthful thing to have one jolly person in the house, ready to laugh at anything ludicrous or even able to create sport at any time. There are enough to reflect on the sad side of life, and its irritable side, of life, and its sober side. We need one one more to show the mirth that often trembles just below the surface of painful things. A real, impetuous laugh dissipates many illusions, sweeps the twilight out of our imaginations, and brings honest daylight.

An Outraged Juryman.

A young man, of Canandaigua, last week served thirty hours on a jury, and was paid the munificent sum of twenty-five cents. In the course of a conversation with the judge he intimated that that learned functionary was an idiotic old booby. For this he was fined $25 for contempt of court. It pays as well as speculating in Erie stock to go on a jury in Canandaigua.

A Big Hunt.

From the following list of spoils of a Florida hunting party, that same in their way they must have had a lively hunt. They killed and secured five bears, fifteen deer, ten duck, eighty-five squirrels, one crane, one alligator, and caught five hundred and five pounds of catfish.

For the Very Best Drinks,

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. O

A Transformed Theatre.

The Sacramento Bee gives the following account of the transformation of a theatre into a stable:

An absolutely certain way of having unique and convenient stables, if it can be done with requisite economy, is to make them out of handsome opera houses. At least McMullen has had excellent success in transforming the Academy of Music, on K street, between Third and Fourth streets, into a livery stable. The building extends from K street to the alley between it and L street. On the east side of the basement floor thirty-three stalls have been built. There is a wide door leading from the basement to the alley, and wide and solid stairs have been built in the southwest corner from the basement to the high grade floor. The great arched entrance from K street to this floor is the same as in theatrical days, except that the front columns have been taken out so as to make the opening of the same size. It leads between an elegant saloon on one side, a fine eating-house and convenient stable-office on the other side, and underneath four commodious rooms and halls above, to the original floor of the theatre. On the west side are eight stalls of such neat finish that they may be considered the private boxes or dress circle of the horse opera house. The original ceiling with its ornaments and two great skylights remains unchanged, other than it will be repaired so as to be really finer than when it covered only humans. The gallery still remains, whence a view may be taken as of yore of the scene below. The grooves and pulleys for the scenery are also left intact, although the scenes themselves are removed, and the gas fly-lights being still in position, a brief labor would again fit the stables for a theatre. Around the walls, where stood the stage, are scattered the memorials of the tragedians, comedians and minstrels, who have been supplanted by horse flesh and grooms. On one spot is written "Bind up my wounds; bring me another horse." Richard's command has for once been literally and liberally complied with, and the unknown actor has unintentionally writted the motto of the place —"Bring me another horse."

"To-Day."

This is the title of a very pleasant weekly published in Philadelphia by McClean, Stoddard & Co. It is edited by Dio Lewis It contains stories and sketches by Max Adeler, T. S. Arthur and others, and has many good engravings. The Christmas number is a very good one. We are glad to add this publication to our exchange list.

The New York Argus.

We have received No. 1 of the new series of this paper, published by C. P. Sykes. It is well illustrated and contains a large amount of interesting reading matter. Frank Bellew is the artist of the Argus.

An American, who was plain Mr. James Foley when he lived in Connecticut, is Signor Jammi Foli now that he is a basso in Munich.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

Be in Time.

What's the use of losing time when you've made up your mind to do a thing? We do hate dilly-dallying people, who stand on the brink of an action as a boy does before taking his first dive. A woman of Central Shaft (Mass.) is a woman after our own heart. One day recently she buried her husband, and on the way back from the funeral married the departed's dearest friend. She had fallen in love with him for the excellent taste he had exhibited in laying out the dead husband. "The funeral baked meats" were consumed by the wedding party. This reminds us of another lady who, while in attendance on the death-bed of her husband, received his dying request. "Eliza, dear," gasped the dying man, "promise me one thing; don't, don't marry Charley. I should not rest easy in my grave if I thought you would marry that man." "Rest easy, my love." replied his wife; "I could not marry Charley even if I wished to, for I am engaged to another man."

That Statue.

Some time ago it was proposed by the friends of "Boss" Tweed to erect a statue in his honor. He declined the compliment, as he thought it in bad taste to erect statues to living men. The objection no longer exists. "Boss" Tweed is about the deadest man to be found outside of a tomb. We suggest that an emblematic statue be erected, Tweed represented as Mercury, would entirely fill the bill.

Parisians must be fond of the circus, for a fourth building is being erected near the Madeleine for the exhibition of fine horses, ground and lofty tumbling, etc.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

This theatre was thronged again last night, every inch of standing room being occupied and even the corridor being crowded with people trying to catch a glimpse of the spectacle through the open doors. The beautiful scenery is the subject of general commendation and the ballet is universally admitted to be the very best ever given on the California stage. The first dance is especially beautiful; the grouping at the back of the stage with scores of white arms flashing in the light is particularly effective. This piece with all its attractions of the Rigl Sisters, Mons. Caron and sons, the glee club, etc., will be presented again to night, and at the matinee to morrow. Reserved seats for the matinee have been in such demand all the week that probably ever part of the house will be crowded with ladies.

Alhambra.

The light and pleasing performance given at this house by the Emerson Minstrels, and Miss Jennie Worrell and Miss Lillie Hall suits the taste of the public exactly during these holiday times. To-night Bob Hart, whose dry humor and talent for speechmaking have made him a great favorite will take a benefit. He has well earned this testimonial by his efforts to please the public on the stage as an actor, and behind the scenes as stage manager. We are sure that his benefit will be a bumper and the audience will be limited by the capacity of the house. The usual matinee performance will be given to morrow when the full bill which forms the evening's entertainment will be given.

Metropolitan Theatre.

A great bill has been prepared at this house for Friday and Saturday evenings. The performance will commence with the comediette in two acts entitled "Mons. Tonson," in which Harry Eytinge will appear in the character of Mons. Morbleau as played by him over two hundred nights in England and America, and Mr. Listoo will play Thompson. The evening's entertainment will conclude with the ever-popular drama of "Jack Sheppard" with Mrs. Charles Edmonds in the title role. There will be a matinee performance to-morrow. In consequence of the immense preparation necessary for the production of the "Yellow Hat" there will be no performance on Sunday. This grand spectacle will be presented for the first time on Monday night.

Bella Union.

After a capital first part and interlude in which the Chada Family, Charles Varner, J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong, Cogill and Cooper and many other favorites will appear the burlesque spectacle of "A-lad-in-a-lamp," got up especially for the holidays is given. The scenery in this is very fine the costumes are gorgeous, and the processions are well arranged. Miss Jennie Johnson plays the part of Aladdin with much spirit; Miss Minnie Fillmore looks charmingly pretty as Princess Badroulboudour and acts capitally; E. Montague causes much fun as Kassarac; R. G. Marsh is very effective as the wicked magician; J. H. Larkin, amusing as the widow Mustapha and the characters are generally well filled. This piece should have a long run.

The Atheneum.

The company at this house is a very strong one, comprising such comedians as Frank Mortimer, Walter Perks, Lon Dixon, Charley Thompson, Fox, Hugh Robinson in character changes, and Miss Claude, Senorita Reolis, Miss Livingstone, May Leroy, Maggie Brewar, and other favorite vocalists and violinists.

California Art Association.

This association will hold their holiday reception this evening. Invitations have been sent to all the "nice" people in the city, and the gathering to-night will represent the leaven of taste and culture, with which this heavy work-a-day world is a little lightened.

Woodward's Gardens.

Circus, the wonderful educated animals and skating every day. Free skating Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Grand performance Saturday afternoon and Sunday.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

Photographic Cards.

At one dollar per dozen at the Peoples Art Gallery, 34 Third street between Stevenson and Mission street. Y

Holiday Presents for Gentlemen.

The finest styles of Gent's Smoking Jackets, Merino Gowns, Traveling Valises, and the best assortment of Gentlemen's Fine Furnishing Goods in the city can be found at Silberstein's 506 Kearney street, second door north of California, where can be found 1,000 articles suitable for gentlemen's Holiday presents. nn

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

Holiday Candies.

Fresh, sweet and delicious Candies, of every variety, at M. A. Mercer's pioneer confectionery, 578 Kearny street. Wholesale and retail. G

Wicked Dogs.

A very learned English writer has been overhauling the inner consciousness of a bulldog, and he has kindly told the public all about it. His conclusions are that dogs have many of the passions of men, including anger, fear, jealousy, shame, humor, love, etc., and more or less intellectual faculty; but he is certain that they have "no sense of morality." This is very sad, and some missionaries and tracts and sermons should be thrown to the dogs right away. Here is opened up a field for missionary labor almost boundless in its possibilities, and one upon which the brethren should at once concentrate their energies. The work in so new a cause might, of course, be misdirected at first, but experiments might be made upon a few worthless, mangy curs, whose loss wouldn't be felt in case the reformatory effort proved fatal.

Very Soothing.

"The voice of woman, gentlemen," said a romantic individual, in a late argument in a beer saloon, "the voice of woman, no matter how much some of you may sneer at the sentiment, exercises a soothing, an inspiring, a hallowing influence upon the ear of man: comforts him in affliction, and ——" "Tom, you rascal!" exclaimed his wife, at this moment showing herself at the door, "come home, you loitering scamp, and leave these worthless fellows to themselves. Oh! when I get you home, won't you catch it!" And didn't he? That romantic man is not yet able to use a chair in the customary fashion, even with the softest kind of cushions.

Donovan Reprieved Again.

The morning papers are all full of the execution of Donovan, which they unanimously state is to take place at one o'clock to-day. The reporters are all in readiness to describe the last scene, but it will not take place to-day. Early this morning the Sheriff, J. M. Adams, while superintending the erection of the gallows received a telegram from Governor Booth ordering him to postpone the execution until January 3d.

The Tyranny of Capital.

Gradually the rights and luxuries of poor men are being snatched from them. Cleveland street car conductors have been forbidden to use an oath, however stubborn the propulsive mule. This is another instance of the tyranny of corporations. They are always soulless, and have no appreciation of the agony which must stir the soul of a man driving a refractory mule.

The Diamond Mines

Are fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Meyer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

An Old Landmark.

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Bocken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmegundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

PARTED FRIENDS.

BY WILLIAM SAWYER.

Friendship's the wine of life—'tis sweet to think—
And pleasant is a draught both full and deep;
But there are wines, alas! too thick to drink,
Too thin to keep.
And there is friendship bottled off in vain,
For delectation in the after days,
That, wisely, from the bin where it has lain,
No hand will raise.

Old times, old friends, in memory they dwell,
Harmonious 'neath the halo of the past;
But for the present——Seeks the crab the shell
He once has cast?
Some, rising on the ladder, never stop;
Some on the lowest round still keep their feet;
And those at bottom wonder those atop
They never meet.

'Tis wiser; since, in going up or down,
Chameleons all, none are what they have been.
And he, our bosom friend, we quitted Brown,
We welcome Green!
Flake after flake the snows of age descended,
So tenderly, they yield us nought of gloom;
But in the faces of recovered friends
We read our doom.

How changed! they tell us pleasantly, so grey!
So stout! so altered from the friend we knew!
Confound it! But the comfort is, that they
Are altered too.
Perchance a pimpled Damon Pythias seeks,
Whose bottle-nose proclaims him at the bad;
Perchance Pylades to Orestes speaks—
Already mad.

'Twas sweet with Amyrillis in the shade,
Bright were the tangles of Neæra's hair;
Now Amy's wed, and, but for Trnent's aid,
Nerry were bare.
Since, then, accordant to one law of change,
We all are changed and changing—who's to blame
To lack the same regard for what grown strange,
Seems but the same?

Why rise the haunting ghosts of buried time,
Why must old gossips vex the poet's ear?
Garrulous only, 'midst his dreams sublime,
Of stealing deer.
Still, friendship is the wine of life divine—
So poets sung, and so the world agrees;
But are we always, when we like a wine,
To like the lees?

Holiday Punches.

There are no Punches for the Holiday tables that compare with Squarza's. Squarza's Punches are famous for the high art shown in their manufacture, the happy combination of wholesome tonics, and their delicious flavor. AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—In spite of the rain the Alhambra Theatre was crammed to overflowing last night when that universal favorite Bob Hart, took his benefit. No storm can damp the spirits of those who go to the Alhambra. The entertainment is thoroughly enjoyable. Billy Emerson is a host in himself; Miss Jennie Worrell is the most piquante and original of actresses; Miss Lillie Hall is grace personified, and the programme is of the most varied description. The bill which appears on our first page, will be played at the matinee to-day and again this evening.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—At the matinee to-day and again this evening, the gorgeous spectacular play of "Aladdin" will be presented. On each of these occasions the audience will be limited only by the capacity of the house, and those who have not taken the precaution of reserving seats will have a poor show of obtaining them. The attractions of this piece are so numerous that all tastes are pleased; some go for the scenery, others for the really splendid ballet by the M'lle Rigl and the best corps de ballet ever formed on the California stage, and all are delighted with the acting of Miss Maggie Moore, Miss Minnie Walton, J. C. Williamson, Walter Leman, and others taking part in the representation.

METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—A capital bill was presented at this house last night. The performance commenced with the two act comedietta of "Monsieur Tonson," which has seldom been performed in California, though the expression "Monsieur Tonson again" has passed into a proverb. In this play Harry Eytinge proved his versatility and his talent as a character actor by giving, in the part of Mons. Morbleu, one of the best representations of a Frenchman ever seen on the California stage. Hudson Liston appeared to better advantage in the part of Thompson than in that of Dominie Samson, and Frank Rea, Miss Kate Armstrong, Mrs. L. F. Beatty and others, filled their respective parts well. The performance concluded with "Jack Sheppard," with Mrs. Charles Edmonds as the housebreaker. This bill will be given this evening. The theatre will be closed on Sunday night in order that the preparations for the production of "The Yellow Hat" on Monday may be completed. A full dress rehearsal of the piece will take place on Sunday evening.

BELLA UNION THEATRE.—There will be a new first part to-night, and a sparkling interlude of songs, dances, acts and ballet. The performance will conclude with the burlesque of "A-Lad-in-the Lamp," which has proved such a popular hit. The local satires, pleasing songs, fine scenery and gorgeous costumes, renders this piece very attractive. Those who have seen the drama at the California Theatre, should not fail to see the burlesque at the Bella Union Theatre and compare the two.

ATHENEUM.—Among the many attractive features in the bill for to-night we may mention Mortimer's character songs, the act of "Bad Whisky," Hugh Robinson in changes; "Handy Andy," and the play of "Law and Justice." The full programme appears on our first page. The variety entertainment given at this house is full of life and fun.

"THE YELLOW HAT" AT THE METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—Preparations for the production of this grand spectacular piece, have been in progress for months past, and will be fully completed to-morrow, when the last dress rehearsal will take place, the theatre being closed for the purpose. On Monday evening the piece will be produced, and the public will see the result of the time, skill and money expended. The piece is of the same character as the "Black Crook," "Roi Carotte," "Lao and Lotus" and many others so popular in New York. That is to say it is a succession of beautiful scenes, and affords an opportunity for the introduction of much variety business. There is not too much plot, nothing to fatigue, everything to amuse. A great feature will be the Amazon March by young ladies dressed in suits of silver armor, recently imported from Europe by R. W. Kohler. Members of the Olympic Club will appear in a new trick and acrobatic pantomime, entitled "Humpty Dumpty's Dream," and there will be an olio of songs, dances, banjo solos and Ethiopian acts. The transformation scene by Mr. Wm. Burhorn is entitled "The Land of Ferns; or, Halls of Dazzling Light," and is intended to eclipse in splendor anything hitherto presented on the California stage.

THE COMING RACING SEASON.—Budd Doble will be due here on Sunday with his new importation of fast stock, consisting of the fast trotting mare Rosalind, who beat the American Girl a heat in 2:21¾, but was beaten in the next heat in 2:20; the pacer, Dan Voorhees, and the trotting stallion, Alma. Occident will come to the surface again in about six weeks as the competitor of Rosalind in a match for $5,000. mile heats, three in five, to wagon over the Bay District course. The second match for the same will follow over the Oakland Trotting Park, three in five to harness. The other horses will also take the field against California competitors, and lively times on the turf may be looked forward to in the Spring. The running race between Thad Stevens and Phil Sheridan, arranged to come off on New Year's Day over the Alameda track, will probably be necessarily postponed on account of the impracticable condition of the track. Even with the best of weather the track could not be placed in condition in time after this morning's rain.

LEO HUDSON AND BLACK BESS.—Miss Eva West, who is travelling with Miss Leo Hudson, reports to the FIGARO from Chicago, under date of the 15th inst., says that Miss Hudson did a splendid business at Nixon's Amphitheatre, goes thence to Cincinnatti, and on to Baltimore. The following paragraph will interest all who know and appreciate the good qualities of the animal: "Bess is splendid. She was very sick with the horse disease, but is now quite well again.

TESTIMONIAL.—Bob Hart, stage manager of the Alhambra, was presented with a valuable gold watch and chain by his brother professionals after his benefit last night. Bob is a good fellow, a capital stage manager, and is popular with everyone. Long may he bob around with his handsome present.

WOODWARD'S GARDENS.—The usual entertainment will be given at these beautiful grounds to-morrow afternoon. Prof. Samwells and his educated animals, glass blowing, M'lle Sanyeah, etc., within the Pavilion, and a thousand interesting attractions outside of it.

THE HORTICULTURAL HALL—SKATING.—This hall, corner of Stockton and Post streets, is open for skating Tuesday afternoon and evening Thursday afternoon and evening, and Saturday afternoon and evening.

IN TOWN.—Frank Wilton and Miss Ellie Wilton have returned from a most successful campaign in the interior. Our country exchanges are full of the praises of Mrs. Ellie Wilton's acting and the management of Frank Wilton.

CHARLES VIVIAN.—This popular character vocalist reported from Shasta on the 20th, and said he expected to be in San Francisco for a day or two in about two weeks time.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

PACIFIC COAST DRAMATIC NEWS.

GRASS VALLEY.—The Union says:

> Grass Valley does not appear to be a good theatre town at this season of the year. Mr. Wilton and troupe, who have been performing here, have not received the patronage that their many excellencies and talents deserved. The houses have been entirely too small, and the town will not be troubled often with dramatic entertainments. Amusements are necessary to happiness and morals, and when good companies visit the mountains the mountains should show appreciation.

The Union is too sensible a paper to try to encourage dramatic companies to visit Grass Valley when the people of that town are not willing to patronize them. In this it differs from the unprincipled sheets published in that deadest of all show towns, San Jose, which seem to take a delight in encouraging managers to come there and lose money.

SALT LAKE.—Mrs. F. S. Chanfrau made her first appearance at the theatre on the 19th, as Leonia in "The Wife's Ordeal." She had a good house. On the following night "The Hunchback" was to have been performed, but Mrs. Chanfrau was ill and "The Honeymoon," with Mrs. P. M. Bates and others in the cast, was substituted. On the 21st "The Elopement" was played. Mrs. Chanfrau's engagement terminated on the 25th......John R. Clawson, long connected with the drama in Salt Lake City as manager and actor, died on the 18 h His funeral took place on the 31st. The pall bearers were Messrs. P. Margetts, J. C. Graham, H. McEwan, H. E. Bowring, J. A. Thompson and George Teasdale. Mr. Clawson was generally popular with the profession, and his death is much regretted.

VIRGINIA CITY.—The Footlight is the name of a little paper intended to serve as the programme of Piper's Opera House when there is anything going on there, and of amusements generally. No. 19, which has just come to hand, might be better named the Cock-fight than the Foot-light, for its only amusement records relate to "chicken disputes."

SACRAMENTO.—The talented Dutch character actors, Baker and Farron, appeared at the Metropolitan Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, supported by a dramatic company and Maguire's California Minstrels.

MARYSVILLE.—On Monday evening, Ellie Wilton was the recipient of a benefit at the Theatre. The bill consisted of "The Lady of Lyons," an olio, and the farce of "Toodles."

RENO.—The Reno Amateurs gave their first performance at Dyer's Theatre on the 21st.

DENVER, COL.—Miss Edith O'Gorman, the escaped nun, lectured in the theatre on the 21st to a large audience.

PIOCHE.—John Maguire, the great Oakland manager, whom so many have cause to remember, opened on the 23d, in "The Bells," followed by Harry Lorraine in Dutch comicalities. John Maguire playing star. W-h-e-w!

SHASTA.—Charles Vivian, with his compact little company, consisting of M'lle Marie Gangain, Miss Fanny Garretson, Miss Marie Zoel, Professor Key and Mr. J. Scott, gave entertainments at Harmonie Hall on Tuesday and Wednesday to good houses. From Shasta they want to Weaverville.

EASTERN DRAMATIC NEWS.

In New York, "Lee and Lotos" draws immense audiences at Niblo's......At Wallack's, "Brother Sam" was produced on the 21st. It is to be followed by "David Garrick" and Byron's comedy of "An English Gentleman"......At the Fifth Avenue Theatre, "The Baroness," an adaptation from the French, was produced on the 10th for the purpose of affording a "society lady" with a passion for the stage an opportunity to make her debut. The Mercury says:

> The Baroness and subsequent Countess was impersonated by Mrs. C. D. Abbott, a rather tall and slight lady of mature age from Alabama, who made her first public appearance as an actress, though she had often played in private. Her friends are said to lie among the wealthy and fashionable, and she herself is reported as well endowed with the world's goods. As far as drygoods are concerned, this is certainly the case. Her dresses were changed with each act, and sometimes during acts. They were of extraordinary richness, and of the most costly material and make. The Valenciennes lace alone upon one was valued by ladies present at $1,000. Her various dresses in the piece cost $5,000. Her jewelry was profuse and in keeping with her costume. The lady from early youth has had a fancy for the stage and now gratifies it. Her talent is decided, although, as a novice, many shortcomings were evinced in her acting. She was often inaudible. She was nervous, nasaly and forced, yet her elocution, by-play and attention to detail showed great intelligence and competent instruction. She indulged in a perpetual bend of the body which suggested a curvature of the spine. This gave her extensive bustle the appearance of a camel's hump. She had evidently much rehearsed the part. The character is very effective, and in the hands of an experienced artiste would be immense. One very marked deficiency on the part of Mrs. Abbott was, that she made no noise while being strangled. No force was given to the scene, and as the curtain fell the audience remained for a considerable time in their seats, thinking that the Countess had merely fainted and that another act was to follow.

A new society drama entitled "New Year's Eve" was to be produced on the 16th......At the Union Square Theatre "Agnes" reached its one hundredth night and was played for the last time. It was succeeded by a series of standard comedies. John Brougham's "Atherley Court" was to be produced in the course of a few weeks......At Booth's Theatre Miss Neilson closed her engagement on the 14th. On the 15th John Brougham's new drama entitled "The Lily of France" was produced, with Miss Helen Temple as Joan of Arc supported by P. C. Bangs, Jas. W. Wallack and others......"Round the Clock" still runs at the Grand Opera House......"Herne the Hunter," with Miss Kate Fisher and her horse Wonder, is the attraction at the Bowery......Robert Butler has taken the Athenæum, 585 Broadway. George H. Coes is the stage manager. The Abbott Pantomime Troupe, George Leopold and Leo, gymnasts, and other stars appear......The San Francisco Minstrels draw good houses with a bill presenting no special novelties......Bryant's Minstrels present a variety entertainment. Dan Bryant's lecture on Africa is a feature......At Wood's Museum Delehanty and Hengler, Sheridan and Mack, Jacob Shewele and his trick mules, and other attractions are offered......At the Theatre Comique they are running dramas with Nell Warner in the title roles......At the Olympic Theatre the Aimee Opera Bouffe Troupe draw large and fashionable audiences. "Les Cent Vierges" is to be produced shortly......Barnum's Great Show was destroyed by fire on the 24th. The whole of the immense collection of animals, with the exception of two elephants and a camel, was destroyed. The great showman's loss is $300,000, of which $90,000 is covered by insurance. Of course he will "phœnix" again.

The Orrin brothers, who are engaged with a circus performing in Cuba, until March, 1873, will after that time return to New York to arrange for the tenting season of that year.

The Royal Yedde Japanese troupe, with Cangero as the principal attraction, played a week at Mozart Hall, Cincinnati, beginning on the 9th. Their performances were wonderful, but did not draw well.

John E. Taylor and Harry Causland state through a card in the last New York Clipper that they will start for Australia, via Chicago and California, in about two weeks.

S. S. Purdy, who has just returned from Colorado, opened at Hooley's Minstrels, Brooklyn, on December 16th. He was a passenger on the train which recently collided with the Cincinnati express, when five bodies were taken from the carriage of which he was an occupant.

A meeting of the members of the dramatic profession in Philadelphia was held on the afternoon of the 13th, at the Continental Hotel, in that city to take some action in regard to the death of Robert Craig. Mr. Barton Hill, of the Arch Street Theatre, who occupied the chair, read a number of letters from members of the profession, among others Miss Lizzie Price, Aug. Daly, F. Mackay, and L. L. James, expressing their desire to appear at the Arch Street Theatre for the purpose of a benefit to the widow of the deceased actor. Barton Hill, Wm. Wallis, and others were appointed a committee for the purpose of consulting Mrs. Drew, Mr. Joseph Murphy and Augustin Daly in regard to the proposed benefit. The 26th was mentioned as the date, at the Arch Street Theatre.

W. J. Florence made his appearance in Rochester this season at the Opera House on December 9th to "Eileen Oge."

A new place of amusement has been opened in St. Joseph, Mo., under the name of the New Tootle Opera House. Tootle Opera House! Good Gracious.

Olive Logan has written a play entitled "A Business Woman" for the Union Square Theatre.

The opening of Mr. Fechter's theatre is still unaccountably delayed, but when it is opened we are promised Monte Cristo with unparalleled magnificence. Mr. George Boniface has been added to Mr. Fechter's company.

Mr. Frank Mayo made a hit in New Orleans in the late Frank Murdock's play of "Davy Crockett," and will make a prolonged tour in the South west with this piece, supported by a company recruited in the Crescent City.

Robert McWade commenced a six nights engagement on December 16th at the Royal Lyceum Toronto, in his own version of "Rip Van Winkle" which held the boards during the week to a succession of crowded houses.

The Imperial Brazilian Hippodrome and Great California Circus opened for the winter at the National Hall, Philadelphia, Dec. 14th, to an immense house. It is under the following management: Pete Conklin, director; Kit Clarke, business manager; S. T. Williams, treasurer; Martinho Lowande, equestrian director. Among the company are the Lowande Brazilian family of riders—Martinho, Abelardo, Natalie, Clarinda, and the infant rider, Antonio; Wm. Franklin, rider; Pete Conklin and R. Almonte, clowns; Fred Levantine and the Watson brothers, gymnasts.

Harry C. Butcher, comedian, late of Shelby's Comique, Buffalo, advertises for an engagement. Butcher should change his name or take to tragedy.

Duprez and Benedict's Minstrels were to begin a week's season at Pike's Opera House, Cincinnati, on the 23d.

Robert Craig's funeral, which occurred on Sunday, Dec. 15 h, at Brooklyn, L. I., was numerously attended by the profession. Messrs. Stuart Robson, Joseph Murphy, Barton Hill, George H. Griffiths, Louis James and W. H. Crisp, officiated as pall bearers.

Miss Ada Gray commenced a six nights' engagement at the the Theatre, Richmond, on December 9th, "Article 47."

Lester Wallack, on Dec. 8th, at the National Theatre, Washington, made his first appearance in that city in many years, and played during the week before large, appreciative and delighted audiences.

Lawrence Barrett is meeting with remarkable success in his tour through the country, and has disposed of his professional services for every night of the present season.

The Davenport Brothers, of spiritual dark seance fame, have blessed their fellow mortals in an indirect manner by quitting the show business and retiring to their farm at New Lisbon, New York. These brothers, two in number, commenced their career in Rochester, N. Y., some twelve years ago, and while mainly successful in their dark business, and having been all through the United States and many foreign countries, have yet been often detected and exposed, and in one or two instances compelled to leave in a lively manner, in order to save themselves from physical damage. They gave their last exhibition on the 6th at Onha, N. Y., to a small audience. Prof. Fay, the late manager of the Davenports, is now in Rochester.

SQUARZA'S

Branch Punch Saloon,

317 Kearny street.

Have you beheld it? If not, you've a treat
At SQUARZA'S PUNCH SALOON, in Kearny street
There BONA, disciple of GREAT SQUARZA,
Dispenses famed Magic Punches; rather
The most delicious mixtures yet recorded;
And have with many medals been rewarded!
Ladies their CORDIALS there can sip at leisure,—
Their "TEARS" appease,—and Men gain "LADIES' PLEASURE."
To allay connubial differences and pain,
In "ANTI-DIVORCE" you can your end attain.
Sip of the potent extract but one taste,
Your arm, consoling, straight is round her waist
Once what a "MORNING COMFORT" in the kiss
That heals the quarrel and imparts the bliss!
The "WELCOME" too, you'll always find
A balmy soother for the troubled mind.
The bright "AURORA," and the sweet "FAREWELL,"
Just visit BONA, and you'll all fare well!
His "HYGIENIC BITTERS" are the panacea
For all dyspeptics and for diarrhœa.
No Cholera Morbus ever has been found
Where "HYGIENIC BITTERS" knock around.
BONA and SQUARZA, spite of all detractors,
Have proved the Nation's greatest benefactors!
Full FORTY different healthful drinks you'll find;
To aid the Man—invigorate the mind!
Not this alone—a Welcome you will meet
At BONA'S—(SQUARZA'S)—317 KEARNY STREET.
Remember, too, not this famed place to pass;

The Diamond Mines

Are fizzle, so therefore let the adventurous persons of San Francisco give up all ideas of roughing it in the wilds of Arizona; but settle down quietly in San Francisco, and live well and be happy; and to do so, we strongly advise them to patronize really first class restaurants. Mayer's White House Restaurant and Bakery, and his branch on Fourth st., called the Capital Restaurant have particularly come under our notice as being two of the most popular restaurants of the city. The very best the markets afford are provided for these establishments. The kitchens are constructed on a totally new principle of ventilation, are better lighted and more commodious than any others in the city, and are kept scrupulously clean.

An Old Landmark.

The Verandah Cigar Store, at the N. E. corner of Kearny and Washington streets, kept by Henry Schmidt, has been famous for the last eleven years for keeping the best Havana cigars, tobacco, choice meerschaum pipes, etc. F

To ACTRESSES.—For sale at a great sacrifice at 38 Geary street, six elegant silk dresses, unequalled for quality and style. S

Everybody Goes There.

THE place to buy a hat is "THE" HAT STORE, 647 Washington street, the second hat store below Kearny. The stock is immense, the fashions are the latest, and the prices are the lowest. •

For Washing

Shirts, $1 50 per doz.; small pieces, 50c. per doz. At the What Cheer Laundry. •

Live Well.

Those who eat good dinners are amiable. Bad feeding is the cause of many crimes. Those who dine at the Pioneer Restaurant, on Washington street, at the corner of Dunbar Alley, live well, and are consequently happy. Henry Booken, who has catered for the public since 1849, provides for his customers Lake Tahoe trout, Salmagundi soup, game, tame geese, delicious entrees, and everything the heart of man can desire. The best cup of tea in the city—English breakfast tea—Souchong and Orange Pekoe—can be obtained here. E

Manning's.

The only place south of Market street to get a good dish of Oysters, California or Eastern Transplanted, is at Manning's Charter Oak Oyster Saloon, corner Howard and Third, late of the Blue Wing Saloon. L

The Doctor is a competent, scientific physician, and the afflicted can consult him with confidence. •

The Best Remedies.

Dr. Perry's Last Chance, for pain. Dr. Perry's Webfoot Pills, for all bilious complaints. J. R. Gates and Co., corner Sansome and Commercial streets, sole agents. •

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bonton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bonton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. D

The Late Edwin Forrest's Last Letter.

The following letter, the last he ever wrote, dated the 11th, the day before his death, is full of his peculiar ideas and characteristic style. That it may be fully understood, we must premise that Mr. Oaks, one of the executors, was called to Philadelphia on Thursday, the 12th, and this letter was sent to him and received there from Boston on Saturday. Mr. Oaks had sent Mr. Forrest the caricature of a clergyman who had so many calls for locks of his hair that he was almost shorn bare by his admirers. There is a tenderness and sympathy in it that reveals the true nature of the man. The bouquet sent by the young lady lies near his silent form, and though withered and dead, is still fragrant. "Kate" and "Lizzie" are his two faithful Irish servants:

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11th. 1872.

DEAR FRIEND OAK:—I have received your three letters with the enclosures. That poor devil of a person was barbarously treated by his congregation. He ought to have known to do what he thought was right—was his only course—one can't serve God and Mammon too. The sheet of foolscap with water mark of 1801 is a rare thing; thanks for it. I got to New York on Sunday, just before six A. M.; went to the Metropolitan Hotel; ordered a room and a fire, and went to bed, and there lay thinking what a pleasant time I was indebted to you for in Boston. Why, the week passed away like an ecstatic dream, without annoy, let or hindrance. Yesterday was the coldest day of the season here, and I found the scarf wrought by the fair hands of Miss Georgie a true comforter, and again gratefully thanked her for it. The bouquet brought me by Mrs. Lane is now on my dressing table with scarcely a leaflet blighted, and its perfume breathes upon the air night and day, telling me of her kindness. The girls, Lizzie and Kate, were delighted to receive your kind remembrance of them, and thank you very much. The article from the Traveler is good, and vows nothing but truth, and if it does blow, so does Gabriel's horn, and at the right time, too. It needs something to wake the dead.

I hope you have been vaccinated, as you promised me, for that terrible pest—the small pox—is a hideous and fearful thing. Don't neglect yourself in this duty, which you owe to all who love you.

Remember me to your sister, to Mrs. Lane, and to Miss Georgie, and also to Mr. Lane, with whom I was much pleased.

God bless you ever, my dear and much valued friend. EDWIN FORREST.

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the 'Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer.";
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clam sand crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

AMUSEMENTS, Etc.

California Theatre.

There can scarcely be any falling off in the attendance at this theatre, until everyone in San Francisco has seen "Aladdin," and many will we are sure go to see it two or three times. A thing of beauty is a joy for ever, and this gorgeous spectacle with its splendid scenery, costly costumes, brilliant ballet, and other attractions can be enjoyed again and again. There will be a grand matinee on New Year's Day.

Alhambra.

An immense combination of companies will appear at this house to-night. It will comprise Billy Emerson and his great troupe of minstrels; Maguire's Minstrels, who have been delighting the citizens of Sacramento and Virginia City, Baker and Farron, the famous Dutch artistes, and Miss Jennie Worrell and Miss Lillie Hall, whose original and brilliant songs and dances have made them universal favorites. The programme appears in full on our first page. It presents all these popular performers in their best specialties, and for variety and excellence has seldom been equalled. There will be a matinee on New Year's Day. The management announce that Johnny Allee, Miss Alice Harrison and Little Mac will make their first appearance on January 20th.

Metropolitan Theatre.

There was a full rebearsal of "The Yellow Hat" last night, and from what we witnessed we are able to promise all who attend the Metropolitan Theatre to-night a rich treat. The piece is full of tricks and surprises: the Amazon March by thirty-two pretty girls in beautiful silver armor on which prismatic colors are cast from lenses in the gallery, is one of the most brilliant things ever presented on the stage; the new scenery for the piece is beautiful, and the transformation scene surpasses any ever presented on the stage in San Francisco. Nothing like it has ever been attempted and Wm. Burbury has in this great work gone so far ahead of any other scenic artiste in this line that their productions are as nothing. Transformation scenes have before this been presented, they have been pretty and attractive; the one with which the spectacle of "The Yellow Hat" closes is bewilderingly beautiful. Some idea of its complicated character may be gained when we state that it consists of no less than seven phases of transformation. The cast of "The Yellow Hat" with the programme of the various specialties introduced appears on our first page. If this grand spectacle does not crowd the Metropolitan Theatre from pit to dome for weeks to come, then indeed the San Francisco public must be set down as lacking in appreciation of the beautiful. In consequence of the great length of the piece the pantomime by the members of the Olympic Club, which it was at first intended to introduce will be omitted. These talented gymnasts will shortly appear in a shorter entertainment which they have in preparation. There will be a matinee on New Year's Day.

Bella Union Theatre.

The burlesque spectacle of "A-lad-in-the-lamp" preceded by a new first part and interlude drew an immense audience on Saturday night and again last night, and will, no doubt, run for many nights to come to good houses. The Recheda Family, Charles Verner, character vocalist; Cogill and Cooper, the California song and dance artists; Mme. Therese and Mons. Schmidt, and many others appear nightly.

The Atheneum.

Frank Mortimer's magic changes are a great feature in the entertainment at this house; Hugh Robinson appears in "Bad Whisky;" Lon Dixon in his great bone solo; Miss Olande in comic songs; Mollie La Forrest in ballads, and many others in specialties, making up a very pleasing programme. This evening, Miss Katy Zoal will make her reappearance.

Horticultural Hall.

The Oriental Literary and Social Club will give a grand bal masque at Horticultural Hall on January 23d. Tickets will be sold by subscription only. Lists are open at the places designated in an advertisement in another column.

Benefit of Miss Anna Elzer.

On Friday evening next this talented and pleasing young vocalist will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit at Pacific Hall. Her many friends will be glad to learn that she has recovered from her illness and will appear on this occasion assisted by the best musical talent in the city.

Mlle Kellogg.

There is a probability of this famous singer paying a visit to San Francisco. A subscription list for a series of concerts will be the best means to induce her to do so.

Blind Tom.

This wonderful musical prodigy, whose performances on the piano have caused such a sensation in all the principal cities in the United States will commence a series of concerts at Platt's Hall on April 14th.

Anatomical Museum.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

A Terrible Warning.

The New York Dispatch publishes the following sad story as a warning to those young men who love not wisely but two well.

We were reminded the other evening, by an incident which occurred, of the wisdom of an old man's advice when he said, "Don't love love two women at once. Love is a good thing, but it is like butter in warm weather—it won't do to to have too much on hand at one time." The incident to which we refer occurred in Fulton Avenue, Brooklyn. A young man with curly hair, nice clothes, and delicate cane, was promenading that fashionable resort with a fashionable young lady leaning on his arm. The lady wore a chignon which was the envy of all the other ladies who saw her. It was as large as a prize cabbage, and resembled a porcupine in full anger. As the twain reached the corner of Smith street, they met a young lady. She stopped directly in front of them

"George who is this woman," she said.

George would probably have made some but his female companion took the trouble on herself.

"Who do you call a woman, you impudant hussy?"

"You can't be good for much anyhow," was the rejoindar, "when you travel round the streets with another woman's intended husband:"

"Another's intended? George, explain this instantly. Are you not engaged to me?"

"Ladies, ladies, do be quiet for Heaven's sake," said George trying to escape.

But one caught him on one side and the one on the other and commenced pulling and hauling him about. From that they began punching him in the ribs, and then went for his ambrosial curls. When George escaped with the loss of both sleeves of his fine Fall overcoat, his head looked as though it had made the acquaintance of a street sweeping machine. Perhaps George is now convinced that to love two women at once isn't wise.

Singular Duel.

The Paris papers tell of a duel on a piano between two musicians. They played for forty-eight hours without food or drink, Having commenced with pieces of a sedate character, they passed on to waltzes, and thence to operatic music. One had played the "Miserere" in "Il Trovatore" 580 times, and was commencing on the next performance of that piece, when he sank to rise no more. The other was conveyed to the hospital, his life being despaired of, and the four seconds are suffering from mental aberration. There are a good many pianists who ought to learn something from this novel performance. Let them think how infinitely more merciful it would be to kill themselves in that way, rather than a large audience or an entire neighborhood. And there is the young man who is learning to play the flute; but we suppose, after all that the young man was not born to die.

The Modern Knights.

The young men of Eastern Tenessee recently gave a tournament. They dressed in tinsel mail and leather armor. They were smiled upon by beautiful ladies, and cheered by a motley assembly of white and black citizens. They attacked with furious fierceness rings hanging from poles; dashed recklessly with lances in rest at swinging gongs; and made the welkin ring with their stately oaths of "By'r lady," "By my halidame," etc. Before the show had ended a lively rain began to fall, the crowd dispersed and the knights hastily sought shelter in the nearest benzine distilleries, where they disputed with warmth the exploits of the day.

L'AUTO-DA-FE.

In the hush of the winter midnight,
  In the hush of the sleeping house,
When no wierd spirit stirs in the gloomy fire,
  The spirit of storm to rouse:

When never a glint of moonlight
  Gleams from the great black sky,
By the red fire's glow, as its moulders low,
  We crouch—my letters and I.

My letters, they lie where I tossed them,
  On the crimson hearth-rug there,
Still, vivid and bright, in the ruddy light,
  As cobras in their lair,

I push the hair from my forehead,
  That burns and throbs so fast,
Thinking the while, with a strange, dull smile
  Of the task I must do at last.

Who knows, but I, the comfort
  These foolish letters have been?
The depth and scope, the strength and hope,
  Of the "leaves" that are always "green?"

Who knows, but I, how sadly,
  To-morrow, I and my dream,
By the ashes gray, will weep and say,
  "Wo'e me for that vanished gleam—

"The gleam of idle gladness:
  The glimmer of memories bright
That hid in each line of those letters of mine—
  Those letters I burn to-night?"

Ah, well! the dream was a folly:
  Its joy was an idle thing,
Its hope was a lie, and its loyalty
  Died of a whisper's sting.

So a kiss—the last—to my letters;
  A resolute hand, and—there!
Do the sad, dark eyes of my Paradise
  Meet mine through the fierce flame's flare?

Sensational.

At 7 o'clock on a recent Saturday night a bare-headed man, with his hair standing on end like bristles in a brush, came running into the Sixth Station, at South Boston after an officer, saying that they had caught a thief in the closet of a house on Third street. So over went a brace of stalwart officers, who found a number of frenzied women tearing about the premises, and three robust men braced against a closet-door, behind which the thief was caged, as they supposed, for the women had seen him enter there. The officers drew their club and then mustered up courage enough to open the closet door, and found—nobody.

The Matrimonial Market.

The Paris Gaulois says that of the many matrimonial agencies in that city some actually send round a list of the choicest goods on hand. One of these, evidently a carefully selected stock from the very best class of goods, is quoted. It runs:

I apprehend, sir, that in the course of your daily life you are now and again coming across people placed in the difficulty of not being able to contract or arrange a well-assorted marriage—that is, a marriage according to one's rightful expectations. Permit me to call your attention to a few specimens from our list of bona fide candidates, for whom I have the honor to act as intermediary;

1. A French prince, well known in the world for his simple and irreproachable manners, agreeable physiognomy, 43 years of age, and a fortune of 800,000 francs to a million.
2. A magistrate, 35 years, and 150,000 francs.
3. Several doctors, 25 to 35 years, and 30,000 to 60,000 francs.
4. Several merchants, 25 to 45 years, and 20,000 to 30,000 francs.
5. Several gentlemen of private fortunes, 40 to 50 years, and 30,000 to 100,000 francs.

A Reliable Paper.

The Oakland Torchlight, which depends upon the Alta for its notices of theatricals in San Francisco has the following bit of news which has been contradicted again and again since it was first set afloat:

Little Lotta, the California actress, who was playing an engagement at the Metropolitan Theatre only short months ago, died last week, in the south of France.

Once more we advise the Torchlight to rely on FIGARO, the dramatic authority of the Pacific Coast.

Says the Titusville Press: "In St. Louis it is very fashionable to be fleshy, and the man who cannot sport a natural bay window under his vest resorts to artificial stuffing, that he may move in the best circle of society."

Altogether the Best.

It is curious, but true, that J. A. Shahar, 707 Market street, near Third, should sell furniture and bedding cheaper than any other dealer in this city. Try him and you will be convinced. x

Holiday Presents for Gentlemen.

The finest styles of Gent's Smoking Jackets, Merino Gowns, Traveling Valises, and the best assortment of Gentlemen's Fine Furnishing Goods in the city can be found at Silberstein's 806 Kearny street, second door north of California, where can be found 1,000 articles suitable for gentlemen's Holiday presents. BO

Oyster Trade.

The oyster trade in California is assuming gigantic proportions. Emerson Corville, of the Saddle Rock, 410 Pine street, furnishes from his own oyster beds at San Bruno millions of oysters to all parts of the Pacific Coast. His Eastern transplanted oysters have a fame which has extended all over the continent, and the "Saddle Rock" is known everywhere.

Health and Pleasure.

There are not too many pleasures in San Francisco. Nothing is more pleasant, nothing more health-giving than a drive into the country now and then. Those who cannot afford to keep a carriage of their own, can find one equal in elegance to any private conveyance at the Occidental Carriage stand. Frank Bouton has there, and at his stables 1016 Stockton street, carriages of every description. His drivers are careful and experienced, his charges are moderate. The moral of the above is: go to Frank Bouton at the Occidental Hotel when you want a carriage. o

Playing Quaker.

The Lawrence Journal says: A story is told on the streets to the effect that one of our enterprising hackmen yesterday put on a broad-brimmed hat and drove down to the Kansas-Pacific depot to meet the incoming Friends. Seeing an elderly couple on the platform, our Jehu approached them and in a deeply-solemn tone remarked:

"Wilt thee ride over to the city?"

The couple assented, and moved towards the hack.

"Will thee be taken to a hotel or to a Friend's house?" asked the hackman, in a subdued tone.

"To a hotel," was the reply, as the pair stood at the hack door.

"Where is thou's baggage?" said the triumphant hackman.

A faint look of suspicion passed over the face of the man of peace, as he remarked to his spouse, "Come, Hannah," and turned away from the hack, leaving the driver thereof wondering where and how he had made a "break."

Who Wants to Buy?

A Detroit man wants to sell a patent pistol cane or a promising Newfoundland pup, he don't care which. He went home the other night and set in his cane, heavily charged, behind the door, and started in for a romp with his three bright little ones. They got along well enough until the pup spied the cane, and, going for it, started upon a promiscuous run around the chairs and table-legs with it between his teeth. The doting father remembered the effect of a slight pressure upon the spring, and with rare presence of mind succeeded in throwing the children down the cellar stairs and placing himself on the top of the sideboard before the thing went off. The ball only broke a hundred-dollar mirror, and the pup only got a few scratches in jumping through a plate-glass window. The doctor says the children will all recover. No insurance.

Not Rough.

A rough North Carolinian, going West with his dozen children and two dozen dogs recently, got on board a steamer at a Kentucky landing, and his first question was;

"How much will you charge, Captain, to take us to St. Louis?"

"Will you go on deck or in the cabin?"

"Wal, Captain, I've lived in a cabin all my life, and I spose the cabin'll be good enough for me now."

FITS 'EM CLOSELY.

How many men we daily pass
Who reason like a braying ass!
They grow to men, from braggart boys,
And think that brains must make a noise;
They gain high seats in synagogues;
No mystery their vision fogs:
Whenever they lack for argument,
They give their store of gas a vent,
And wise men whisper as they pass,
"There goes a self-conceited ass!"

The Eastern papers are running this item:

The San Francisco car-conductor who snubbed Mrs. Fair has received a notice of the cancellation of his life insurance policy.

A single fact is worth a shipload of argument.

Keep the mind on a healthy trot.

A Happy New Year.

What a pleasure it is to meet a smiling countenance, whether it be on the street or in the parlor. And why is it that some faces wear a continually happy look? It is simply because they live on a plain, nutritious and substantial diet. That man is a public benefactor who will conscientiously serve us with a clean, toothsome and wholesome meal. Wm. Meyers, proprietor of the "White House," Kearny street, also of the Capitol Restaurant, Fourth street, does it, as hundreds can enthusiastically testify. His kitchens are marvels of order and cleanliness. Try him, and you will find it impossible to eat elsewhere.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game,
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again,

Pacific Oyster House, 337 Bush street, above Montgomery; open Day and Night.

California Theatre.

This theatre was densely crowded again last night and another couple of thousand people or so enjoyed the beautiful spectacle of "Aladdin." The ballet, with M'lles Betty and Emily Rigl as the leading dancers, is the subject of general commendation, and admirably a all performed their parts on the first night, there is now a marked improvement visible, and everything works like a charm. "Aladdin" will be played every evening until further notice and as the New Year's Day matinee.

Alhambra.

During the present holiday season this house is so crowded every evening, that there is no standing room after eight o'clock. It would be strange indeed if this were not the case considering the attractions offered. Billy Emerson always has something new and original with which to delight the audience; Baker and Farron are unrivalled in their Dutch acts; Miss Jennie Worrell and Miss Lillie Hall present new songs and dances and are much applauded. The great triple combination, consisting of artistes whose names and acts are given on our first page, will appear to-night in an immense programme. There will be a matinee to-morrow—New Year's Day.

Metropolitan Theatre.

In spite of the unpleasant weather, the first production of the grand spectacular play of "The Yellow Hat" last evening drew a good house. We have in previous notices given some idea of the attractive features of this play, and of the rich treat in store for the public in the exhibition of the most gorgeous transformation scene ever presented on the California stage. That the audience was more than satisfied, and that the reality surpassed their most sanguine expectations, was evidenced by the liberal applause which they bestowed. The plot of this, as of all fairy and demon plays, is very slight. King Broccoli II. (Harry Eytinge), a very jolly monarch, first cousin to King Cu-ro', has a daughter, the Princess Miranda (Miss Fanny Young), with whom Commander de Bonverie (G. Hinckley), Viscount de Fremont (O. Edmonds), Duke de Rocamb'e (L. Belmour, and Baron Althotas (P. Thayer) are all madly in love. There are two others a so madly in love with the Princess; one is Fortunio (Miss Blanche Clifton), the other Ric-rac (W. Ellerton), an agent of his Satanic majesty. Ric-Rac has a wife, Phosphoriella (Cherry Belle), who knows his designs on the Princess Miranda and determines to thwart them, and her endeavors to further the love of Fortunio and Miranda and thwart the evil designs of her husband, form the material for the play. Miss Blanche Clifton as Fortunio, wearer of the yellow hat, a talisman bestowed on him by Phosphoriella which makes all the girls fall in love with him, played the part in an arch and cunning manner, winning considerable applause for her songs. Harry Eytinge as King Broccoli did some splendid buffo acting, and gave imitations of actors of the Bombastes Furioso school which caused much laughter. W. Ellerton as Ric-rac, the chief devil of the play, acted his part capitally, making far more of it than would have been done had it been entrusted to an actor with less appreciation of telling points. Miss Fanny Young read and acted the role of Princess Miranda well, and was much applauded for her singing. Cherry Belle, who is a universal genius—actress, vocalist, danseuse, banjoiste, magicianne, and we don't know what besides—was a capital representative of Phosphoriella, and acted, sung and danced with immense spirit. E. J. Crowell, who never slights a part, but does everything which is entrusted to him well, was very good as Destiny, his simulation of old age being perfect, and his reading of the part effective. There are few actors more reliable than this gentleman. The other parts were well played by A. Graham, Miss Ada Shattuck, Miss Jennie Stenart, Mrs. L. F. Beatty, Miss Griffio, Miss Kate Armstrong and Miss Robins. George Hinckley and O. Edmonds caused much fun in their respective parts of Commander de Bonverie and Viscount de Framont, and quite carried out the spirit of burlesque. H. Liston tried his very best to amuse the audience the character of the Seneschal, struggled hard with the part, never missed a chance to make a point, but still his fun was rather lugubrious and the very straining after it made it less amusing to the audience. In the olio Miss Lulu Wilson gained much applause and an encore for her song and dance; Cherry Belle caused quite a sensation by her clever banjo solo, and the Little Darlings fairly brought down the house, and what was better, a shower of half dollars, by their charmingly original rendering of "The Apple of my Eye." The piece is full of tricks and surprises; one sofa turns into a crocodile, another into a fiery dragon, two chairs become gold pieces and salute, a door turns into a demon with rolling eye balls and wagging jaws, and there are many others too numerous to mention. Of the scenes which were painted for "The Yellow Hat" by Wm. Burbury, the chief are The King's Garden, The Palace of Sleep and the grand transformation scene. The Palace of Sleep is admirably painted, the imitations of tapestried hangings on the walls being especially good. In the King's Garden, or a representation of it conjured by the demon, Ric-rac, a grand review of Amazons takes place. This is a most beautiful spectacle. About a score of pretty girls dressed in splendid silver armor imported for this play through the agency of Messrs. Corbyn & Co., go through a variety of evolutions, while a lime light with various colored lenses throws its reflections on them, rendering the scene a perpetually changing one. The transformation scene, as we have observed before, is by far the most ambitious undertaking of its kind ever presented on the San Francisco stage. There are seven transformations, each change revealing a scene of beauty more enrapturing than its predecessor. Everyone will go to see "The Yellow Hat" and its wonderful transformation scene. It will be played every night until further notice and at the matinee on New Year's Day.

Bella Union Theatre.

Among the many attractions at this place of amusement may be mentioned the performance of the Recheda Family; Charles Vereer's comic songs; "Dot Paddy Goople," by J. H. Larkin and Carrie Armstrong; "The Bunch of Roses, by Cogill and Cooper; the ballet of "La Maja di Sivigila," by Mme. Therese, Mons. Schmidt and corps de ballet, and the spectacular burlesque of "A-Lad-in-the-Lamp" by the whole company.

Woodward's Gardens.

The Atheneum.

Miss Katy Zoel made her re-appearance at this house last night. Mortimer in his great representations of character; Miss Livingstone in her Chinese dance; Miss Claude in song and dance; Miss La Forrest in ballads, and many others in pleasing performances, will give a good entertainment this evening.

Benefit of Miss Anna Elzer.

On Friday evening next this talented and pleasing young vocalist will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit at Pacific Hall. Her many friends will be glad to learn that she has recovered from her illness and will appear on this occasion assisted by the best musical talent in the city.

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM.—One of the most complete collections of the kind in the United States, comprising hundreds of costly and beautiful wax models, is daily on view (to gentlemen only) at the Museum on Montgomery street. An hour may be profitably spent here.

The Vanity of Business Men.

Some men think that advertising will not pay them because they are established and known. If they will put themselves on a corner of a street where the people are passing for one hour, they will be able to determine how many persons they know, and from that they can learn how few know them. It is vanity to think that we are known by everybody, when if we tried the experiment we should find that half the people don't know us, or where we live or what we do, till we tell them.

TO ACTRESSES.—For sale at a great sacrifice at 38 Geary street, six elegant silk dresses, unequalled for quality and style. s

EDWIN FORREST.

BY FRANCIS A. DURIVAGE.

The curtain falls. The drama of life
Is ended. One who trod the mimic stage
As if the crown, the sceptre and the robe
Were his by birthright—worn from youth to age—
"Aye, every inch a king," with voiceless lips,
Lies in the shadow of Death's cold eclipse.

Valete et plaudite! Well might he
Have used the Roman's language of farewell,
Who was "the noblest Roman of them all;"
For Brutus spoke, and Coriolanus fell,
And Spartacus defied the she-wolf's power
In the great actor's high meridian hour.

How as the noble Moor he wooed and wed
His bride of Venice; how his o'erwrought soul,
Tortured and racked and wildly passion-tossed,
Was whirled, resisting, to the fatal goal,
Doting, yet dooming! Every trait was true;
He lived the being that the poet drew.

Room for the aged Cardinal! Once more
The greatest statesman France has ever known
Waked from the grave and wove his subtle spells;
A power behind, but greater than, the throne.
Is Richelieu gone? It seems but yesterday
We heard his voice and watched his features' play.

Greatest of all in high creative skill
Was Lear, poor discrowned king and hapless sire.
What varied music in the actor's voice!
The sigh of grief, the trumpet-tone of ire.
Now both are hushed; we ne'er shall hear that strain
Of well remembered melody again.

No fading laurels did his genius reap;
With Shakespeare's best interpreters full high
His name is graven on Fame's temple-front.
With Kean and Kemble's names, that will not die
While memory venerates the poet's shrine
And holds his music more than half divine.

Pleasant Gossip.

What a delightfully gossipy correspondent Satanella of the Call is! This is the style of thing:

> The remains of Maud Merrill (as Mary Ann Foley called herself) were interred on Thursday last. Maud, you may remember, was shot in a house of ill-repute by her uncle, Mr. Blakely, because she would not abandon that course of life.

Of course the Call remembers all about it. Didn't the story of Mary Ann Foley and her wicked uncle serve as Sunday reading for 28,814 subscribers (sworn to) a week or so ago? Then Satanella tells all about the funerals of the burned-to-death servant girls of the Fifth Avenue Hotel? He (for Satanella is a man who affects the style of a rowdyish female) says:

> They were carried from Bellevue Hospital to St. Xavier's Church, where the eight really nice coffins were deposited in the central aisle, and the solemn services of the church preached before a crowd of people gathered to witness them.

Satanella is a connoisseur in funerals and writes up funerals in a "really nice" style.

An Amendment.

A lawyer who was sometimes forgetful, having been engaged to plead the cause of an offender, began by saying: "I know the prisoner at the bar; he bears the character of being a most consummate and impudent scoundrel." Here somebody whispered to him that the prisoner was his client, when he immediately continued, "but what great and good man ever lived who was not calumniated by his contemporaries?"

A Boston society has raised $10,000 with which they propose to lobby through Congress a bill to prevent cruelty to animals in transit by railroad. If they would only supplement the measure with a clause affording special protection to asses in transit to Washington, they might get it through at less cost.

That was a very tender-hearted man who, on being told that his wife, who had left the house only an hour before, was drowned, and that her body was found a mile or so below, said: "She must have floated down quite lively!"

Forced politeness—Bowing to circumstances.

A Letter from Lotta.

The papers have been killing poor little Lotta, the actress, for some time, insisting with a persistency worthy of a better cause that she was pining away and dying, and would no more charm or amuse the public. We are happy to announce that she is still in the land of the living, well and happy. Mr. De Bar, manager of the St. Louis Opera House, received a letter from her a little while ago, saying that she was unmarried and not dead, and Chicago has later news in a letter received by Mr. McVicker, from which we make the following extract. The letter is dated Yarwood Hall, Cheshire, England, and says:

> Here we have been in Europe five months travelling through France, Switzerland Germany and I hardly know where. Mother returned to England in September, but I remained in Paris with some dear lady friends from Boston, pursuing my studies. And oh, how I do study French, the banjo, music and drum. It keeps me as busy as a long rehearsal. Mother and I had not been separated very long before she wanted me and I wanted her. My friends were very kind, but "what is home without a mother?" So I started for England and here we all are. I have a cunning little carriage and a pair of ponies. Mother says that I ought to have three, for that's the style here; but two's enough when you want to study economy. I drive a great deal but not all the time. I can, and do, walk four or five miles a day, but oh, don't it make me hungry. At a good meal I am a match for the best huntsman in the chase. I have had many offers to act in the best theatres in London, but mother says, "No, you came here for rest, recreation, and study, and you shall not act," and mother is right, I I guess—mothers always are. Besides, what do I want more than America? There is room enough for all my acting. It's so foggy in England, they might not understand me, and think it was my fault, so I'll stick to my dear old friends in America, who, I know, will be glad to see me when I come back again.

Puget Sound News.

The following, which we clip from the Puget Sound Express, will, we are sure, be read with great pleasure by our Eastern exchanges because they will know such a lot about what it means:

> At the Puyallop Reservation last Saturday night the siwashes congregated by ringing of bells, and endeavored to allay the terrestrial commotion by prayer and various methods of mamocking closh tumtum with their Sahalie Tyee. The water in the river lashed the banks in a manner frightful to the natives.

Village Solons.

In speaking of local debating society a country paper says: "Our village debating clubs are in full blast, and questions that have engrossed the intellectual functions of sages ever since the flood, are being decided at the rate of two a week."

Got Out of the Rain.

A letter-carrier saw a man standing in the rain, without hat, coat or vest, and suggested that he had better get out of the rain. Thereupon the man cut his throat. Poor fellow! He got out of the rain; shrank from the storm!

Stanley seems to be a good deal of a failure as a lecturer at New York. Even the Herald says of his last effort that it was "far from being a marked success," and that part of it was "intolerably dull."

The Harvard Advocate thinks that although the Mansard roof occasioned the spread of the fire, man's best efforts finally succeeded in extinguishing it.

A Happy New Year.

What a pleasure it is to meet a smiling countenance, whether it be on the street or in the parlor. And why is it that some faces wear a continually happy look? It is simply because they live on a plain, nutritious and substantial diet. That man is a public benefactor who will conscientiously serve us with a clean, toothsome and wholesome meal. Wm. Meyers, proprietor of the "White House," Kearny street, also of the Capitol Restaurant, Fourth street, does it, as hundreds can enthusiastically testify. His kitchens are marvels of order and cleanliness. Try him, and you will find it impossible to eat elsewhere.

Oysters.

In strolling round the other night,
To look at 'Frisco by gas light,
Our careless feet, by chance did stray
To where a fountain's ceaseless play
Of waters bright, did make a screen
Through which a sweet bouquet was seen;
While mossy stone and pearly shell,
O'er which the waters softly fell,
Made that window seem to be
Some fairy grotto of the sea.
"Stop," said my friend, "let's go in here—
It looks so nice—and try their cheer."
"All right," I said, "I must agree
That this place suits me to a 'T.'"
No sooner had we found a seat
Than at our side a waiter neat
Made his appearance, asked our wish—
Said they had almost any dish
That we might name. We found it true,
And cooked magnificently, too;
All kinds of oysters, juicy, fat,
Cooked every style; just think of that,
And if your mouth don't water, then
You're different from other men.
They'd clams and crabs and terrapins;
In fact, we found they had within
That cosy place all kinds of game.
Fish, flesh or fowl which we could name,
While every dish was, I am sure,
Prepared to tempt an epicure.
The ladies, too, have found, 'twould seem,
That they have here the best ice cream;
So here they flock, the little sinners,
To get what they call "such nice dinners."
Whoever doubts this let him rush
To three hundred thirty-seven Bush,
And there this truth he'll find made plain:
Who goes there once will go again.

A Misunderstanding.

The Chicago Hotel Reporter says:

> Mrs. Fair complains that she is not understood in the community where she resides. She is mistaken. The general understanding, and a very just one, was that she ought to have gone off at the end of a rope or at least have gone to the penitentiary.

That is it. Mrs. Fair missed her understanding at a critical moment and had consequently become sus. per col.
